Federation fund raiser has "miracle" turnout

The Pa. Poultry Federation's Distinguished Industrymen and their wives were honored at Thursday evening's annual fund-raising banquet at the Hershey Convention Center. Broiler Industryman of the Year is Melvin Mitchell and wife Dot from Lancaster Co., right; Egg Industryman is Bill Carlin and wife Jean, Lancaster Co.; and Turkey Industryman of the Year is Lowell Koch and wife Betty from Schuylkill Co., left.

HERSHEY — "I consider it a miracle," commented Pennsylvania Poultry Federation's Executive Secretary John Hoffman in describing Thursday evening's 1,600 guest turnout at the poultry industry's annual fund-raising banquet.

Even though this year's attendance fell 50 short of meeting last year's record crowd, Hoffman said he was pleased with the response for the ninth banquet since the economy of the industry and the entire economy of the country has been depressed.

Part of the drawing card for this year's crowd is the fact that the annual event had singer Frankie Laine providing the featured entertainment, along with comedian-impressionist Jim Teter.

Another factor that may have encouraged more folks to try to steal an evening away from the daily drudgery in the chicken and turkey world is that this year's gala festivities were held here at the Hershey Motor Lodge and Convention Center rather than at the Lancaster Host Farm where it was held the previous five years.

Whatever the reason, the fund-raiser certainly overshadowed the Federation's first attempt which was held at the Penn Harris Hotel in Harrisburg and drew all of 300 people.

The income the Federation receives this year will continue to be used to provide an organized voice for the poultry industry and to protect producers' interests. Money will go towards research, disease control, scholarships, and youth activities.

Co-chairing this year's "miracle" were Jay Greider of Greider Farms, Inc. and Melvin Mitchell of Victor F. Weaver, Inc.

The evening would not have been complete without the presence of the distinguished industrymen and their wives who enjoyed sharing the evening with Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Penrose Hallowell.

The Broiler Industryman of the Year is Melvin Mitchell. He and wife Dorothy, who prefers to be called "Dot", are Lancaster County natives. Mitchell is currently vice president of marketing with Victor F. Weaver, Inc. of New Holland where he has been employed for the past 36 years.

The Egg Industryman of the Year is William "Bill" Carlin, egg stock sales manager for Hubbard Farms, Inc. of Walpole, New Hampshire. Carlin has been with

Surplus ideas move closer to White House

BY DONNA TOMMELLEO

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block is expected to submit a plan to the White House next week, designed to reduce existing dairy surplus and alter the current price support program, a USDA spokesman said Thursday.

Although spokesman John Oches was not specific on what the plan contained, he noted that the USDA is still considering the variety of proposals submitted during the recent Kansas City symposium.

Lack of specificity in dairy programs seems to be the current underlying feeling in the nation's capitol.

"No one wants to touch dairy with a 10-foot pole," commented U.S. Representative Robert Walker (R—Pa.).

'There's a lot of posturing but actions are very limited," Walker added. He remarked that various groups within the dairy industry seem to be split over the critical issue of solving the massive surplus problem. Part of the split may stem from proposals which impose the same conditions for all producers, nationwide.

According to Walker, northeastern dairies produce about 8 percent of the surplus while western dairy producers contribute almost 50 percent.

'Our guys get penalized," said the Pennsylvania congressman.

On April 5, Wisconsin Congressman Steve Gunderson submitted a base-excess proposal, dubbed H.B. 6076 to the U.S. House of Representatives. Under Gunderson's program each U.S. dairy farmer would be assigned a base, dependent on past production, explained Gunderson aide Jim Reck.

Reck termed H.B. 6076 as, "a quite workable piece of legislation."

In addition to setting base, the National Board would be responsible for assessing those farmers in excess of base. Assessments would be determined four times a year.

The Board will not assess any producer marketing at or less than assigned base. Depending on estimated surplus, the Board could call for a percentage reduction and assess those producers maintaining above cutback levels.

For example, if the surplus was estimated at 5 percent, the net hundredweight price on that 5 percent would be about $7 or near world market price. That would apply to producers marketing at 100 percent of base during periods of cutback.

A double assessment exists for producers marketing at more than 100 percent of their base levels.

For example, if the Board calls for a 5 percent reduction and a

Milk soon to be official state drink

HARRISBURG — Governor Dick Thornburgh has until next Friday, April 30 to make it official — what dairy producers have been waiting for since last April. With his signature, Thornburgh will seal the fate of House Bill 1351 and will make milk the Keystone state's official drink.

It's hard to believe this 7-line bill has met with so many road blocks on its way to becoming law. But it's been almost a year since Rep. Joseph Grieco (R-84th) introduced the legislation in response to a suggestion made to him by visiting 4-H'ers during a Capitol tour.

After making its way through the House in short order, H.B. 1351 was stymied in the Senate by one senator who amended the bill in order to make alternative suggestions on what beverage should be dubbed the state drink — beer, wine, soft drink, etc.

Just this month, the bill "escaped" from the Senate Ag Committee when the imaginative senator withdrew his amendments and allowed the bill to pass favorably to the Senate floor. It was there, last Wednesday, that H.B. 1351 was voted on and passed with a vote of 49-1.

The sum and substance of the bill can be found on two short lines: "Milk is hereby selected, designated and adopted as the official beverage of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania."

The Senate members performed more work involving dairy legislation this week when they unanimously passed Senate Bill 1349, the Milk Identification bill. This piece of legislation introduced by Senators Frank O'Connell (R-20th), Edward Helfrick (R-27th), and Patrick Stapleton (D-41st) on March 17, 1982 amends the 1961 law and adds a definition for manufactured dairy products.

S.B. 1349 is now in the House Agricultural and Rural Affairs Committee. Its side-kick bill, S.B. 1350, also introduced by O'Connell, remains in the senate on second consideration. This legislation amends the milk sanitation law and establishes minimum sanitation standards for handling and processing manufactured dairy products.

The House Ag Committee was not idle this week. Members unanimously voted Senate Bill 1283 out of committee to be put on the House calendar for consideration. Sponsored by Senate Ag Committee Chairman Edward Helfrick, this bill provides the language for state-owned farms to be preserved as agricultural land through deed restrictions if sold, and calls for leasing fees to be used towards improvements on the land or buildings.

Lancaster County's Rep. Noah Wenger watched his Scenic River bill take another step towards amending the present law as the CLEARBROOK, Va. — A full brother and sister Jersey ET duo, born August 1981 and consigned by Walebe Farms, Inc., Collegeville, Montgomery Co. commanded a combined selling price of $30,000 to top the prestigious Third Waverly Invitational Sale. The sale was held April 21 here at the Frederick County Fairgrounds and was hosted by the Robert Stiles Family.

Sired by Reglis Deni Hi Power and out of the imcomparable Generators Valencia of Ogston, Ex, 5-5 305 days 25,980 pounds of milk and 1154 pounds of fat, Walebe High Value ET topped the sale for a bid of $19,000. He was purchased by a syndicate and Tri-State Breeders Coop, Baraboo, Wis. He was the first bull ever to be sold in the Waverly Sales series.

His full sister, Walebe Hi-Power Valerie ET, sold for $11,000 to the Valerie Syndicate, Collegeville with Walebe Farms retaining a quarter interest. Their dam, Valencia, has two VG-88 percent daughters with CPIs of plus 327 and plus 280. She is also the dam of A-Nine Call Me Great, USDA 1-82 +2026M - +55F +236$, and Build your best bottom line with the Pennfield layer program.

At Pennfield, we have the program you need to increase the profitability of your flock. Because, unlike many feed companies, we design a total program specifically tailored to your birds' needs - a program that can improve your profits by reducing expenses, increasing production, or both.

For example, we can show you how using a higher density feed could mean using less feed with no loss in production. And that means more eggs for less money.

But we know there's a lot more to layer production than choosing the right feed. Factors like good sound financing. The right housing and equipment for your layers. Good healthy pullets. And expert on-farm management. Pennfield's program takes all these things into consideration.

Add to that our highly trained sales and service staff, our technical service department and local laboratory, our dependable delivery service - and you've got everything you need for top performance from your flock. And top performance adds up to a better bottom line.

Ask the Old Farmer: In 1840 my grandfather was a baker and he advertised pilot bread, among other items Can you enlighten me? G H, Hartford, CT

Pilot bread, or biscuit, or hardtack, was a very durable variety of cracker, and was carried on ships especially to be served when stormy weather made it difficult to cook It stays as solid as concrete for a long time A variety of the same is still sold by many grocers

Home Hints To restore whiteness to discolored handkerchiefs immerse them in cold water in which you've dissolved a pinch of cream of tartar

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

New England: Week's beginning brings showers, warm temperatures, showers continuing, cooler midweek, cold, rainy weekend

Greater New York-New Jersey: Clearing, turning very warm, then light rain, week ends with rain, cold temperatures

Middle Atlantic Coastal: Clear and hot to begin week, rest of week is rainy and cold

Piedmont & Southeast Coastal: Beginning of week, sunny and warm, midweek brings rain, mild temperatures rain continuing, colder, weekend

Dealing with cut-throat marketing

What do corn gluten, poultry, soybeans and citrus fruit have in common? These are all agricultural products that are causing a ruckus between the U.S and the European Community

For some time now, the EC has been thumbing its nose at Washington farm leaders — a symbolic gesture of 'We'll do just as we please'

What's been happening is that farmers in the EC have been cashing in on their countries' 1957 programs designed to create a self-sufficient farm economy with increased farm productivity, stable markets, reasonable prices for consumers, and regular supplies, all the while ensuring a fair standard of living for farmers. Now that they've reached and surpassed this level of self-sufficiency, the EC countries are plagued with overproduction and inescapably caught in a vicious circle

For years they've paid their farmers to increase agricultural production so they could achieve independence from food imports And now they have to pay them to stay in agriculture because these growing food supplies and subsequent surpluses have lowered farm prices to the point where it's impossible to make a profit

So, what do these subsidizing countries do with the food they can't use? They dump it on the world market and underprice free-enterprise exporters

Then, as if it's not bad enough that the EC citizens have to pay their farmers twice for the food they produce, these countries also pay a subsidy to the exporting firms that unload the surpluses So, that's three times the EC taxpayers finance the farming industry

In one year alone, the EC pays out $13 billion in support programs Compare that to the U S support programs that are projected to only reach the $11 billion level over the next 4 years

With that kind of investment in their agricultural products, no wonder the EC is willing to unload them at below-production costs. Any income is better than nothing

As a result, the EC has been winning the competition with the U.S. for markets According to the U.S Dept of Agriculture, the United States took less than a fifth of the $1 billion poultry market in the Middle East last year while EC producers cornered the market, selling $330 million worth of poultry to the oil-rich countries

U S farmers are being hurt by some rather non-kosher marketing tactics How can we compete with these countries who always seem to be able to go a "penny" lower on their export price and don't hesitate to increase import duties to curtail any foreign trade?

Just two weeks ago, U S. Secretary of Agriculture John Block issued a statement of concern and disappointment regarding the Commission of the European Community's request to the EC Council of Ministers for a renegotiation of the zero duty (tariff) on corn gluten which would impose an import tax (Corn gluten is a byproduct of U S alcohol and sweetner production and is used to produce animal feed In 1981, the U S exported $500 million worth of corn gluten, duty-free, in Europe)

"We have repeatedly advised the European Community that the binding on corn gluten is not negotiable because we cannot accept any measure that would further restrict our access to the market of the European Community The intent to restrict corn gluten exports to the EC is viewed by our agricultural community as an unfriendly action," stated Block

Senate Ag Committee Chairman Jesse Helms shared Block's concerns and stated, "There has not been a tariff on U S corn gluten since the 1960s The imposition of a tariff along with additional import controls on U S agricultural products would seriously injure American farmers, and that is unacceptable to me"

But, according to the American Agriculture Movement Chairman Marvin Meek, U S grain experts in Washington are being "out horse-traded."

"Our leaders told the EC that their tariff is depressing our prices and interferring with third-world trade They should have told the EC we were raising our prices to the protected price EC farmers enjoy, which is just about at our parity," Meek said.

Once again, it appears as if U S farmers are footing the nation's "foreign policy" bill. While we wait for our political leaders to reach a civil solution ensuring an export market for our farm products, EC farmers are laughing all the way to the bank

To Practice Strict Sanitation

Livestock and poultry producers must make a special effort to prevent contagious diseases. Many of these infections are brought home by the owner, or with the purchase of a new animal. There are a number of infections that can be spread very easily from farm to farm.

In this part of the country where the density of poultry and livestock is so great, producers should be alert to the possibility of spreading diseases. When returning from another farm, or public place, different clothes and footwear should be used, Stray dogs, cats and wild birds should be controlled as much as possible. New purchases should be segregated and tested before mixing with the home herd or flock. In many cases vaccination should go along with very strict sanitation practices. Every producer is urged to give attention to the prevention of diseases through good management and the use of good sanitation practices.

To Be Careful With Fertilizer Placement

Most of the crops we plant will require additional plant food in the form of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash to obtain maximum yields. However, we must realize the potential danger of burning seeds or roots when they come in direct contact with either the nitrogen or potash fertilizer. Either of these elements will stunt or prevent germination.

Fertilizer should be placed on the side or deeper than the plant roots or seed. Most mechanical planters are now designed to keep the seeds and fertilizer at least two inches apart. In the case of plants the fertilizer should be either worked into the topsoil in advance of planting or side-dressed along the row after the plants have been transplanted. Proper fertilizer placement will return greater benefits from the plant food.

To Consider Pinkeye Prevention

Pinkeye in cattle is a perennial problem for beef and dairy farmers. Although it is not fatal, the disease is painful and results in weight loss and decreased milk production in cattle, and ultimately in economic losses for producers, reveals Chester D. Hughes, Extension Livestock Auction.

Researchers are currently looking to preventive measures as a means of controlling pinkeye

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

FROM ALPHA TO OMEGA
April 25, 1982

Background Scripture:
Revelation 1:13.
Devotional Reading:
Lamentations 3:21-27

Dear Visitor:

The place which you have just entered is sacred. This small cave some two thousand years ago gave shelter to the beloved disciple of Jesus Christ, St. John the Evangelist, who around the year 95 A.D. was exiled to Patmos by the Roman Emperor Domitian on account of the word of God and the testimony of Jesus Christ.

Thus reads a small brochure given me in May, 1980 in the Holy Cave of the Apocalypse on the island of Patmos in the Aegean Sea. Tradition tells us that a small recess in the rock of the cave was the place where St. John laid his head when resting. Another recess to the right and a litter higher is the place where he supported his hands when he knelt to pray. A level rock is believed to be the desk upon which his companion, Prochoros, wrote as the Apostle dictated. And that which St. John dictated and Prochoros wrote was the Revelation of John.

He Sent His Angel

According to the Apostle John, in Revelation 1:1, this book came to him as a revelation from God. This was a message which God had for churches, and as John puts it, "he made it known by sending his angel to his servant John." So the message is from God, but what of the strange manner in which this message is presented?

The style is called "apocalyptic," a type of Jewish and Christian literature in those days which was used to reveal a message from God through the means of images and visions of a highly symbolic nature. The style is something that is hard for most of us to understand in these days, except to note that the images and symbols are reminiscent, to some degree, of those we encounter in dreams or psychedelic experiences. They are images that seem to come from the deep recesses of the unconscious mind.

Yet, although the images may give us considerable difficulty — as sometimes our own dreams do — still the message that God imparted through the evangelist is pretty clear. Writing in a time of persecution against Christians by the empire, the Evangelist is relaying God's assurance that, no matter how great the earthly powers that persecute them, God is in control and through his Son, Jesus Christ, he will prevail.

The Alpha and Omega

"'I am the Alpha and the Omega,' says the Lord God, who is and who was and who is to come, the Almighty." Since Alpha and Omega are the first and last letters of the alphabet, he is saying "I am the first and last of all things." In between there may be principalities, powers and empires, but "Fear not,...I have the keys of Death and Hades."

Dear visitor, your coming to this holy place is not a chance event in your life. God...has guided you here to listen deep within yourself, to the secret echo of the words spoken to St. John...and for you to see with your mind's eye the heavenly vision revealed to the Apostle.

And the meaning of that "heavenly vision," now as then, is the assurance from God through Christ that the whole world, from Alpha to Omega, is in his hands.

The 'eggs'act number

In the April 3 issue of Lancaster Farming on page B-10 in Kid's Korner's section called "Food and Fun" it stated that forty years ago the average hen laid 100 eggs a year.

I can't see any profit in eggs if the layers were on vacation 265 days a year.

I raised Hubbard New Hampshire reds 45 years ago. They laid at least 75 percent all winter. I would get 300 eggs daily from 400 birds.

I can't imagine where you get the 100 egg story from. I suppose some people didn't get anymore than that.

Fifty years ago, Booth Farms of Clinton, Missouri trap-nested some white leghorn hens and one of them laid 342 eggs in one year. With good care, laying flocks back in those days paid their way.

If you listen to the Hollywood Squares (television show), you would have heard about how many eggs a hen can lay in 30 days. They asked the amount — 20, 40, or 60? I because years of work have not produced an effective vaccine against the various strains of Moraxella bovis bacteria, the most common cause of the highly contagious and infectious disease.

The main causes of pinkeye seem to be over exposure to ultraviolet radiation from sunlight and eye irritation from face flies, who also carry pinkeye organisms from annual to animal.

The best we can do NOW is to provide a shaded area for livestock and practice effective fly control. The use of dustbags, face mops, insecticide sprays and the new ear tags containing pesticides can acheive a 50-75 percent reduction in face flies. Keep pastures clipped to reduce tall weeds and grasses. Finally, treat promptly at first signs of pinkeye, minimizing the spread of the disease in your herd.

To Understand Persistant Weed Problems

Just how persistant do we have to be in order to control weed problems? Well, the answer to this question comes from weed scientists who ran germination tests on weed seeds which had been buried for up to 50 years.

They report that 29 percent of Johnsongrass seed germinated after being buried for 3 1/2 years; morning glory 74 percent after 5 1/2 years; pigweed 66 percent after 40 years, and dock 52 percent after 50 years. They further reported that 51 of 107 species tested still had live seed after 20 years.

The reason these seeds remain in the soil for such a long period without sprouting is apparently related to environmental conditions. According to weed experts, some seeds need just the right combination of moisture, temperature, and nutrients before they will germinate. This explains why we may suddenly be faced with a weed problem we thought was cured several years ago.

Editor's Note - The egg statistics for an average laying hen were found in the 1979 United States Department of Agriculture's Yearbook designed for children, entitled "What's to Eat?"

Thanks for agreeing

The March 20th Column of "Brockett's Ag Advice" was of great interest to me. In it he suggested farmers should "quit fighting to prevent imports," and, instead, fight to impose on those imports the same standards of cleanliness, constant inspection, purity and handling as United States producers must meet.

Since 1975 National Farmers Union has had policy stating "All imported meats and dairy products should be required to meet the same or equivalent sanitation and quality standards applied to farms, storage, transportation, and processing as those which are enforced upon producers and processors in the United States."

It was very encouraging to know John Brockett agrees with Farmers Union members on this legislation that they have been working towards for many years.

OUR ENGINEERS WORRY AND FUSS OVER STAR-TRAC® UNLOADERS SO YOU WON'T HAVE TO.

We've received hundreds of testimonials over the years for Starline® unloaders. Most of them have one thing in common: They mention the dependability and longevity they've come to expect from their Starline unloaders. That's no accident.

When our engineers designed and produced the new ring drive Star-trac unloaders, they studied each minute detail carefully. And they've never stopped making improvements. Result: A Star-trac unloader has more important features and benefits than any other unloader on the market. It's more efficient. It's more trouble-free. It takes up less room at the top of the silo. It's easier to handle. It's durable. And it's powerful.

So, if you're ready for a new unloader, take a close look at Star-trac. No matter how critical you are as a buyer, you're not half as critical as our engineers.

We wouldn't have it any other way.

For complete details about the Star-trac unloader that's correct for your silo, contact your Starline dealer, or call the Starline Branch Office listed below.

"Look at this: Easy one-man chute changes save labor. The 360 degree torque-arm rotation is standard on all Star-tracs and makes convenient winch location easy."
"This big 9' diameter drive ring provides extra stability and low for positive adv"
"Cantilevered walking pressure wheel and adjustable guide wheel keep Star-trac centered in the silo where it belongs. I like that."
"Here's one of our exclusives! The unique, patented offset tri-arm package allows for extra room to store more tons of feed. Makes the competition green with envy! On top of that we've provided extra wide 3-point cable suspension for greater stability."
"This massive auger shaft coupled without a joint eliminates whip and vibration, so it produces a smoother, quieter, more efficient operation and virtually eliminates gear box failure."
"You can also have rigid or swinging paddles by simply removing a bolt and each paddle can be adjusted individually. Not only that, there's easy access to the impeller for quick adjustment or removal."
"Just what we've always needed! Man look at the size of that large chipper wheel and the replacement blades that shave silo walls clean!"
"This baby has positive auger arm advancement regardless of silage surface and that's assured by our free floating drive!"

Cold snaps nip Md. fruit in bud

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Sub-zero temperatures on Jan. 19 killed many fruiting buds on peach trees throughout western Maryland, and a below-freezing cold snap on the nights of April 8 and 9 nipped some of the early-blooming peaches in southern Maryland and the Eastern Shore.

The pre-Easter cold front also wiped out most of the apricot and sweet cherry crop in home gardens in central Maryland. And it may also have hit hard on gooseberries and other early-blooming bush fruits.

But the over-all effect of the double-barreled cold-weather shock was probably more beneficial than harmful for central Maryland peach growers, noted Christopher S. Walsh, Extension fruits specialist and assistant professor of horticulture at the University of Maryland in College Park.

Walsh explained that "even with 30 to 50 percent of the flower buds killed, you can still have a good peach crop. In fact, the cold weather this winter and spring will save commercial growers some expense of bud thinning."

He notes that—next to apples—peaches are by far the most important tree fruit crop in Maryland. They are also much more susceptible to cold weather damage than apples are.

Heaviest peach damage this past winter occurred on weaker trees and those in exposed locations, the Maryland Extension specialist reported. The extreme cold temperatures also caused some trunk splitting.

Blake and Loring trees, the least hardy peach varieties, suffered almost total fruit bud kill this past winter in the western panhandle of the state, where most of the commercial orchards are located. Early-blooming peaches probably were hit hardest by the early April cold weather on the Eastern Shore.

Other than peaches and apricots, Walsh said there appears to have been little cold-weather damage to fruit trees and small fruits this year in Maryland. Possible exceptions might be isolated instances of damage to thornless blackberries and to early bloomers like gooseberries and certain cherry varieties.

Rutts fight inflation with finger-tip feeding

BY DONNA TOMELLEO

PEACH BOTTOM — Efficiency, according to a dictionary, is performing in the best possible or least wasteful manner. Webster described it. Jeff Rutt, a Peach Bottom dairyman practices it, everyday.

About four years ago, the young dairyman purchased his 200-acre farm from his father Ken and has since revamped the management program which includes the latest addition of a sophisticated computer feeding system.

"I've always been interested in feeding cows to make them more efficient," Rutt explained. And with space-age technology, the dairyman can adjust a cows daily intake with the touch of a button.

The two feeders, located in the free-stall, have eliminated feeding in the barn during milking, said Rutt. But perhaps more importantly the FarmTronix system has eliminated waste.

Shortly after he purchased the farm, Rutt bought a mixer wagon so that he could offer his herd a complete mixed ration. His feeding program consisted of two bunks, one for the higher producing early lactation cows and one for the tailenders. Both bunks contained a total mixed ration of corn silage, haylage, high moisture corn. However, the rations differed in that the high producers were offered a diet with a greater concentrate to forage ratio.

In addition, the rations, fed during milking were top-dressed with a 24 percent protein supplement. But he could see shortcomings with just the two bunk system.

"Some cows were getting too much from the bunk and the high producers couldn't get enough and couldn't eat fast enough during milking," he noted.

The two bunks still remain, the high producers on one side, the late lactation group on the other. But of the 95-cow herd, 60 milkers now wear yellow tags or transponders which automatically cue the metal feeders to throw down the exact amount of feed that Rutt has programmed.

When the transponder touches the white plate beneath the automatic feeder, a measure of feed is instantly dropped before her. If a cow has finished her daily allotment before a new feeding period begins she is treated to an empty bin.

In just a few seconds, Jeff Rutt can change a cow's daily intake, ask for a complete report, find out what cow is feeding at that very moment and determine what cow or cows may be off feed. The Peach Bottom dairyman estimates that the computer will save him about $13,500 a year in feed costs.

The feeders contain an 18 percent cracked corn concentrate. A high producer, making 100 pounds of milk a day, is treated to about 25 pounds of the concentrate a day. Throughout her lactation, the amount is adjusted. When decreasing a cow's ration, Rutt gradually lowers the level she's permitted to eat.

With the use of DHIA sheets, Rutt can determine lactation peaks and cuts. For example, if a cow needs a four pound concentrate decrease, Rutt will program the computer to decrease a pound every other day as opposed to an all-at-once slash.

Pushing a pencil, Rutt estimated the system will save him approximately $13,500 in feed costs a year. Further calculations showed the computer will pay for itself in about 9 months.

And the system has other advantages that won't show up on paper. Every 24 hours, the small computer kicks out a status report. Eyeballing the report, Rutt can determine cows that may be off feed which could be an indication of a health problem.

Rutt can also ask the computer for an on-the-spot report. A few button-punching seconds later, and the computer "tattles" on what cow is at the feeders at that vary moment, how much she has eaten so far and how much she's allowed all day.

At Rutt's grade-Holstein dairy, the computer goes to work at 7 p.m. everyday. That begins the reporting period. If a cow is allowed to eat 20 pounds a day and by 4 p.m. she's consumed all 20, she has to wait three more hours before the new day begins.

The computer also has a check and balance system. If something is amiss, the warning letters, S-O, appear on the screen. In their four months as computer owners, the Rutts have yet to see an S-O.

But what the Peach Bottom dairyman said he's noticed since installing the computer is that high producers are peaking at higher levels and holding longer. The Rutts have been on Owner-Sampler milk testing since October 1981, so it will be a few months before the herd establishes a rolling herd average.

Although pleased with his computerized management tool, Rutt explained that like any management tool, one has to make it work.

"You can't just go buy a computer and expect things to happen," he said.

And making things happen, is what interests this efficiency-minded dairyman.

Soon after buying his father's farm, Rutt revamped the 30-stall barn. He converted 15 stalls into a type of parlor. Seven individual spigots stand between every other stall. The Rutts run 15 units, each with an automatic takeoff. The harvested milk travels to the adjacent milkhouse via a stainless steel pipeline.The remaining 15 stalls are used for treatment and breeding.

To further save on the high cost of dairy farming, Rutt's haylage

Jeff and Suzanne Rutt take a moment from their busy schedule to relax with a couple of four-legged friends. The calf is a daughter of Kingway Elevation Very, a bull that figures heavily into the Rutt's breeding program and the rather large Saint Barnard answers to "Trooper."

Sporting the latest in feeding transponders—the number 10 tag—around her neck, this big Black and White has a daily allotment of 18 pounds of feed from the computerized system.

Rutts

and silage fields are custom chopped and silos filled.

"The way interest rates are today, buying equipment you don't need is foolish," he noted.

With the money the couple can save on an efficient operation, Jeff remarked that he'd like to invest in buying better semen. Because of his free-stall operation, Rutt expressed interest in selecting for feet and legs, as well as PD$, PDM and a special emphasis on PD percent for test.

Currently, the Peach Bottom dairyman does all his own breeding and has used Very, Rotate and Samuel to name a few top Holstein sires.

The bulls' offspring are managed by Rutt's wife Suzanne. No stranger to dairying, Suzanne was raised on a dairy farm in Quarryville and said she is pleased with the progress of their calves in hutches. Even getting through this winter, she noted, was no problem.

After the calves initial bellyfull of colustrum, Suzanne starts the babies out on half whole milk and half milk replacer twice a day. The young Holsteins are offered hay and calf grower as soon as possible, Jeff added.

Jeff, also, is no stranger to dairying. Although his present farm, Buttonwood Creek, has been his home since he was 12, Rutt had a chance to live on a dairy in Costa Rica for a year before moving to Peach Bottom.

His father had applied for a job as a farm manager. The Costa Rican dairy was inefficient, recalled Jeff, and his father stepped in as efficiency expert.

Besides the obvious climate differences, Jeff noted that the 20-head Costa Rican herd was milked by hand. In addition, it took 25 people to maintain the farm. One of the first things Jeff's father did was order a tractor to replace the existing oxen power. The workers also cut all the feed by hand. At the end of a year, the Rutts headed back to the U.S. leaving an improved, more efficient Costa Rican dairy, Jeff remembered.

For his own farm, Jeff said his goals are to become efficient enough to keep production levels substantial so that he and Suzanne can take time off to enjoy life.

While Jeff is an avid softball player in the summer, both he and Suzanne enjoy getting away to water and snow ski.

And a more efficient operation would also give the Rutts more time for their church, Mechanic Grove Church of the Brethren.

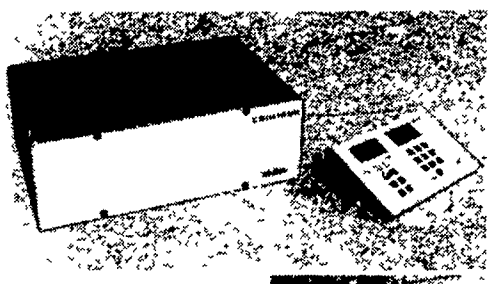
"I really believe that part of farming," Jeff said, "is having a positive attitude and trusting God for the necessary strength."

WESTFALIA

For Progress In Milking Technology Introduces:

CODATRON - The Westfalia Feeding & Control System For All Dairy Herds

- Individual dispensing of concentrate feed in the slatted unit
- Choice of one or two types of feed
- Maximum ration limit at all intervals
- Savings in concentrate feed
- Higher milk yields
- Time-saving feeding
- Higher butterfat content in the milk
- Better physical condition of the cows
- Cow calendar



Model F-26

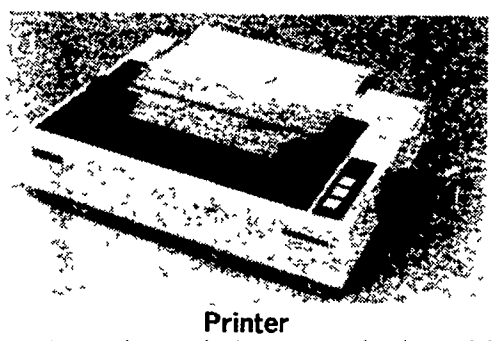
- CODATRON feed program with 24-hour cycle (24 intervals)
- Input and readout of feed amounts in lbs
- Maximum amount limit in each interval
- Simple checking of problem cows (more than 9% residual feed)
- Stored data preserved in the event of power failure
- Optional automatic or manual start of the feeding program

Automatic Feeder

The feeders are of stainless steel, durable and easily cleaned The feeder comprises a housing with feed inlet feeding trough and transmitter/receiver unit The transmitter/receiver unit is mounted at the front of the trough

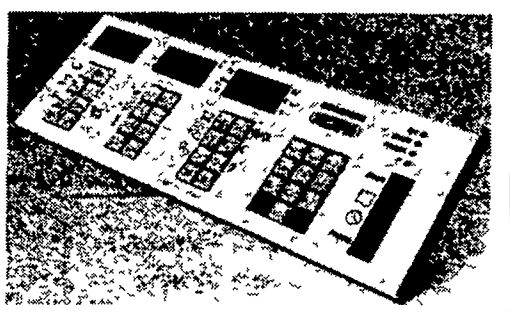
- Feeding program extensible to max 999 cows
- Connections for up to 26 automatic feeders
- Printer connection
- Choice of one or two types of feed
- Additional reading of
  - contents of silo tank
  - daily consumption
  - daily consumption per feeding box

  (for all types of feed)
- A percental increase or reduction of the daily feed ration can be implemented for the whole herd (changes in the quality of the feed)



Printer

A printer can be supplied on request for the models F 26 and L which prints out the data stored in the central computer either automatically or on request The printer is a useful extension to the cow calendar and is practically indispensable for herd management Uses standard 8½' x11' computerized paper not an adding machine type paper



Model L

- Cow calendar
  - input of calving date
  - rutting-season and with calving time control
  - determination of lactation stage
  - input of date of dry time
  - start of concentrate feeding before calving
- The control panel already has the functions for milking parlour operation (storage of the various data for each cow)

Grange Week banquet

Grange support in Noxious Weed law passage

BY SHEILA MILLER

GRANTVILLE — Grangers, legislators, state officials and assorted guests, including the state's dairy princess Charlene Rohrer, filled the banquet hall here at the Holiday Inn Monday evening to celebrate Grange Week 1982, officially designated by Governor Thornburgh as April 18-24.

In its second successful year, this special banquet attracted more than 300 Grangers from across Pennsylvania, along with 30 state representatives, including House Ag Committee Chairman Joseph Grieco, Vice Chairman Noah Wenger, and committee members William Lloyd, Walter DeVerter, Edwin Johnson, Roger Madigan, and William Klingaman, Sr.

It was an evening of introductions as State Master Charles Wismer welcomed members of the newly formed Elizabethtown Grange and Lancaster County's newest Master, Kenneth Myers.

One of the highlights of the evening occurred when Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Penrose Hallowell assisted House Majority Leader Sam Hayes (R-Blair) in presenting a framed pen to Master Wismer. The pen had been used recently by Governor Dick Thornburgh in signing into law House Bill 1429, the Noxious Weed bill sponsored by Hayes.

Hallowell commended the Grange's support for this legislation during its lengthy struggle for passage.

As he presented the commemorative pen, Hayes shared his concern about noxious vegetation, such as multiflora rose, taking farmland out of production. He noted how these weeds cost the state hundreds of acres of valuable land each year. Now, with the Noxious Weed law and the committee it creates, farmers and landowners will be working together with the state to rid themselves of nuisance vegetation.

George Steele

Agway, Inc., challenged the Grange members to look at their organization "from the inside out."

Steele was well-qualified to encourage this self-examination, having been a member of the Grange for almost 50 years. He served as Overseer (vice president) of the State Grange from 1956-62. Prior to that appointment, Steele served as the State Steward from 1952-56. He is a member of the Brandywine Grange, Chester County.

"I'm concerned about the path ahead," said Steele. "We have to make sure the Grange has not trod the same path so much that it has become a rut."

He asked the Grangers to decide if they are an agricultural organization, a rural organization, a fraternal society, or all three. He encouraged them to welcome new generations of farmers along with new rural residents; to examine their time-worn rituals; and to be willing to make changes.

One of the areas where change is needed, said Steele, is in the Grange's visibility. He stressed that the public sees the organization as "ultra-conservative" and old-fashioned. Steele recommended that the Grange "stay conservative" but add a more modern image.

The former Overseer challenged the Grange to become more volatile, more flexible. "We need the unchangeable base and solid principles of the Grange," he said. "But like the Phillies, we need to get off base to score."

Steele suggested the Grange become more versatile, broadening its horizons in the realms of membership and services. However, he cautioned, "Don't dilute the Grange by trying to be all things to all people."

He also warned against "sweetening the pill" when it becomes necessary to be the "bearer of bad news." He said the Grange must give farmers valid, truthful facts and allow farmers to make the right decisions.

"Vacuity" is another problem the Grange must face, noted Steele. He explained the organization must lean away from the bad habit of making "foolish remarks" like the panacea of agriculture without government.

"The government has always

As Corinne legacy continues

Mowry Farms reaches for constant improvement

BY PATTY GROSS
Staff Correspondent

ROARING SPRING — It's springtime in Bedford County, which means the busy season is underway at Mowry Farms, the home of 500 registered Holsteins.

Like most farmers, Kenneth Mowry is looking forward to a productive season. The combination of fertile Morrisons Cove soil and the Mowry family history should help make 1982 a good year.

But as good years come and go, great years seem to stay in the mind forever. In 1974, the world was treated to the first 50,000 pound cow — Mowry Prince Corinne. In memory of the famed Holstein, who died in her 12th year, the sign that welcomes visitors to Mowry Farms reads, "Home of the World Record Cow."

Ken admits top producers require hard work but duplicating another Corinne, who was sired by homebred bull Mowry Ivanhoe Prince, is unlikely

"It's a rare thing," says the quiet, but proud dairyman.

Mowry's son Ron, 25, was in high school when the eye of the dairy world was upon Mowry Farms. The young Mowry echoes his father's sentiments.

"It's tough to get one and we don't expect another," Ron says

Since Corinne's achievement, only one other cow, an Indiana Holstein, has reached the 50,000 pound mark, notes Ken.

In her first lactation, Corinne made 18,000 pounds of milk and scored Very Good 88. But by 1974, as a 9-year-old, she made 44,144 pounds of milk and 1,360 pounds of fat in 305 days on twice a day milking. She completed the lactation in 365 days and finished with her famed 50,759 pounds of milk and 1,548 pounds of fat. She also had improved her classification with a score of 2E-92.

Her sire, Gold Medal sire Mowry Ivanhoe Prince, was an Osborndale Ivanhoe son from Ridge Side Lucifer Polly (EX-92). She was by reknown sire Lauxmont Lucifer.

And although Corinne is no longer around, the 50,000-pound producer is still paying off. Her only daughter Princess Corinne, by Bootmaker, is the national leader for milk and holds the breed's highest index for milk at +3,003 with a +$358 value.

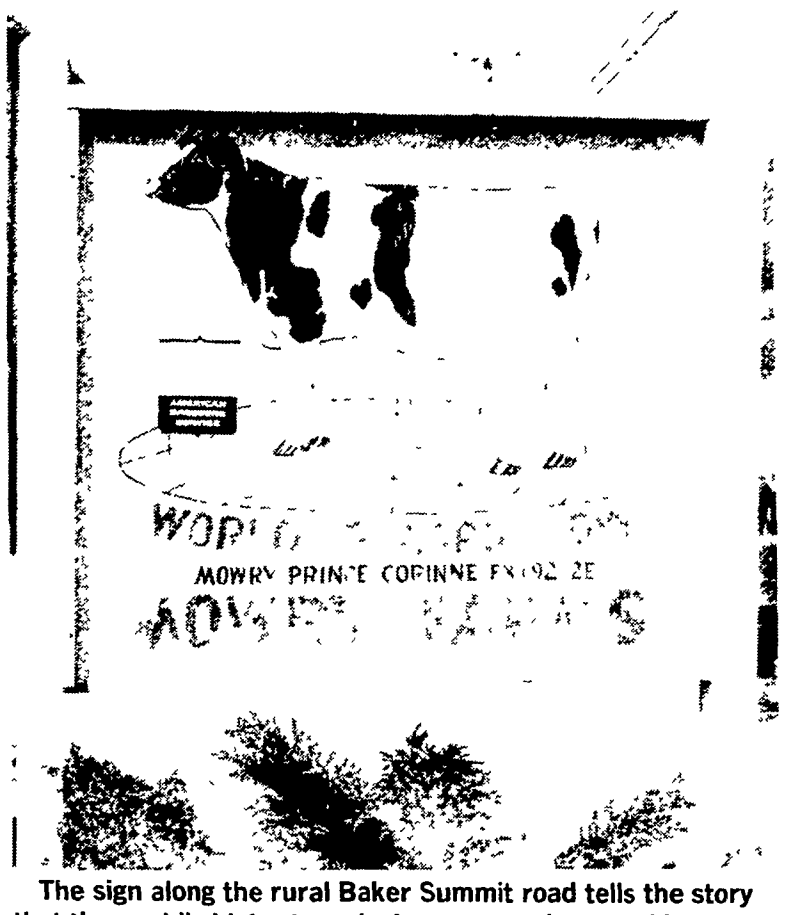
Mowry bred Princess Corinne to S-W-D Valiant and in April 1981, she produced a bull calf from a four pregnancy superovulation. The bull — Mowry-K Corinne Premier-ET, went on to become the second highest selling Holstein bull of 1981.

One of the top 10 sales in Holstein society, the World Premiere Sale,

(Turn to Page A25)

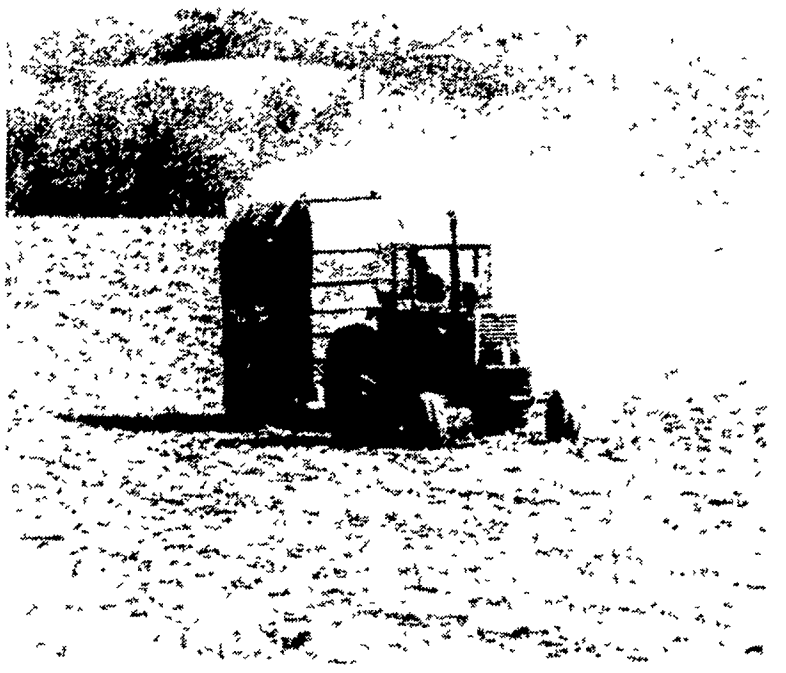
Ken Mowry of Roaring Spring, has earned a niche in Holstein history with the breed's first 50,000 pounds cow—Mowry Prince Corinne. The veteran farmer admits that while he's constantly working on improving production, a 50,000 pound producer is a once in a lifetime accomplishment.

Ron and Ken take a break from spring chores to have a father-son chat. Ron represents the third generation of Mowry's to farm the family's dairy operation.



The sign along the rural Baker Summit road tells the story that the world's highest producing cow was born and bred at Mowry Farms.

June is dairy month



Springtime finds Ron Mowry on a tractor, stacking corn fodder for bedding. The Mowry's 650 acres include 300 acres in corn and 150 in alfalfa.

Mowry Farms was purchased more than 60 years ago by Ken Mowry's father Clarence. The farm, which is comprised of a series of farms, now expands across 650 acres of prime Bedford County land.

Mowry Farms

was held in Madison, Wisconsin in October 1981. Mowry's young bull, the first animal from the Corinne family ever offered at public sale, commanded $185,000 and was purchased by Delta G, a California-based breeding organization.

Ken says that $185,000 is the most he has received for a bull. The Roaring Spring dairyman admits he is generally pleased with the money his cattle bring.

"However, you can always get more," he's quick to add.

His attitude for constant improvement is reflected toward his herd. The 200 milking Holsteins maintain a rolling herd average of 17,500 pounds of milk, results that most dairy producers would enjoy.

"I'm never satisfied," says Ken, admitting they can probably do bettter. It's uncommon for the Mowrys to buy animals as most of the herd is homebred.

A lot of confidence is put into the Mowry breeding program. Recently, embryo transplants have played an important part, such as the one which produced the $185,000 bull.

The feeding program is also given top priority. It isn't hard to have a productive dairy operation when farming the land in Morrisons Cove. Ken says he honestly thinks that it is the best.

"I've heard that there is more milk per acre shipped from this area than anywhere else," he remarks.

The herd is fed high moisture shell corn. Ken says it's usually necessary to buy some hay and shell corn to supplement their 300 acres of corn and 150 acres of alfalfa hay. A combination of silage piles and four silos store forage for the high producing herd.

However, more milk is on Mowry's mind for a different reason.

Increased promotion would help the milk surplus situation, says Ken, who is a Holstein State Director, a member of the Bedford County Holstein Club and the Pennsylvania Farmers Association.

"Things are bad, but I don't think they're as bad as they make them sound," he explains. The veteran farmer admits however, that farmers have seen better days.

"Interest rates are what's killing us," he says.

It's a different story for young people who want to farm.

"It's near impossible," Mowry contends while son Ron agrees. Ron admits that he made it into farming because of the family farm.

Years of experience is the backbone of the Mowry operation. Clarence Mowry, Ken's father, purchased the family farm in the 1920's. Since then, it has expanded to 650 acres and includes several farms. Clarence still lives in the farmhouse and does his share of the farm errands.

Ken expects to see his dairy operation remain in the family for a long time. On the Mowry farm everyone is important. His oldest sons Steve, 29 and Ron have a major role in the business. Mowry explains that his youngest son Robert, 12, also enjoys the farm. Mowry's wife Shirley and daughter Susie, 10 pitch in whenever the need arises. In addition, six hired men round out the work force.

"There's enough farm and everyone has lots to say about it," Mowry laughs.

The farm office is filled with trophies and the walls are devoted to pictures of prize-winning cattle. Fourteen herd members are pictured for breaking state or national records and that's only a portion of the best.

The Mowry Farm career which has earned the numerous trophies, awards and records seems impossible to top. But based on what the close family has already accomplished, the future is just another hurdle to clear.

An easy-going Ken explains, "We always have goals...we always try to improve."

At 9 years and 8 months, Mowry Prince Corinne (2E-92) finished a 365 day lactation with a world record 50,579 pounds of milk and 1,548 pounds of fat. Shortly after she made her record in 1974, the great brood cow passed away. Her only daughter, Mowry-C Princess Corinne continued the legacy and is currently the breed's highest indexed cow for milk.—Photo courtesy of Holstein World.

Demonstration features terrace plow & no-till seeder

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

ELIZABETHTOWN — The land lab plots utilized by Elizabethtown FFA members for their crop projects received a face-lifting on Wednesday.

The reshaping of the undulating land, which falls away from the location of the Elizabethtown Fair ag events, was done with a terrace plow – newest implement on the market designed to aid conservation-minded farmers.

Several terraces were built across the 28-acre site, which last year contained student corn and tobacco plots and even a special squash project. Students, some farmers and conservation personnel gathered to watch the shaping of the terraces, which were laid out by the Soil Conservation Service.

The plow, manufactured by Amco and provided by Hamilton Equipment, Ephrata, is essentially twin gangs of disc blades, which flare out in a V-shape.

The operator follows the surveyor's line on the first pass, with the 26-inch disc blades of both wings of the plow knifing through the ground and rolling it toward the center to form the crest of the terrace.

In succeeding passes, the hydraulically-operated wings are used alternately to shape and form the terrace to the desired specifications.

The tractor, which was supplied by Messick Equipment, Elizabethtown, provides not only the power but also serves to firm the terrace. It's recommended that tractor size should be 165 to 225 pto horsepower for the plow, which weighs more than a ton and a half.

Terrace construction capacity of the plow is cited by the manufacturer at 1,000 feet an hour. On Wednesday, a slower rate of construction was achieved due to the short terrace layout, which required many turns, and wetness that somewhat hampered the rolling of the ground by the plow.

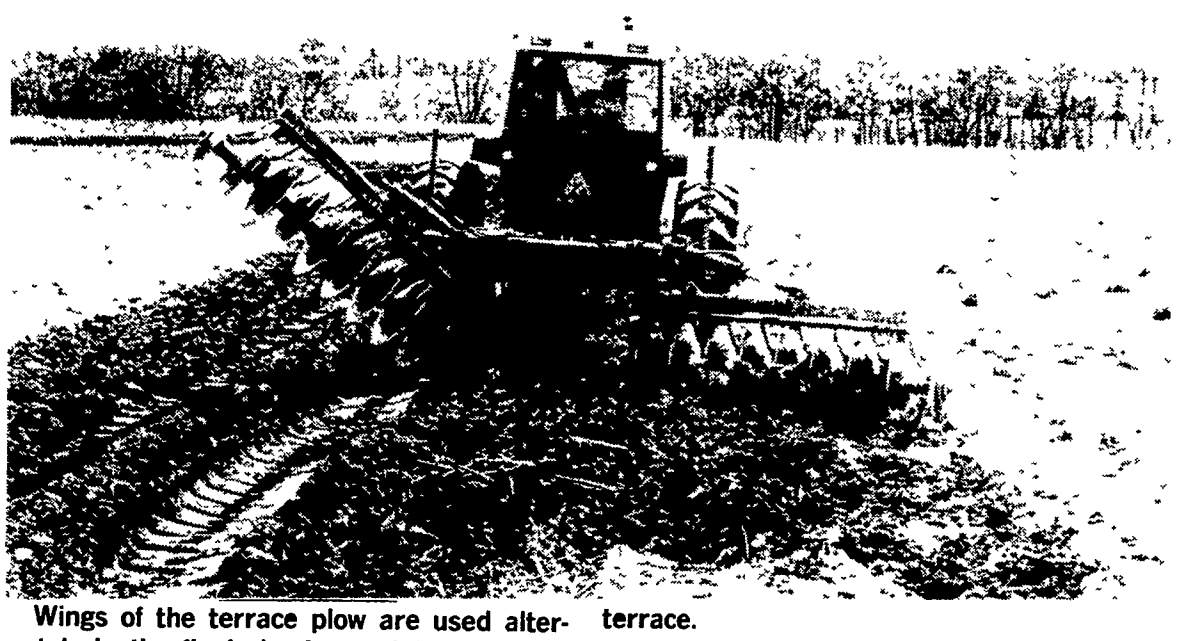
In its first pass through field, terrace plow moves ground toward center, building the crest of the terrace.

No-till seeding was also demonstrated at Elizabethtown with this Haybuster unit planting alfalfa in a corn stubble field.



Wings of the terrace plow are used alternately in the final shaping and forming of a terrace.

Speed through the field, which also affects the rolling of the ground to form the terrace, was not up to the desired 5 to 7 miles per hour.

The plow is equipped with two 4-inch by 16-inch hydraulic cylinders to control gang tilt angle, which is adjustable while on-the-go from 18 degrees down to 43 degrees up. The changing of the angles is varied in succeeding passes to shape the terrace and to conform to different slopes and soil conditions.

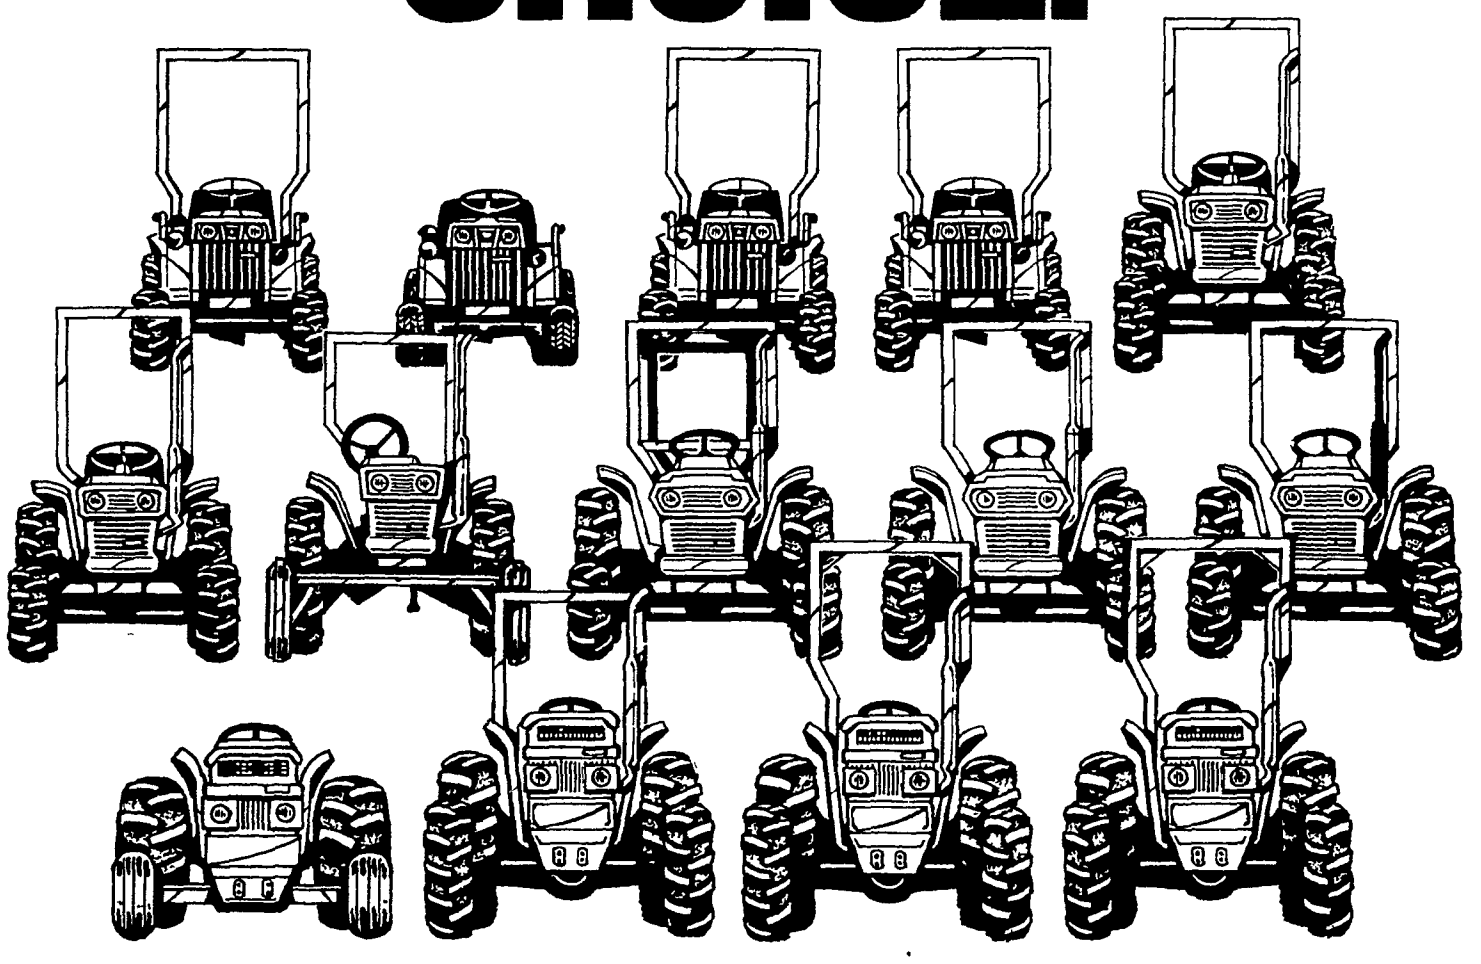
The plow also can be used to refurbish old terraces.

The unit retails for just under $6,000.

In seeding demonstrations, C.B. Hoober and Son, Intercourse provided a Haybuster no-till drill. Seed was provided by Pioneer and Hoffman Seeds.

Among the seeding projects was alfalfa in a corn stubble field and the interseeding of a sod waterway, which runs down through the middle of the plots, with tall fescue.

FIELDER'S CHOICE.



Kubota's got the field covered when it comes to mid-size tractors. With so many models to choose from, ranging from 12 to 81 hp, you're sure to find one that'll be at home on your range.

Of course, the tractors vary in strength and capabilities, but they're all designed to work with a variety of implements. And each one features the economical, fuel-efficient Kubota diesel engine.

Take a look. Given the choice, we think you'll choose Kubota.

Early anthracnose means later stalk problems

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. — Anthracnose fungus, an increasingly significant disease in the eastern Corn Belt, may occur during extended rainy weather in the spring or later in the growing season after pollination.

"Watch for signs of the fungus when corn plants are about six inches tall," says Mike Turner, senior pathologist with Funk Seeds International. "The leaf blight stage of anthracnose appears as yellow or yellow-bordered lesions ¼ to ½ inch in diameter, generally on the lower leaves.

"The presence of these early lesions, though not very damaging, may indicate trouble when the weather turns damp again in early fall," he continues. "At that time narrow, tan to reddish-brown, vertical or oval lesions appear on stalks, darkening with age. They can grow together into a large blotchy area and result in stalk rot."

Turner adds that early infection can also open corn plants to other stalk rot organisms, which cause serious lodging problems. "The most effective control for anthracnose comes with resistant hybrids," he says. "Also, clean fall plowing and crop rotation may reduce severity of the disease."

A September 1981 Shadewell Fascinator out of Rocky Hill Debbie Rockal was struck off to Walebe Farms, Collegeville, Pa. for $9000 to be the fourth high selling animal sold in the Third Waverly Invitational.

Waverly Invitational

Valentino who is the top selling bull at auction in the Jersey breed. Valentino sold in the 1981 All-American Sale for $72,000.

In this seedstock sale of the breed, the bidding was fast and furious on the top-selling cow of the sale, W.F. Quicksilver Tansy VG-89 percent with credits of 2-04 365 days 13,473 pounds milk 4.9 percent and 662 pounds of fat. Consigned by Waverly Farm, Clearbrook, Va. this Quicksilver daughter sold fresh and open for a final bid of $10,000 to the Tansy Syndicate, Blacksburg, Va.

Just missing the five figure mark was a September 1981 Shadewell Fascinator consigned by W.T. Howell, Rockey Hill Jersey Farm, Fort Payne, Al. Hailed as being from the highest producing family of the breed, Rocky Hill Rockal Facinator, out of Rocky Hill Debbie Rockal with nine consecutive records · over 20,000, sold for $9,000 to join other members of the family already at Walebe Farms.

Two unborn embryos also sold well above the sale average. C.W. and C.L. Lutz, Mocksville, N.C. paid $5,100 for an unborn embryo sired by Briarcliffs Black Magic and out of Master Beauty Candy, EX-92 percent, Hall of Fame and Grand Champion.

The second embryo sold for $4,000 to Walebe Farms. Consigned by Waverly Farms, the embryo was sired by Milestone Master C and is out of W.F. Samson Shasta, EX 91 percent and All-American 2 year Old 1980.

Ten units of semen from S.S. Quicksilver of Fallneva brought $140 per unit and five units of Favorite Generator were struck off at $125 per unit. The sale averaged $3,141 on 50 head.

Others consigning to the sale from Pennsylvania included Robert & Helene Dreisbach, Hamburg; Mark & Karla Dreisbach, Hamburg; Spring Run Farm, New Wilmington; and Vantage Jerseys, Fredonia.

Topping the Third Waverly Invitational Sale was Walebe High Value ET selling for $19,000 to a syndicate and Tri-State Breeders Co-op. This was the first time a bull has been sold in this sale. Left to right: Earl Waltemyer, Cindy Waltemyer, Walebe Farms, consignor; and Robert Lord, representing the syndicate.

Lot #57, a November 1981 Joys Count daughter sold in the Third Waverly International for $600. Consigned by the Robert Stiles Family and purchased by Cedarcrest Farms, Al., the proceeds of this heifer were donated to the American Jersey Cattle Club to be used one half for EQUITY and one half for the RESEARCH FOUNDATION.

The highest selling female of the Waverly Invitational, Walebe Hi-Power Valerie ET. This August heifer was bred and consigned by Walebe Farms, Inc., Collegeville, Pa. and sold for $11,000 to the Valerie Syndicate.

Gov't talks give momentum to export policies

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Following a briefing by a top U.S.D.A. official, U.S. Senator Roger Jepson (R-Iowa) said this week's talks in Ottawa, Canada between grain exporting countries will provide "more momentum in our efforts to rebuild America's farm economy."

"This will be an opportunity to work out our trade differences and to tell the world that America once again is a ready, willing and reliable grain supplier," Jepson said.

The meeting in Ottawa, Canada will include representatives from the United States, Canada, Australia, Argentina and the European Common Market. They are the first high-level talks among the nations in a year and a half. The United States will be represented by Undersecretrary of Agriculture Seeley Lodwick of Wever, Iowa.

The countries at the meeting all have a common interest in selling grain on the world market, but there are some problems as well," Jepsen said. "The meetings provide a forum for working out those problems to everyone's benefit."

Jepsen said some issues will include the proposed European tariff on American corn gluten and the Common Market grain export subsidies. In addition, the United States will note that it is the only country which maintains grain stockpiles while at the same time encouragers acreage reduction [illegible] to guard against a grain glut.

"There will be a lot said at this conference about 'fair trade,'" Jepsen said. "And although we may not get all the problems solved, everyone is at least sitting down face to face to work on them, and that's a good sign for farmers in Iowa, Australia or Europe."

Herbicide-impregnated fertilizer controls weeds on no-till mulches

NEWARK, Del. — Cover crops that produce thick mulches in no-tillage corn fields may cut the performance of some herbicides that are applied as spray treatments. One solution is to use fertilizer instead of water as the herbicide carrier.

University of Delaware Extension agronomist William Mitchell has been testing this "weed and feed" approach for the past two years. He says results show that, in general, herbicides impregnated on dry bulk fertilizer give the same consistent week control as spray applications. In some cases, using fertilizer as a carrier has an advantage.

Combining broadcast fertilizer and weed control chemical applications in a single treatment cuts down on trips over the field and the hauling of water— both of which require extra energy. A less obvious advantage is that fertilizer filters down through heavy mulches, carrying the herbicide to the soil. It's at or near the soil surface that weed control action takes place.

In contrast, herbicides that are sprayed on mulches remain inactive until they're washed off by rain and come in contact with the soil and germinating weed seeds. Mulches on the soil surface conserve soil moisture, whether they consist of plant residues from previous crops or the remains of a winter annual cover such as vetch, peas, or small grains. Moist soil is essential for herbicide activity and effective week control

"Mulches and herbicide-coated fertilizer work well as a team," Mitchell says.

Some herbicides that have worked well when coated on fertilizer were Sutan+, Eptam, Lasso Bladex, and Atrazine. In the Dela. [illegible] trials, volatile materials that generally are considered useful only when mixed with the soil have shown good activity when applied via fertilizer without soil incorporation.

Bradford-Sullivan Farmers Assn. reaches 1,000 goal

By Jane Bresee
Staff Correspondent

ULSTER — It was "One Grand" meeting last Thursday when members of the Bradford-Sullivan County Farmers Association gathered in the Monroeton Fire Hall to celebrate the attainment of a membership of 1,000 farm families.

Carol Gore, president announced that for the first time in the history of the Bradford-Sullivan County Farmers Association 1,000 members had been obtained. He gave credit to Milford Kinsman, membership chairman who stated that many people had worked together to reach that mark.

Gore displayed the Silver Plowman trophy given to him in February when membership in the bi-county organization had 25 members over goal. The Silver Plowman award is the first such award given by the PFA.

Keith Eckel, Pennsylvania Farmers Association president, presented two King Pin awards for signing up ten or more new members to Ralph Bouse, and Phil Tangemen. Donald Brown, who signed 30 new members, was unable to be present.

Rep. Roger Madigan, R-Bradford presented Milford Kinsman with an award for "his dedicated efforts on behalf of agriculture." The award was a framed pen used by Governor Thornburgh when signing Act 920 into law.

The idea for the law was the "epitome of grass roots policy", Madigan said " Kinsman had realized the need for manure storage structures to be exempt from taxation, and had worked toward getting it into law through the policy development process of PFA."

Keith Eckel, featured speaker, began his address by stating that the voting delegates at the annual meeting of the PFA voted to take responsibility for telling the story of agriculture to the non-farm public so that these people understand why agriculture, the number one industry in the state, should be preserved.

The success of a free-profit agriculture economy in Pennsylvania is as dependent on the ability of the farmer to market as his ability to produce, Eckel maintained. He cited the milk referendum as a prime example of the responsibility of farmers to market their own product.

Eckel predicted a dramatic loss of dairy farmers if the cost of milk should drop suddenly to control the surplus. PFA, he said, will work with the milk co-ops to come up with a program to maintain a good price for 90 percent of the product.

Expansion of Trade with Foreign markets is another important goal of the American Farm Bureau, Eckel continued, and spoke about the trip of Farm Bureau officials to Japan and to the Common Market Countries in Western Europe.

Eckel concluded by congratulating the farm group for the work with the Clean and Green values in Bradford County, and for their Energy Group.

Milford Kinsman, left, of Bradford County, is awarded a pen used by Governor Thornburgh when signing Act 920 into law. Kinsman originated the idea for the law exempting manure structures from taxation. Rep. Roger Madigan presented the award.

NEDCO meetings feature changing industry

AARONSBURG — An overview of the critical dairy situation and some suggested solutions, along with the Dairy Price Support Program will be the major topics of discussion by Directors of Northeast Dairy Cooperative Federation, Inc , and its member cooperatives including Lewisburg and Cen-Pen

The meeting will be held at the Aaronsburg Community Hall, Aaronsburg, Pa., Thursday, April 29, starting at 8 p.m. The session will be open to all dairy farmers in the area

Speakers at the meeting will be Leon Musser, Lewisburg, Pa., NEDCO Director, and Arthur Little, NEDCO Economist.

This meeting is one of a series of about 15 that are scheduled for New York and Pennsylvania under the sponsorship of NEDCO to provide an opportunity for all milk producers to become better informed about the changing dairy industry.

Insecticides are best rootworm control

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. — With the warm days of May and June come the hatching of corn rootworm egg masses, and virtually no corn-growing region of the country escapes this perennial pest.

The root-feeding larvae can cause yield reductions of 10 to 30 percent, says Gary Beland, entomologist with Funk Seeds International. "Later, adult rootworm beetles feed on corn pollen and silks, resulting in sparsely filled ears."

Effective control of rootworm larvae can be achieved with soil insecticides, he continues. "They may give 50 to 70 percent control of rootworm larvae, enough to prevent economic levels of damage in most fields."

Recommended insecticides, listed alphabetically, include Amaze, Counter, Dyfonate, Furadan, Lorsban, Mocap and Pinnmet. In addition to control of rootworm in the larval stage, adult beetle control can often be achieved during pollination with a well-timed application of an insecticide such as Seven 4 oil or XLR.

"This season, farmers who count at least one corn rootworm beetle per plant during weekly scouting between July and September, and who are planting corn after corn, should plan on using a soil insecticide again in 1983," Beland advises.

No-till makes legume seeding possible

LEESPORT — Farmers can establish a legume in pasture or permanent hayland without tilling the soil. says Duane E. Pysher, District Conservationist of the Soil Conservation Service.

"If no-till is used on a no-till system it is possible to do a legume seeding in a sod field," adds Pysher.

A no-till seeding offers many advantages to the farmer. It is a soil saving system because of the lack of tillage. It is a fuel and labor saving system. Seeding into an existing firm seedbed requires little or no time for stone removal.

A no-till forage seeding system involves several important key steps to insure a good stand. They include:

- A thorough checking of the lime and fertility levels of the soil and adding a required amendments according to a soil test.
- Determine the needed weed controls and follow chemical company recommendations.
- Proper use of chemicals as a sod suppresant.
- Properly adjust and operate the no-till seeder.
- Control any insects or pests as necessary.

For more information on no-till forage or small grain seedings contact the Soil Conservation Service or Berks County Cooperative Extension Service at the Berks County Agricultural Center located in Bern Township.

Rest of 1982 looks better for livestock producers

UNIVERSITY PARK — Times have been tough in the livestock industry since mid-1979. In the 30-month period from mid-1979 through December, 1981, cattle feeders turned a profit in only three months, while hog production was profitable in only five of those months. Despite the current deep recession, 1982 will be a much improved year for livestock producers. Cheap feed and a sharp cut in hog production will brighten the profitability picture in 1982.

More Feed at Lower Prices

Corn production in 1981 was a record 8.2 billion bushels. Production was up 23 percent from the 1980 drought-reduced crop, and 3 percent above the record previously set in 1979. The crop was double the 4-billion-bushel crop of 1970. Exports are expected to be down 8 percent from a year ago. Total domestic and export use will be slightly below use a year ago, despite the increase in production.

When the 1982 havest begins on October 1, the carry-over of corn is expected to exceed 2 billion bushels—a record. Even though much of the grain will be in the farmer-owned reserve program, the burden of the huge carry-over will weigh heavily on the market price of corn. Even if the 1982 growng season is less than ideal, little improvement in corn prices can be expected in the months ahead. The price of corn is currently about 25 percent below last years' level—providing cheap feed for livestock producers.

Fewer Hogs in 1982

The reduction in hog production which began late in 1981 is continuing this spring. On December 1, 1981, USDA reported that hog numbers were down 9 percent. The report for March 1, 1981, indicated that hog numbers were down 10 percent, and the breeding herd was 14 percent below the number a year ago. The pig crop was down 11 percent for the period December 1981 through February 1982. In addition, producers indicate that they will produce 14 percent fewer pigs in the period from March to May

The reduction in pork output is substantial enough to return most hog operations to profitable levels through all of 1982. Hog prices at major mid-western markets are about $50 per hundredweight, up a full $10 from the depressed levels of a year ago. Despite weakenen demand caused by the current recession, Pennsylvania producers will likely see hog prices exceed $55 per hundredweight at mid-year.

Recent experience with unprofitable operations and the high cost of borrowing should prompt producers to think before expanding their hog operations. Yet the old prophesy is likely to come ture in 1983, "cheap corn brings forth cheap hogs."

Slowing of Cattle Expansion

Expansion of beef cattle numbers continues, but at a much slower rate than anticipated. The January 1, 1982, cattle inventory was 115.7 million head, up 1 percent from a year ago and up 4 percent from 1980. A record high in cattle numbers was reached in 1975, when the herd totaled 132 million head. Expansion has been slowed because returns to cow-calf and feedlot operations have been very poor for over 2 years. Only in recent weeks has any optimism returned to the industry.

The reduction in hog numbers has reduced some of the competition provided by pork. At Omaha, fed-steer prices of about $68 are up $6 per hundredweight in the last half of 1981, most Pennsylvania cattle feeders are now covering all of their production costs. They have become more optimistic in recent weeks and have been bidding higher prices for replacement cattle. The price of feeder cattle has advanced about $5 in the last 2 months, and additional increases are expected in the next six weeks as more buyers enter the market to purchase cattle to utilize pastures. Thus, extra buyer competition is provided for the available supply of feeder cattle next spring.

American agriculture could face "chaotic bust"

WASHINGTON, D.C — U.S. Senator Howell Heflin (D-Ala.) told a Senate Subcommittee last Monday that American farm income is already at the depression point and that there will be no long term economic recovery until agriculture again becomes prosperous.

"Sky-high interest rates, higher and higher production costs, and depressed commodity prices imperil our entire agriculture system," Heflin told the Senate Agriculture Appropriations Subcommittee.

"American farmers face the threat of a chaotic bust which could plunge not only the American farmer, but our entire economy into a depression vastly deeper and more lasting than the Great Depression of the 1930s," Heflin warned.

"In fact, American farm income is already at the depression point."

Heflin said the vitality and prosperity of American agriculture is still the single most important factor of our nation's economic success. "The significance of a prosperous American agriculture cannot be overestimated," he said. "It is an indisputable fact that when our nation's largest industry—American agriculture—cannot pay its bills from current cash flow, the entire economy goes into a nose-dive just as we are experiencing today.

"Unless and until the farmers of this nation begin to again enjoy a measure of prosperity, our economy will not begin a long-term recovery," he said.

the company for the past five years. He and wife Jean, who are originally from Chester County, have been living in Lancaster County since 1970.

Lowell and Betty Koch represented the only non-Lancaster County poultryman to be honored by the industry last June. The Turkey Industryman of the Year and his wife are from Tamaqua, Schuylkill County. There, on their 400 acre farm, the Kochs breed, hatch, raise, and process about 200,000 birds a year. They've been in the turkey business for the past 28 years, and Koch termed 1981 one of the poorest years he can remember in the industry.

The Federation also honored several distinguished educators Thursday evening, including: Robert Eckroade, poultry pathologist, University of Pennsylvania; Joshua Feldstein, president, Delaware Valley College of Science and Agriculture; Kenneth Goodwin, head, Dept. of Poultry Science, Penn State; Sheldon Hackney, president, U. of Penn; I. Howard Kahan, poultry pathologist, D.V.C.; Dr. Robert Marshak, dean, School of Veterinary Medicine, U. of Penn; John W. Oswald, president, Penn State; and Samuel Smith, dean, College of Agriculture, Penn State

The Federation's 1982 top salesperson was Earl Birk of Pennfield Corporation. Also honored for exceptional sales were the following members of the Gold Feather Club: Jules Bauerman, Horace W. Longacre, Inc.; Thomas Bross, III, Round Hill Foods, Inc.; Galen Buckwalter, Lehman's Egg Service, Inc.; William Carlin, Hubbard Farms, Inc.; Jay Greider, Greider Farms, Inc.; Barbara Hash, Plain & Fancy Egg Ranch, Inc.; Cleve Hastings, Pennfield Corporation;

At The Farm Of

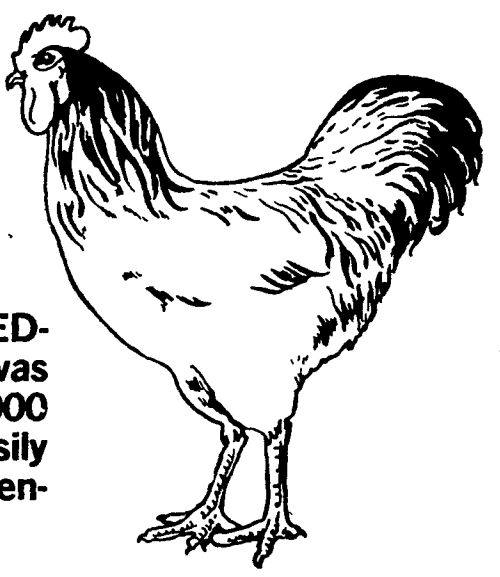
MR. and MRS. JOHN WOLGEMUTH

Mt. Joy, PA

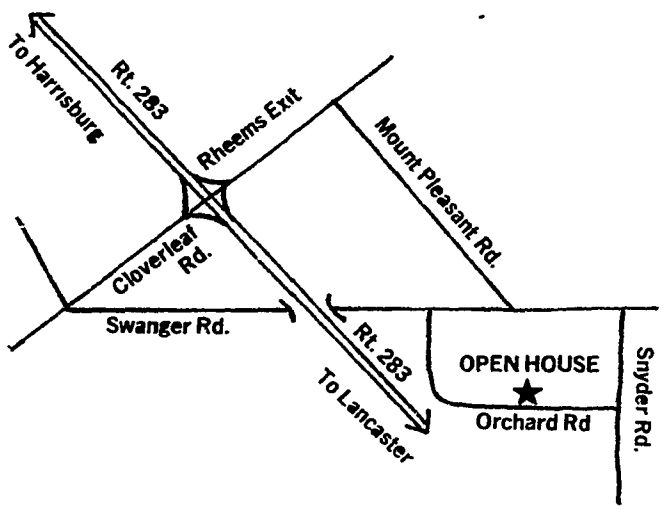
FRIDAY APRIL 30, 1982

9:00 A.M. to 4:00 P.M.

The Wolgemuth's recently converted their present poultry house into a more productive poultry laying house.



By installing a MELLER STACKED-CAGE SYSTEM, the bird capacity was increased from 20,000 birds to 36,000 birds. The manure is removed more easily and efficiently by dependable, maintenance free belts.



VISIT THE WOLGEMUTH'S ON FRIDAY TO SEE THE MELLER STACKED-CAGE SYSTEM AND THE LUBING LEAK PROOF DRINKERS.

REFRESHMENTS WILL BE SERVED

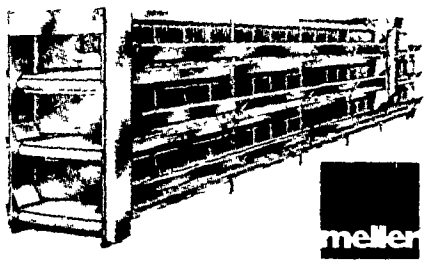
INCREASE YOUR BIRD CAPACITY WITHOUT CONSTRUCTING A NEW BUILDING



Install a Meller Stacked-Cage System for layers. With the rugged maintenance-free belts for the removing of the manure, the solid galvanized-steel cage system can be installed in any existing house.

For less worries and work, Meller Stacked-Cage Systems have a specially developed front lattice with the patented locking device. The egg traps are large enough to hold the egg production of two days. The stainless-steel, nipple-type drinking system can be provided with a collecting gutter to avoid splash water.

So.-Central Feeder Pig show, sale averages $56

Russell Kegg of Bedford exhibited the Reserve Champion Single feeder pig.

BY BETH HEMMINGER
Staff Correspondent

SHIPPENSBURG — Ninety-nine feeder pigs were entered in the annual South Central Pennsylvania Feeder Pig Show and Sale held last Saturday at the Shippensburg Fair Grounds.

Keith Bard of Lewistown, was awarded the champion pen and champion single pig honors. His champion single was a heavy weighing in at 60 pounds.

Daryl Sheiss and Sons of Chambersburg, followed with the reserve champion pen. And Russell Kegg, Bedford, PA walked away with the reserve champion single pig. Kegg's pig, also a heavyweight, weighed 64 pounds.

Ted Wiser of Pork Chop Farms, Shippensburg showed the first-place mediumweight feeder pig, and Greg Christman, Chambersburg, was awarded the first-place lightweight.

The show was judged by Matthew Parsons, Penn State Extension swine specialist. During the show he stated that he was looking for strong, sound pigs that showed muscle and potential for fast growth. Parsons said he was impressed with the entries from the South Central area, comprising Cumberland, Franklin and Adams counties.

Keith Bard's champion pig was the top seller of the day, bringing $103 from David Reinecker of York Springs. The sale averages for the 99 feeder pigs was $56.

The feeder pig show and sale is sponsored by the South Central Pennsylvania Pork Producers Association and was initially designed to sell top-quality feeder pigs to 4-H'ers and FFA members for their yearly projects. The majority of this year's pigs were sold to the youth for their projects, but several area pork producers also nodded in their bids for the final purchase.

Keith Bard of Lewistown was awarded the championship ribbons for his pen of three and a single feeder pig at last week's South Central Pennsylvania Feeder Pig Show and Sale. Bard's Champion pig topped the sale list at $103.

'81 livestock transactions decline

KANSAS City, Mo — The U.S livestock industry in 1981 saw a slight decline in the volume of its livestock transactions, while their value remained virtually unchanged from 1980, reports the Livestock Marketing Association.

The Volume and Value of Livestock Transactions study, done annually for LMA, showed that transactions on cattle, hogs, and sheep last year totalled 234.9 million head, down about two percent from 1980's 238.5 million head.

Lower cattle prices throughout the year resulted in a total livestock transaction value of $53.7 billion last year, compared with $53.6 billion in 1980, said Glen Allen, the Topeka-based consultant who conducts the annual survey.

The Volume and Value study is unique in the industry in that it measures each time ownership changes on a head of livestock. This gives a more accurate picture of the size and scope of the livestock industry than traditional slaughter or inventory figures, since the study recognizes that most livestock change hands more than once during their lifetime.

In 1981, 109.1 million head of cattle were marketed, compared with 106.4 million in 1980. The increased volume took its toll on the total value of these transactions, dropping them to $42.8 billion, compared with $43.5 billion in 1980.

Producers saw a decline in the number of hog transactions, from 119.2 million in 1980 to 111.7 million last year. Coupled with this cutback was a slight increase in the value of those transactions, at $10.3 billion last year compared with $9.4 billion in 1980.

The per head value of cattle was $392, down from 1980's $409. In 1979 the per head value was $433. The 1981 per head value for hogs was $92, up sharply from 1980's $79.

The study's unit of measure is the livestock merchandising transaction, defined as the transfer of title on one head of livestock.

Animals sold more than once during the year are included as more than one transaction, and the value is the dollar amount of all transactions.

Other highlights from the 1981 study:

— The total value of livestock and meat commerce — which includes the value of the livestock and of the beef, pork and lamb products — reached $98.2 billion, up from $96.7 billion in 1980.

— The merchandising turnover rate, or number of times the average head changes ownership, remained fairly constant for cattle at 1.88, compared with 1980's 1.91. The corresponding figure for hogs was 1.17, compared with 1.19 in 1980.

— The volume of sheep transactions continued an upward climb that began last year. The figure for 1981 was 13.1 million head, compared with 12 9 million in 1980. The value of those transactions was $0.6 billion, down from 1980's $0.7 billion.

— The percentage of cattle and calves slaughtered that were sold through marketing firms was 65 percent, down slightly from 1980's 66 percent. The figure for hogs was 18 percent, down from 19 percent in 1980.

— The transaction value on horses was $1.18 billion, compared with $1.04 billion in 1980. The volume figure was 1.074 million head, compared with 1.023 million head in 1980.

For 1982, Allen projects a drop in total livestock volume to 226.0 million head, and a hike in the value of those transactions to $55.1 billion. He anticipates a drop in hog volume of 7.4 percent, while cattle and sheep volume should be virtually unchanged from 1981.

He also projects a $10 per head increase in the value of cattle, to $402; a $9 boost in hog value, to $101 per head, and a $3 increase in the per head value of sheep, to $48.

DVC A-Day offers free family fun

DOYLESTOWN — A-Day, a two-day annual open house at Delaware Valley College will be held rain or shine on Saturday and Sunday, May 1st and 2nd. Hours for this Agricultural and Science Exposition are from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days and admission is free.

A-Day is a popular event attracting thousands of visitors to the campus each year. One of the early springtime events in the Central Bucks County area, A-Day offers something for every member of the family.

The campus is turned into an exposition as students present exhibits relating to the various course offerings of the College. Beef and dairy cattle as well as sheep and swine are on display and visitors will be treated to various animal judging contests throughout the weekend. A horse show and a small animal laboratory exhibit round out the features of the Animal Science Division.

An extensive Flower and Garden Show as well as greenhouse displays will be presented by the Ornamental Horticulture Department. Many types of early spring plants and other items for the home garden will be on sale during the weekend.

The various classroom and laboratory buildings will be open for tours and will feature displays in Biology, Chemistry, Food Science, Business Administration, Agronomy and Horticulture.

Honey bees and honey products will be another popular exhibit and various other special features, including an art show, will be offered at the 34th annual A-Day event. Food stands and a chicken barbecue will help satisfy the taste buds and the kids will enjoy the hay and pony rides. Some the the special will include Band and Chorale concerts and contests in long sawing, pie eating, canoe jousting and a milking competition.

All events will be held on the College's campus on Route 202, one mile west of Doylestown, Pennsylvania.

This year for the first time, there will be a parking fee of $1.00.

Everyone is welcome.

been involved in U.S. agriculture," exclaimed Steele. "Instead of 'Get the government out of agriculture' we should be saying 'Implement the proper role of government in agriculture.'"

Steele pointed out the Reagan Administration has allowed agriculture to regain its place as a competitive enterprise by lessening government involvement to a certain degree.

"But," said Steele, "I wouldn't like to see Extension, USDA, marketing orders, and other government services done away with. On the other hand, don't bog me down with red tape and regulations.

"Farmers have to have the right to succeed or fail without government interference. At the same time, they must stop asking government to do things they should be doing for themselves. Otherwise, farming will be turned from a proud agricultural industry into a welfare system.

"In the 1980s, I want government by my side and not on my back," Steele remarked.

To accomplish this, Steele suggested farmers capitalize on their public image and "quit crying wolfe."

"Farmers never admit they've had a good year," he said. "If you always publicize failure, you'll always get welfare legislation."

He encouraged the Grange to strive to project farmers as experienced businessmen instead of merely laborers.

"We're living in dynamic times," said Steele, citing the changing role of government in private lives. "We were charging the future generation for our living high on the hog in the past until we found out we are the future generation — an we've got to pay the piper."

Referencing the projected national debt of $1 trillion, Steel concluded, "The road back is not going to be easy. The medicine we all have to take is not palatable and road ahead is a rocky one. Its up to all the members of the Grange to face these challenges."

Senate unanimously passed H.B. 936. But before voting it off the floor, the senators had amended portions of the original bill. These amendments will have to be confirmed by the House before this legislation, which would strike eminent domain from the Scenic River Act, can be sent to the Governor's desk.

A bill which will keep farmers who are plagued with deer and elk damage happy is still on the House calendar. Senate Bill 1198 amends the present fencing law to allow for a total of $25,000 annually for deer-proofing material purchases.

S.B. 1210, the oil and gas leasing bill, was reported back to the Senate Appropriations Committee after having been on first consideration on the Senate floor last Wednesday.

And, S.B. 1208, the Cruelty to Animals bill introduced last November by Sen. George Gekas (R-15th), has come out of the woodwork. The Senate Judiciary Committee favorably reported this bill out of committee on Tuesday.

This bill, which created quite a stir in the farming community until the senator amended out those portions of the bill which would have affected farm animals, now has the support of all three farm organizations: State Grange, Pennsylvania Farmers' Association and Pennsylvania Farmers' Union.

producer increases base to 105 percent, then the Board will levy the $7 assessment for 5 percent and a $5 per hundredweight for the additional excess.

The Dairy Board would have the ultimate authority to set cutbacks that would bring production closer to consumption levels.

Reck noted that Gunderson has explained the plan to Deputy Agriculture Secretary Lyng. Reck said that although the Reagan Administration has stiffened against base-excess plans in the past, Gunderson has sensed some "softening in their stand."

Scout and spray for first brood borers

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. — European corn borer moths emerge and lay eggs in late May and early June. First brood larvae hatch and feed on developing leaf tissue when corn is at the young whorl stage.

This is the time to scout for and control corn borers, before they pupate and produce a far more damaging second generation, says Gary Beland, entomologist with Funk Seeds International "Start looking for egg massses on the underside of leaves near the midrib when corn is 25 to 40 inches in extended leaf length or calf — to knee-high," he says.

Withing a week of being laid, eggs hatch and larval feeding begins. "To check for characteristic 'shot-hole' damage, look at 20 consecutive plants in five different areas for each 40 acres," says Beland. "Earliest planted corn should be watched the closet.

"If foilage damage is 50 percent or more, and live larvae are present, chemical control should be used," he continues. Aerial application of diazinon, Dyfonate, Furadan, Sevin or Thimet at locally recommended rates can be used for control of first brook European corn borer.

Del. farm income report available

NEWARK, Del. — A report on Delaware's 1980 farm income is now available. Compiled from U.S. Department of Agriculture sources by Raymond C. Smith, an economist at the University of Delaware Agriculatural Experiment Station, the publication contains information on crop and livestock production prepared for use by individuals, firms and agencies interested in the state's agriculture.

According to the report, 1980 cash receipts from farm marketings in Delaware, at $333 million, were down by nearly 8 percent from the year before. Income from crops dropped by more than 21 percent, while livestock receipts were down by less than 1 percent.

Crops with substantial declines in cash receipts included soybeans, corn mushrooms and potatoes. Returns from wheat and watermelons were up. Hogs, cattle and calves all brought in less than than the year before, while dairy products and broilers had increases. Income from broilers came to nearly $200 million, up slightly over 1 percent from 1979.

Total net farm income fell 53 percent in 1980 to $50.7 million — the lowest level since 1972. Cash receipts from farm marketings were down nearly 28 percent, and were accompanied by over a 9 percent increase in production expenses. Figures for 1981 are not yet available.

According to the report, feed costs were the largest single expense in 1980. Fertilizer and lime costs rose more than those of any other input — 36 percent above the previous year. Repair and operation of capital items and interest on farm mortgage debts also rose substantially.

Because of the 1980 drought, Delaware farmers harvested less than 13 million bushels of corn — 21 percent less than the year before — even though their harvested acreage was nearly 20,000 acres greater. Average yields per acre dropped from 102 bushels in 1979 to only 72 in 1980.

Soybean yields were also down — from 30 bushels per acre to 20 — again, largely due to dry weather. Reduced acreage and smaller yields resulted in a 3 million bushel decline in soybean production for the year. Wheat production, on the other hand, was up by 51 percent. Delaware growers produced 969,000 hundredweight of potatoes — the smallest harvest for this crop since 1952.

Copies of the 1980 "Delaware Farm Income" pamphlet are available from county Extension offices in Newark, Dover and Georgetown, or by writing Mail Room, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, DE 19711.

HARVESTORE FEEDS REALLY ARE BETTER

HARVESTORE owners on well-managed farms, who compare feeds, find that HARVESTORE Systems often show far better results in cost reduction, feed efficiencies and increased production levels.

HARVESTORE® SYSTEM FEEDS ARE DIFFERENT:

— Smell the sweet, palatable aroma.
— Compare the results with old-fashioned silages, baled hay and cribbed corn.

TRY THE "SAMPLE" TEST...comparing Haylage and High Moisture Corn stored in HARVESTORE Systems with feed stored in other "so-called" sealed or open silos.

LOOK AT HARVESTORE FEATURES -

- Resaleability Always High.
- Quality Above All The Rest.
- Certified Service Crews Keep Costs Low.
- Professional Experienced Specialists Help Establish Feed Programs And Aid In Solving Problems.
- Bottom Unloading

LOOK AT HARVESTORE BENEFITS -

- High Production Potential.
- Lower Feed Costs.
- Less Loss With Glass-Fused-To Steel Oxygen Limiting Structure.
- Continuous, flow-thru feeding.

Rich dark Pennsylvania walnut paneling fills the Library with a warmth, and compliments the bright colors of the shelves lined with books and momentos. It's here that Governor Thornburgh sometimes catches up on the daily newspapers, or Mrs. Thornburgh may work at correspondence at the walnut table. The elaborately carved table at extreme left is fashioned from a Phillippine mahogany tree trunk, and one of only two of the Thornburgh's personal possessions used in the home's first floor.

Life-size statue of a young boy, by Alexander Calder, keeps silent vigil in the Grand Hall of the governor's home's private wing. A pair of mahogany breakfronts hold portions of two state treasures, the Tucker china collection, and the silver service of the U.S.S. Pennsylvania. The family living room opens off to the right, a hallway at center right leads to the Library and State area, and the entrance hall can be seen through the doorway at left center.

House or museum?

Regardless, the Thornburghs call it home

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

As I enter through a back door, a small black and white dog passes me on his way out to the garden.

That could happen at any one of thousands of homes across Pennsylvania. But this isn't just any home. This one is of stately red-brick, Georgian style, framed with attractive landscaping and sculpture in neat gardens. Inside, the elegant and tasteful furnishings are a blend of priceless state treasure, 18 century antiques and reproductions, mememtos of Pennsylvania's past, and a showcase for the Commonwealth's culture and art.

This is the Governor's Home.

Under the guidance of the state's first lady, Ginny Thornburgh, an educator by profession, portions of the Governor's Home have been opened to guided public tours.

Hours are from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. From March through May, those hours are reserved exclusively for student visitors; but from June through mid-October, the tours are for the public, with no admission charges. An open house is scheduled for May 9.

While Harrisburg has been the site of an official governor's residence since 1858, it was not until 1941 that the state purchased the naturally-wooded three and one-half acres where the present home is located, at the corner of Front and McClay streets, overlooking the Susquehanna River. Construction began in 1966, and in 1968, Governor Shafer and his family became the first residents of the new official Governor's home.

Its location, overlooking the normally placid Susquehanna, adds an openness and country flavor belying the nearness of downtown Harrisburg. But proximity to the historic river also has its drawbacks.

In 1972, the flood resulting from Hurricane Agnes caused extensive damage to the basement and first floor portions of the Home, and wiped out the modest amount of landscaping that had been done.

A second flood, in 1974, again posed the threat of water damage. After sandbagging and precautionary moving of the furnishings to the second floor, the Susquehanna peaked at a lower level and no major damage to the home was incurred.

The Front Street residence has become home to the Thornburghs, their four sons, and 12-year-old Charlie, the small black and white mixed-breed, part-of-the-family, dog who's won the run of the home and the hearts of the staffers. Although most of the family quarters are on the second floor, several rooms in the "private wing" of the first floor do see regular use by the Thornburgh family.

The wing toward downtown Harrisburg is considered the "State Area," and is used for official functions, sometimes several in a week's time. Visitors to such events most likely enter the reception line in the state entrance hall from the McClay Street courtyard.

Opening off the adjoining reception area is the spacious dining room, with its central furnishing-The long, highly-polished table with seating for about 20 guests, or abundant space for buffet-style serving.

A historic carving provides a focal point in the dining room, and sets a quietly-elegant tone to the overall interior feeling of the governor's home. Fashioned from rich, dark mahogany, the carving is of the Pennsylvania coat of arms, discovered some years ago among the office furnishings once used by Governor Pennypacker (1903-1907).

Throughout the state area, and in the private wing as well, the art and culture of Pennsylvania is highlighted. Displays in this "gallery" change periodically, and themes have ranged from Afro-American art to tercentennial exhibits of William Penn for the state's 300th birthday. A focus for

Stunning original mural wallpaper, entitled "Las Incas," adds an Old World touch to the formal sitting, or drawing, room of the private wing. Badly damaged in the 1972 flood, the murals were carefully peeled off the walls, dried and skillfully restored. Their rich colors set off the classic lines of the Hepplewhite furnishings and a federal style piano by George Allbright.

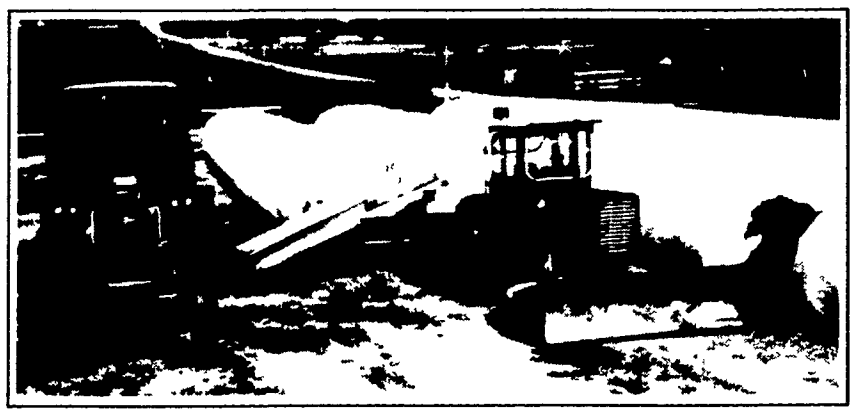
Homestead Notes

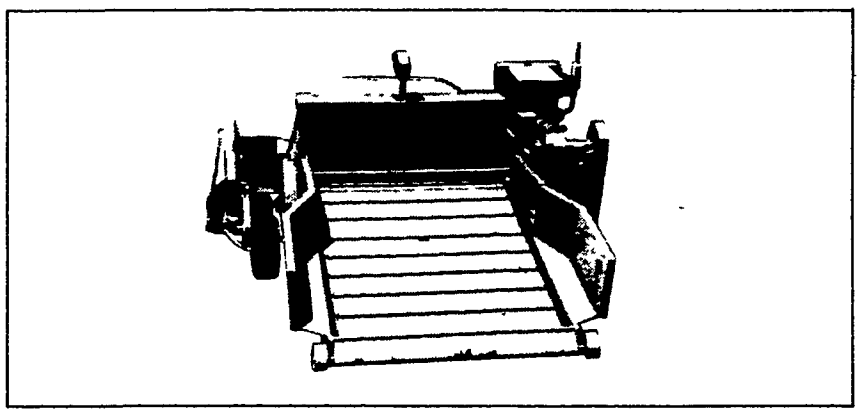
Adjoining the reception area of the Governor's Home is the state dining room, with its light-colored walls, formal gold drapes and sparkling chandelier. Focal point of the room is the carved walnut Pennsylvania coat of arms, on the far wall, from the term of Governor Pennypacker. Kept on display on the polish long table is a setting of the Lenox china and "1810" silver pattern by International.

MORE FOR LESS.

The Storage System for the future. Here Now!

THE AG-BAG SYSTEM





MORE FEED. MORE STORAGE. MORE HIGH QUALITY TDN & PROTEIN.

Select from three models of AG-BAG Machines. Motorized, Hydraulic, and Gear-Driven. AG-BAG lets you match the machine to your job. Big or small. Whether you're DAIRY or BEEF AG-BAG will store More For Less. The AG-BAG System. Air-tight storage with more versatility than any other system. Just look at these AG-BAG ADVANTAGES:

1. UNLIMITED "Air-tight, oxygen-free" storage
2. Storage for ALL forages & grain
3. Transportable
4. Easy to use and little maintenance
5. NO dangerous silo gases
6. Silo fires WON'T occur
7. Higher moisture forage
8. NO unloader to break down
9. Extra income and potential from custom bagging
10. THE Forage System for the 80's

JUST LISTEN TO WHAT THESE AG-BAG BELIEVERS HAVE TO SAY:

Kenneth Popham of Floresville, Texas

Kenneth runs a 465 cow Dairy and said this about AG-BAG "At today's interest rates you can't afford any other type of storage Even with the yearly cost of bags it's still inexpensive storage a whole lot cheaper than building barns and hiring help I put up 13 bags last year and after seeing the results, I'll put up 25 bags this year The bags are a good thing"

Don Carter of Parkdale, Oregon

"The best move I ever made" says Don Carter in reference to his switch to bagging silage on his dairy near Parkdale, Oregon

"I get 18% more feed from the same acreage and the feed lasts three times as long I used to clean my bunks after three days, now I only need to clean them after 10 days"

Roland Rasmussen of Blair, Nebraska

"In addition to everything else, it's a management tool" ..says rancher, Roland Rasmussen of Blair, Nebraska

Roland farms 350 acres west of Blair, Nebraska, and fattens about 650 cattle from 600 lbs to finish

"By labeling every bag as to date and kind of feed, I can mix my feeds and eliminate the guess work in making a ration I feed alfalfa silage, corn silage and ground ear corn stored exclusively in the bags, purchasing only my minerals and vitamin supplements"

"The AG-BAG system has enabled me to increase carrying capacity per acre at a reduced cost of gain"

Bert Anderson of Sceptre, Saskatchewan

"At least 30% more feed I can guarantee at least that" says rancher, Bert Anderson, of Sceptre, Saskatchewan

"I've been able to cut my grain feeding costs in half since converting to the bagging It's just like feeding grass I've also eliminated the need for a liquid supplement that we always fed before going to the AG-BAG System"

The governor's home

1982 is to be on art and culture depicting Pennsylvania labor.

A long hall directs visitors steps from the "official" side over to the opposite end of the governor's home, dubbed the "private" section of the first floor layout.

Midway down the hall a door opens to a room with a totally different air about it than those on the official side. The library is paneled in dark walnut, with one full wall devoted to books and mememtos. A hand-carved pineapple design is displayed over the fireplace mantle, a symbol of hospitality.

The library is frequently used by the Thornburgh's, for catching up on newspaper reading or correspondence. One of the two personal possessions of the family is displayed on the first floor in the library. It's a small table, ornately carved from the trunk of a Phillippine mahogany, and sits next to the librarys' arm chair.

In the hallway outside the library door stands an imposing Chippendale breakfront filled with fascinating mememtoes from past state governors, dating back to Governor Curtin, who headed Pennsylvania during the Civil War.

The set of spurs in the collection belonged to Governor John Geary (1867-73), and Governor William Sprout's gavel is also here. A small silver replica of the Oliver Cromwell chair, from John Wanamaker's, is a remembrance of Governor George Brumbaugh's. Other silver pieces are legacies of the administrations of governors Shafer, Pinchot, Leader and Lawrence.

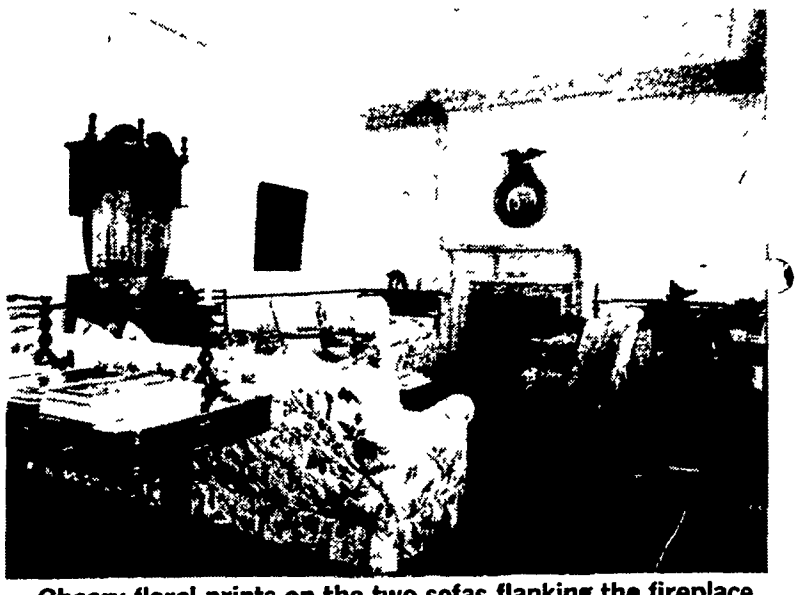
At the "private wing" end of the hall is the beautifully-appointed Grand Hall. Beneath the Adams-style chandelier, just recently wired for electricity, stands a dark polished sculpting of a small nude boy.

This statue is by one of three generations of talented Alexander Calders whose sculpting work graces the home.

The first Alexander Calder was a Scottish immigrant who moved to Philadelphia in 1866, at the age of 22. A small replica of his William Penn casting that tops Philadelphia's city hall stands watch at the top of the steps to the second floor, silhouetted against the high windows.

Calder's son designed the small boy sculpture in the Grand Hall, and his grandson created the steel stabile, a modern design called "The Kite That Never Flew," that whistles in the wind in the gardens outside.

A pair of George III breadfronts in the Grand Hall house



Cheery floral prints on the two sofas flanking the fireplace add a homey, cozy feeling to the family living room. The carved mantle and ornate round mirror above it were gifts of the citizens of Erie.

representative items of two of the state's most treasured collections. One holds portions of the Tucker china, and part of the silver service from the cruiser USS Pennsylvania fills the other.

The Tucker family was the first in America to successfully manufacture procelains. Made in the period from 1823 to 1838, the fine chinaware was crafted from a blend of kaolin clays from Delaware and fine blue clay indigenous to Pennsylvania and New Jersey. Eventually, the Tucker firm went bankrupt, and the remaining procelains are prized collector items.

Intricately handcrafted, the cruiser USS Pennsylvania's silver service, by J.E. Caldwell & Co., is breathtakingly beautiful in its detail.

The total service includes 162 pieces, some of which have been on display at the William Penn Memorial Museum next to the capitol building in Harrisburg. Commissioned in 1904, and not completed until 1916, at the the cost of $25,000, the set is priceless in historic value. It was later used on the battleship USS Pennsylvania, and also on the aircraft carrier USS Valley Force.

As one example of the finely-detailed silver work, the base of the set's loving cup is fashioned as a locomotive engine emerging from a railroad tunnel.

When the 1972 flood damaged the upholstering on love seat reproductions in the Grand Hall, a group of Lancaster County women came to the rescue. The pieces were reupholstered in white fabric, painstakingly hand-quilted by these volunteers.

Needlework enthusiasts find a special fascination in the English style antique chairs in the Grand Hall. The petit point and grospoint stitchery worked in detail on the original upholstering is still vivid with color after two centuries.

Detailing and color of the original wallpaper mural in the sitting room adjoining the entrance hall makes it one of the most unique in the governors home. These panels depict the conquest of Peru, and the title of the wallpaper mural is appropriately named "Las Incas."

Hand painted in 1826 in Paris, "Las Incas" was originally part of a French chateau, and typical of the wall treatments of fine homes in that period.

Donated to the Governor's Home by the Mellon family of Pittsburgh, the murals suffered severe damage during the Hurricane Agnes flooding. Art specialists painstakingly peeled the wallpaper panels from the room, dried them, and skillfully restored the mural to its historic beauty.

Queen Anne and Chippendale style pieces complete most of the furnishings in the sitting room and entrance hall. On an English Hepplewhite mahonany side table in the entrance hall sits the second of the two Thornburgh special possessions on the first floor. The oriental brass tea samovar reportedly was given to the Thornburghs by an uncle who brought it from China.

A family living room and small formal dining room complete the portion of the private wing open to the public tours.

An elegant fireplace, with interesting historic background, catches the visitor's attention in the family room. Its antique "Battle of Lake Erie" mantle, and the ornate 18th century mirror that hangs on the wall just above the fireplace, were gifts of the citizens of the city of Erie.

Crafted in early 19th century by a Philadelphian, the center panel of the mantle commemorates the victorious battle of Lake Erie in 1814. Surrounding the fireplace is "King of Prussia" marble, from an 18th century Philadelphia residence.

A solid mahogany desk belonging to Governor Joseph Ritner (1835-1839) and a tall case clock from Philadelphia, both pieces dating to about 1800, add their Hepplewhite influence to the living room.

An especially interesting painting, done in 1839-40 by artist

What's your favorite recipe?

This question has been on our list of recipe topics for 1 1/2 months now, and we have made a unique, though not surprising, discovery — Lancaster Farming readers have quite a sweet tooth!

Of the responses we received, at least 3/4 were recipes for cakes, pies, and cookies. And why not? When we asked for your favorite recipes, we meant the ones you enjoy preparing and eating the most!

However, due to space we must limit your list of favorites to these select recipes which we feel offer a variety of dishes. And take note, we have included lots of desserts.

DATE AND NUT COOKIES

1 1/2 c. brown sugar
3/4 c. oil
2 eggs
1 t. soda
1 t. vanilla
1 T. water
2 c. flour
1 lb. dates, cut in pieces
1/2 c. chopped walnuts

Mix ingredients together and bake in slow oven about 300 to 325 degrees. Store in tight container. Makes a very soft cookie.

Nancy Beiler, Bird-in-Hand

JULE'S PICNIC PUNCH

1 scoop sugar sweetened apple flavor soft drink mix
3 scoops cherry flavor sugar sweetened soft drink mix
1 scoop orange flavor sugar sweetened soft drink mix
2 quarts cold water
1 bottle 28 oz. ginger ale

Dissolve soft drink in 2 quarts water just before serving. Add gingerale. Makes 11 cups or 22 servings.

Dawn Harvey, Nicholson

EASY BLENDER AVOCADO CHEESECAKE

1 avocado, halved and peeled
8 oz. pkg. cream cheese
1/2 c. sour cream
3 to 4 strips lemon peel
1 pkg. instant vanilla pudding mix
Graham cracker crust

Blend together avocado, cream cheese, sour cream and lemon peel in an electric blender till smooth. Add pudding mix and blend just until it's mixed in. Pour into the crust and chill several hours before serving. For that extra zing, add chocolate curls made with a vegetable parer sliced across the back of a large sweet milk chocolate bar.

Karen McConnell, Buffalo, N.Y.

CRUMB TOP APPLE PIE

Crust:
2 c. flour
1 t. salt
1/3 c. lard
5 to 6 T. water
Filling:
1 quart apple slices in syrup
2 T. brown sugar
1 T. corn starch
1/2 t. cinnamon
Topping:
1 c. flour
1/2 c. brown sugar
1/2 c. butter

Cut lard into flour and salt until coarse. Add water. Knead. Divide in two portions. Roll and fit into pie platters.

Mix apple slices, syrup, brown sugar, corn starch and cinnamon. Divide between pie crusts.

Mix flour, sugar, and butter until coarse crumbs. Spread over apple mixture. Bake at 375 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes.

Debbie Traverso, Baltimore

OATMEAL BREAD

1 c. oatmeal
2 c. boiling water
1 T. salt
2 T. sugar
1 1/2 T. vegetable oil

Mix all together. Let stand until lukewarm.

Add 1 rounded T. yeast

I use granular yeast since I found it works better than packages of yeast.

1 c. lukewarm water

Mix together until yeast starts to work. Mix into oatmeal mixture. Add 3 cups flour. Knead in 3 or 4 more cups flour. Knead 8 to 10 minutes.

Place in greased bowl and cover. Let stand till double.

Punch down and separate into 2 large or 3 smaller loaves. I use the disposable aluminum pans found in almost any store since the bread will get done quicker.

Grease loaf pans. Grease tops of loaves also.

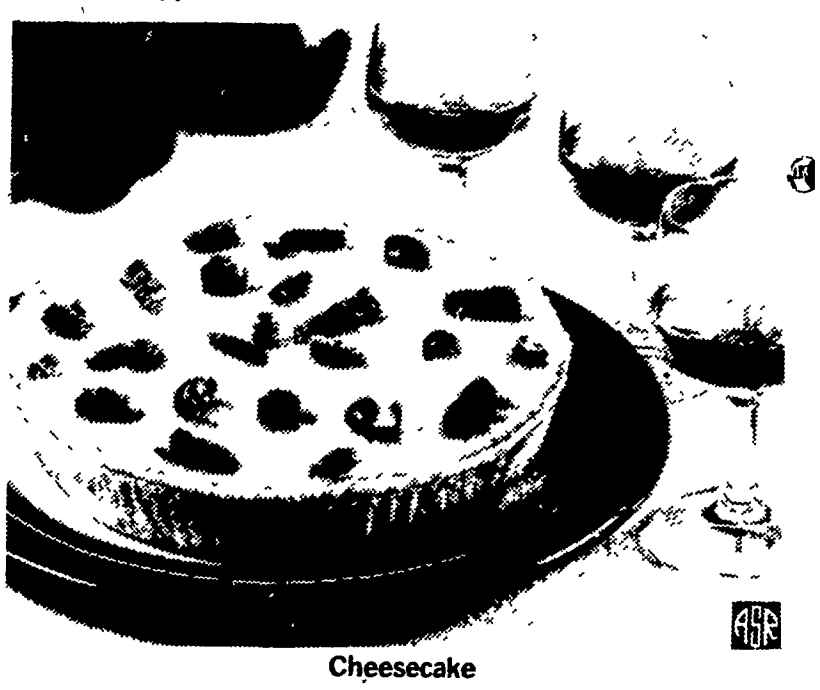
I place my loaves in the oven to rise so I just turn the oven on when they are ready.

Bake at 475 degrees for approximately 10 minutes after turning on the oven or until the tops start turning light brown. Turn down oven to 350 degrees for about 25 mintues.

If loaf sounds hollow when tapped, it is done.

You can add raisins to oatmeal mixture for raisin bread or use honey in place of sugar, or use maple syrup, pancake syrup. etc. If you like tea bread make 1 c strong tea in place of 1 of the cups of boiling water.

Kathleen Hawk, Lititz



Cheesecake

DIXIE WAFFLES

2 c. sifted flour
2 1/4 t. baking powder
1/2 t. salt
1 T. sugar
1 1/2 c. milk
2 egg yolks well beaten
2 T. melted butter

Beat everything well then add 2 egg whites stiffly beaten. Put in hot waffle iron. Makes 4 or 5 large waffles. Put molasses or ice cream on top.

Ruth Ann Sensenig, East Earl

MISSISSIPPI MUD CAKE

1 c. butter
2 c. sugar
2 T. cocoa
4 eggs
1 1/2 c. self-rising flour
1 1/2 c. coconut
1 1/2 c. chopped nuts
1 T. vanilla
1 large jar marshmallow creme

Cream the butter with the sugar and cocoa until light and fluffy.

Add the eggs one at a time, beating well after each addition. Beat into the flour and coconut. Then stir in the nuts and vanilla blending well.

Pour the batter into a 9 x 13 inch greased baking pan. Bake in a preheated 350 degree oven for 30 minutes or until cake tests done.

Remove from oven and spread the marshmallow creme over top of cake. Cool. Then ice.

Frosting:
1/2 c. margarine or butter
1 box powdered sugar
1/3 c. cocoa
1/2 c. sweetened condensed milk

Cream the margarine with the powdered sugar and cocoa and beat in milk to spreading consistency. Then frost cooled cake.

Mattie Miller, Hartly, Del.

CHOCOLATE BARS

6 egg yolks
1 c. sugar
2/3 c. water
2 t. vanilla
1 1/3 c. flour
1 1/3 c. cocoa
1 t. baking soda
1/2 t. salt
6 egg whites
1 c. sugar

In a large bowl beat egg whites until foamy. Gradually add 1 cup sugar. Beat until stiff. Set aside. In a small bowl beat egg yolks 3 minutes. Add 1 cup sugar and beat 2 minutes longer.

On low speed blend in water and vanilla. Sift flour, cocoa, baking soda and salt. Gradually add to egg mixture. Just beat until batter is smooth. Carefully fold chocolate mixture into egg whites. Pour into sided cookie sheets or jelly roll pans. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 to 18 minutes. Put wax paper in bottom of pans. Makes 2 pans. Spread one pan with your favorite icing and flip other pan on top. Cut into squares.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Passing a kitchen window one morning last week, a flurry of bits and pieces falling from the maple tree caught my eye.

What in the world was that stuff?

A closer look revealed a robin, frantically working in the "V" of the main trunk, where it splits into the two main limbs, about ten feet above the yard.

In the midst of the accumulation of leaves and twigs, she danced, scattering the trash with both feet and tossing pieces of straw into the wind.

I laughed as it struck me what this robin was doing. That determination, that hustle, that get-rid-of-the-mess activity looked awfully familiar.

In the spirit of "nesters" everywhere, this bird was spring housecleaning.

Why, I'm sure I heard her chirp.

"Whose idea was it to store all this junk anyway?"

"If I told these kids once, I told them a thousand times, you don't throw dirty feathers all over the floor of your room."

"Am I the only one around here who cares if things are straightened up?"

"Will they ever learn to wipe their feet after running through the mud?"

"Fixing this corner with new straw was a mistake - now the rest of the place looks dumpy."

Well, maybe that wasn't quite what she was saying. But the harried look on the tiny gray face sort of hinted at it

A few mornings later, Lady Bird Robin was back. This time she'd moved up in the tree about a yard higher and with studied care was efficiently tucking twigs into her selected construction site.

But the next was being built at the crook of a much smaller limb that juts out over the wash line. It's a more precarious spot than the tree's main "V", and less protected from the wind and weather.

Maybe the view's better-or the air fresher-or the cats more easily spotted.

Maybe the first site was simply too messy to straighten.

Our teenager has it figured out. She says Lady Bird Robin was simply cleaning out her basement before she moved in.

Wonder if she'd like to start on ours.

She'd probably give up and just move upstairs after taking one look at it.

That's what I do.

William Reider, portrays the legend of John Harris One of the early settlers of Harrisburg, Harris tried to stop liquor distribution to the natives of the river shores. According to the legend, as depicted in the painting, the angered Indians nearly succeeded in burning the settler at the stake.

Work by Pennsylvania artists continues on the wall displays in the dining room, where staff working breakfasts are sometimes held. English Sheraton furnishings include a mahogany bowfront sideboard and commodes.

A screened porch ties the lovely home to a picturesque landscaped garden, complete with small lily pool.

Following the devastating flood a decade ago, all that remained of the garden area was a flat expanse of lackluster grass. A rose garden, named for Jane Shafer, was added in later years.

In the spring of 1979, a committee for landscape improvement was formed, raising private funds to beautify this center of social and cultural activities. Numerous individuals, businesses, foundations and organizations contributed to the planting efforts which were completed in late 1980.

Special effort was made to incorporate native Pennsylvania plants. The original towering elms that once shaded the grounds have long since succombed to Dutch Elm Disease, but rhododendrens, laurels and similar shrubs add another kind of beauty. Soil mounding, resulting in the effect of a garden set amidst gentle little hills, has transformed the once nearly barren and flat yard in to gardens which beautifully frame and compliment the governor's home.

"This is more a home than a museum. People really live here," affirmed my very knowledgeable and friendly guide, Elaine Siverling.

She's one of a staff of about forty trained volunteers who serve as guides for the governor's home tours.

Part home, part museum, part art gallery, the governor's home is a treasure in which Pennsylvanians can take a great deal of pride. Visitors should take not that no cameras are allowed, there are no rest room facilities available, and smoking, food and drink are not permitted.

Groups with ten or more members are requested to call for advance tour reservations at 717-787-1192. Children under 12 must be accompanied by an adult.

It's a visit that is enlightening, entertaining, educational - and free.

WHAT THIS MAN KNOWS ABOUT FARMING COULD FILL A BOOK... A BANK BOOK.

Farming. It's a complex business No surprise to you, of course We only mention it because when it comes to getting a farm loan, we know you don't want to have to start at ground zero and explain the expenses of livestock, machinery, construction, mortgages and operating expenses to a novice loan officer

Which is why we suggest you turn to Bob Badger, the head of our Agricultural Loan Division. Bob knows farming — inside out and upside down He's been helping our community's farmers meet their business objectives for years So when it comes to farm loans, he takes a very interesting point of view yours

Chester Farm Women hold 31st convention

BY SUSAN KAUFFMAN
Staff Correspondent

COCHRANVILLE — The Society of Farm Women of Chester County held their thirty-first annual convention last week at the Cochranville Fire Hall with guests and officers coming from across the state.

County President Jean Yarnall, Cochranville, conducted the day's activities and welcomed the many guests to the gathering.

Assisting her in the planning for the day-long event were the other county officers: vice president, Louella Girvin; secretary, Eleanor Rothenberger and treasurer, Lenore Binkley. Elinor Eidson and Addie Cheek served as ushers and greeters and Marge Holman and Margie Williams took charge of the bazaar table. All officers and committee members are members of Society 3, the only remaining society in Chester County.

After the business meeting, outgoing county president Jean Yarnall gave some farewell comments then introduced the guests.

Recently elected state president, Marie Baughman, Shippensburg, brought greetings from the state organization and gave a report of the spring executive board meeting held recently in Harrisburg.

Some major concerns on the state level, outlined by the president, include the possibility that home economics courses may be dropped from school curricula, declining state membership numbers, contributions to the Ag Arena funds by the Society of Farm Women, and institution of a memorial book for the state, recording all deceased members of the society. Although counties individually often have such a record, none exists on the state level.

Baughman also announced two state-wide events. The first is the Spring Rally to be held May 19 at the Sunnybrook Ballroom, Pottstown, beginning at 10:30 a.m. Afternoon speaker will be Betty Groff, Lancaster County, of Groff's Farm Restaurant and Inn.

The second gathering announced is the state convention to be held during Farm Show Week at Harrisburg, January 10 and 11.

Donald Barnhouse, Philadelphia, was announced as one of the speakers for the event.

Upon completion of the business meeting, Baughman installed new county officers: Eleanor Rothenberger, president; Ann Hingley, vice president; Jean Yarnall, secretary; and Lenore Binkley, treasurer. All reside in the Russellville area of Chester County.

Nancy Mosteller, International Flying Farmer Queen New Park, Pa., sang several selections for the group. She was accompanied by Eleanor Rothenberger. Speaker for the afternoon session was 4-H IFYE to New Zealand, Cathy Wollaston, West Grove, Chester County.

HOMEMADE BAKED BEANS

Soak overnight 2 1/2 pounds Great Northern Beans. Cook them till soft. Then add:
2 1/2 c. granulated sugar
1 scant T. salt
1/2 to 1 lb. bacon
1/2 t. soda
1 c. ketchup
3 heaping T. prepared mustard

Mix all together except bacon. Pour over cooked beans and mix. Lay strips of bacon all over top. Bake at 250 degrees for 5 or more hours. When almost done, add a cup of molasses.

Only partially drain dried beans after cooking, otherwise they get too dry after baking.

Rosanne Smith, Kutztown

CHOCOLATE MARSHMALLOW SQUARES

1/2 c. margarine or butter
3/4 c. sugar
2 eggs
1 t. vanilla
1/4 t. salt
1 T. cocoa
1/4 t. baking powder
3/4 c. flour
1/2 c. nuts

Cream butter and sugar. Beat in eggs and vanilla. Stir in flour, salt baking powder and cocoa. Bake in 9 x 13 inch cake pan at 350 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes. After baking, put 2 cups tiny marshmallows on and return to oven for 3 minutes. Let cool.

In a sauce pan melt 1 cup peanut butter, 1 cup chocolate chips, then add 2 cups rice krispies. Spread on baked mixture.

PIGS WEANED

According to the USDA, the average number of pigs weaned per litter has not improved over the past 25 years. DEKALB's genetic research program selects for female lines that farrow and wean large litters.

Cummulative 12-month 1980 records on several customers farms indicate that DEKALB females are second to none. 9,045 litters from DEKALB hybrid sows bred to DEKALB hybrid boars on these farms averaged 9.22 pigs weaned per litter — over two pigs per litter better than the national average.

It's easy!

Try making a coffee can bird house

LANCASTER — Want to attract some small birds—even bluebirds—to your backyard?

All it takes is a little creativity and almost no expense. You can transform trash—milk cartons and other throw-away containers—into Detergent Dream Houses, Milk Carton Cabins, Coffee Can Cottages and Margarine Tub Mansions.

Houses made from trash are perfect alternatives for birds who nest in tree cavities, says the National Wildlife Federation. If you decide to build, keep the following tips in mind:

— Spray the interior of any container with black enamel paint, which will make the house seem more like the inside of a tree.

— Most small birds need an opening about 1½ inches across. Keep the opening small or you'll attract starlings and other large birds.

— Make 6 to 8 drain holes in the bottom of the house.

— The house will probably be better off without perches, which can attract sparrows and starlings–the "pests" of the bird world.

— Paint the outside of the house if you want it to last longer. Exterior latex paint is best, and white paint is preferable if the house will be hung in a sunny spot. (White will reflect the sunlight and keep the house cool.)

— To keep rain out of the entrance hole, hang each house so it tilts slightly toward the ground.

— As soon as the young birds have "fledged" or flown from the house, Clean it out to get rid of lice, mites or other animals that set up shop in the birdhouses. All of these "homes from trash" should be cleaned or thrown out before winter comes.

Now that you've got the basics, here are instructions for building three of the homes described in the magazine:

The "Coffee Can Cottage" will provide birds with a home for many years. Drill two holes three inches apart in the bottom of a one or two-pound coffee can. (Use a one-pound can for wrens and a two-pound can for larger birds.)

Then drill holes in a mounting board to correspond with the placement of the holes in the can. Before screwing the can to the board, drill drain holes on the bottom side of the can. Cut an entrance hole in the can's plastic lid, snap the lid onto the can, and nail the completed house to a post or tree.

One of the easiest houses to make is the "Detergent Dream House," built from an empty detergent bottle. This one doesn't even need drain holes; if it's hung upside down with its cap loosened, water will drain through the cap. Cut an entrance hole six inches from the cap. To hang the house, string a wire through the handles on the bottle. Then wrap the wire around a tree or post.

Another simple house comes in lots of bright colors; it's made from margarine tubs. The entrance hole should be cut in the bottom of the tub, and drain holes should be drilled in the side of the container that will become the bottom. With tacks or small nails, attach the lid to a mounting board, snap the tub onto its lid, and mount the board on a tree.

With a few such houses, you'll not only be recycling trash, you'll be helping out some of man's feathered friends.

Potter County holds 4-H leaders' banquet

COUDERSPORT — Approximately 90 people attended the annual Potter County 4-H Leaders and Bankers Dinner on Thursday, April 15, at the Potato City Motor Inn, Coudersport.

Main speaker of the evening was Dan Watson, manager of the Shinglehouse branch of Commonwealth Bank and Trust Company, who spoke on "What 4-H Means to Me." He is a former active 4-H'er.

Susan Erway reported on the Pa. Farmer Cooperative Institute, which she attended in 1981 Shippensburg State Collge. Donna Thomas, member of the 4-H Expansion and Review Committee, discussed the 1981 Leaders' Forum which she attended at Penn State University.

Jack Moshier, president of the Expansion and Review Committee, presented the annual $100 scholarship award to Nancy Pratt, member of the Rainbow Mountain Trail Blazers. Nancy's essay had been chosen as the best of those submitted on the theme "What 4-H Has Meant To Me."

Mary Jo Cook, regional 4-H agent, presented a slide show on 4-H opportunities on the regional, state and national levels.

Pins and certificates were presented to adult and teen leaders. Jane Lewis, Westfield, received an emerald clover for 25 years service as a teen leader in the North Fork-Westfield area. Jack Moshier, Coudersport received an award for 16 years.

Receiving pearl clovers for 15 years service were leaders Fred Baker and Jane Crossley, both of Coudersport, and Janet Erway, Genesee. Audrey Eaton, Genesee received a 14-year pin and Ruth Palmatier, Genesse, and Leona Ruter, Coudersport, both received 12-year pins.

Charles Cornell, Genesee, was presented a gold clover for ten years of service with the Dairywide Club.

Receiving junior leader awards were: Junior Leader IV, Beth George, Ulysses, Leo Dunn, Coudersport; and Nancy Pratt, Darcie Terrette, Carol Minnemeyer and Robin Watterson, all Shinglehouse; Junior Leader III, David Norton of Shinglehouse. Completing two years of junior leadership were Jim Babcock, Janet Brown, Deb Buchanan, and Sue Pratt, all of Shinglehouse; and Marie Erway Genesee.

Completing their first year as junior leaders were Rhonda Denhoff, Heather Wetzel and Luke Crossley, Coudersport; Terry Lewis, Westfield; Michelle and Mike Hyde, Millport, and Brent Schoonover, Todd Wheaton and Shelli Gustin, all of Shinglehouse.

Jack Moshier, president of the Potter County 4-H Expansion and Review Committee, presented the annual scholarship award to Nancy Pratt, R1 Shinglehouse at the 4-H Leaders and Bankers Dinner, April 15, at the Potato City Motor Inn.

For the avid gardener

Growing lettuce

Lettuce, a cool-weather crop can be grown in any home garden and is very sensitive to heat.

Lettuce will grow in any rich soil, although the plant does not do well in very acid soil. Have a soil test made, and apply lime to make the soil only slightly acid.

Plant your seeds 1/4 inch deep, in rows 1 to 1 1/2 feet apart. Allow 8 to 12 inches between plants in the row.

You can start spring lettuce indoors and transplant it to the garden when the plants have four to five leaves; you don't have to wait for the end of light frosts, as lettuce is not usually harmed by a temperature as low as 28 degrees. In the fall, allow about 4 weeks for growing the seed directly in the row and thin; there is no advantage in transplanting.

One-third ounce of seed will plant a 100 foot row of lettuce. This size row can give you about 100 well developed plants. Plant about 10 feet of row for each member of your family, but not all at one time.

You can harvest high-quality lettuce from one planting for a week to 10 days if weather is mild. Sow a few feet of row at 10 day intervals until the crop will encounter hot weather.

You can grow a continuous supply of lettuce for salads in your garden by sowing a small area every month from April to August. Lettuce is easy to grow, especially during the spring months.

'Salad Bowl' does well in spring and fall and summer. It' heat resistant and ideal for home gardners. 'Black Seeded Simpson' is another popular variety. These non-heading varieties are commonly seeded in a row or bed and thinned to 6 inches. The close planting forces the young plants upward in a tender, succulent growth which makes a delicious salad. If the leaves are cut off the outside, the plants will continue to produce for several weeks.

Head lettuce demands a fertile, moist soil and very cool season. The varieties of Pennloke and Fulton are favorites among home gradeners. They should be started indoors and set out as plants into soil high in organic matter. The butterhead types are better in the home garden than the heading types. Make several plantings through the season. Buttercrunch is an excellent and very popular butterhead variety. Try the Buttercrunch, it's one of the best to grow as a small head lettuce head.

Select lettuce varieties that have been mosaic tested. This means that they have been checked and found to be virtually free of seedborne mosaic disease.

Four vie for Berks dairy princess crown

BY LAUREL SCHAEFFER
Staff Correspondent

LEESPORT — Four contestants will be vying for the Berks County Dairy Princess crown this evening held this year at the Berks County Agricultural Center, here.

Betty Jean Hock, the county's present dairy princess will relinquish her crown to her lucky successor during the banquet which begins at 7 p.m.

The contestants are Penny Bicksler, Richland; Alison Hettrick, Bernville; Deborah Price, Douglasville; and Helen Seidel, Kutztown.

Penny is nineteen and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bicksler. She is presently employed as a supervisor at the Lebanon County DHIA and owns 17 dairy animals which are kept in her parents' herd.

Penny graduated in 1980 from Tulpehocken Area High School and is still a member of the FFA chapter there. This young lady is presently serving as secretary of the Berks County Junior Holstein Club and is a member of the Lebanon County Hockey Club, at St. John's UCC.

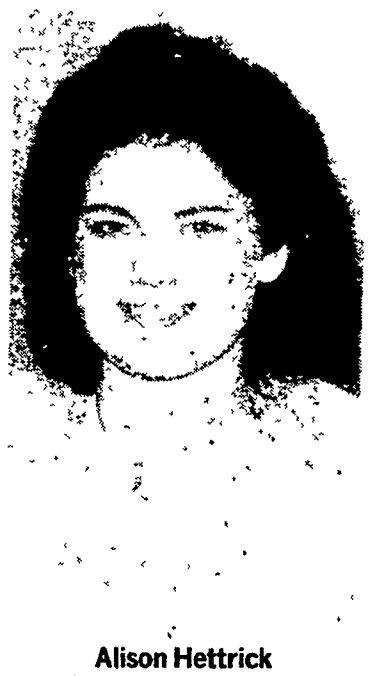
The Bicksler's are milking 34 Holsteins.

Alison is seventeen and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hettrick. She is presently a senior at Tulpehocken Area High and plans to attend Central Penn Business School to study mass media next year. Alison is a member of the high school art club and St. John's UCC, also.

Penny Bicksler

The Hettricks milk 230 Holsteins.

Debbie is seventeen and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jere Price, Douglasville. She is a junior at Daniel Boone High School and plans to attend Penn State University upon her graduation to study pre-veterinary medicine and dairy science. Debbie is very active in 4-H, having projects in dairy, horse, poultry and goats and is on the County Council. She is a member of the National Honor Society and the high school prom committee. She owns one Guernsey and helps her family maintain a herd of goats.



Alison Hettrick

Helen is twenty and the daughter of Raymond and Nancy Seidel.

She is presently employed as a secretary of Willow Creek Animal Hospital Leesport and vice president of the Berks County Junior Holstein Club. Helen is also president of the Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Executive Committee.

Debbie Price

Helen is a past president of the Eastern Berks 4-H Dairy Club and was a member of the 1979 Dairy Judging Team that placed first at Penn State. Helen is a member of the Mt. Zion Lutheran Church, Kutztown.

The Seidels milk 34 registerd Holsteins.

Helen Seidel

Search begins for Bedford contestants

BEDFORD — All single young women between the ages of 16 and 22 from a dairy farm background, are urged to compete for the title of 1982 Bedford County Dairy Princess, announced Carol Detterline, chairman of the Bedford Dairy Princess Committee.

The winner of the pageant, to be held June 11 at 8 p.m. at the NBC High School will be eligible to compete at the state level for the title of Pennsylvania Dairy Princess.

Any single woman who has completed her junior year in high school, is not over 22 years-of-age and whose parents or guardians are engaged in dairy farming, or is the owner of at least one dairy animal is eligible to compete for the title.

Young women interested in entering the Bedford County Dairy Princess Pageant should contact their area high schools, Mrs. Deterline, R1 New Enterprise, phone 766-3496, or the Bedford Extension office, phone 623-5148 by May 7.

Entry blanks available at these locations should be mailed to Carol Detterline, R1 New Enterprise, PA 16664.

Two-day festival features Apple Blossom spectacle

GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Staff Correspondent

GETTYSBURG — Come early, come late, come either day, but come and view one of Mother Nature's most spectacular sights: over 20,000 acres of fruit trees at their peak blossom period.

Adams County Fruitgrowers who produce over five million bushels of apples each year, extend to you this invitation to come view, enjoy, and learn about their apple industry at the 32nd Annual Apple Blossom Festival scheduled for Saturday, May 1, and Sunday, May 2.

The festival is held each year at the South Mountain Fairgrounds located north of Historic Gettysburg on Rt. 234, near Arendtsville. The festival gates are open each day from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Since the growers aim to keep the theme of the festival promotional rather than commercial, admission and parking are free.

Ruth Detwiler, executive secretary of the Gettysburg Area Chamber of Commerce, explains more about the planning and purpose of the festival stating, "My function is to act as a business coordinator for the festival. Actually this is the fruitgrowers' event. It isn't an event to make money. It's designated as a promotion for the apple industry and I think they should get alot of credit for that. We've had to get other segments of agriculture involved in the festival to help cover the expenses, but we have the full support of the Adams County Agricultural Council which represents all segments of agriculture here in the county. This event provides a wonderful opportunity to promote all of agriculture.

Traditionally a Sunday event, Detwiler explained that with attendance topping over 10,000 people from a five state area annually, the need for an extended program has become evident. Therefore, a full day of activities has been added that now includes Saturday. This is only the second year for this addition, so the committee is still working hard to promote for Saturday attendance.

Detwiler's list of highlights for this year's festival include: live entertainment, a chicken barbeque dinner, orchard tours, crafts show and sale, a petting zoo, livestock and agricultural exhibits, and the crowning of the Apple Blossom Queen on Sunday.

Truly an event for the entire family, Detwiler mentioned attractions such as sheep shearing, a sheep-to-shawl demonstration with the shawl to be raffled off on Sunday, free movies, a display of over 75 antique cars, plus an antique steam corn sheller. She reminds guests to come hungry to enjoy the new features on the gourmet list for the year which includes a barbeque pork chop dinner and an apple butter boil. Add these to the annual favorites of candied apple, apple dumplings, apple strudel, cherry desserts, and homemade scrapple and country sausage, and it provides for excellent eating.

While all the activities and "goodies" do attract a crowd, Detwiler credits the blossoms as the real calling card.

She explained, "If the weather smiles on you, there's no limit to how beautiful the orchards will be, and people from near and far come to take a break and see this beauty. Like all festivals in a rural community, people come to visit."

Maple festival features food and entertainment

TOWANDA — The first Maple Festival at the Troy Fairground — destined to be an annual event — is kicking off today and will continue tomorrow.

The event, sponsored by the Endless Mountains Maple Producers Association, will feature lots of food and entertainment.

Special features will include a tree tapping demonstration and maple products demonstrations, an evaporator in operation, maple candy making, and maple cream making.

Other activities include a maple products show and sale, a maple antique display featuring an old drag saw in operation, a large open craft market, antique and new car show, and antique gas and steam engines display.

Sugar maple trees are abundant in the Endless Mountains area. To some, it is regarded the most ideal climate, soils, and topography in the world for sugar maple trees. Visitors will have the opportunity to judge for themselves as they drive through the countryside on their way to the festival.

Evening entertainment will include country western music, modern square dance, gospel choirs, and group singing.

There will be no admission charge.

Warwick FFA chapter honors top members at banquet

BRICKERVILLE — More than 100 members, parents and friends of the Warwick FFA attended the chapter's annual awards banquet on Thursday, April 15, at the Brickerville Fire Hall.

In addition to the presentation of awards to the outstanding chapter members who excelled in various phases of the vocational agriculture program during the past year, the chapter's new officers for the coming year were introduced.

The chapter's retiring president Dean Long introduced the new officers to the banquet audience. They include:

Bart Tucker, who moved up to the president's post from his assignment as chaplain during the past year; Linda Ehrgood, who is serving as vice president after last year's post as student advisor; Dean Allison and Mark Seigford, who were renamed to their offices of secretary and treasurer respectively; Dave Spoo, who continues as sentinel; and new officers Harold Eberly, reporter; Mike Pfautz, student advisor; and Dave Wenger, chaplain.

Highlighting the awards portion of the program was the naming of the recipients of the chapter's three top awards:

Dave Wenger, who will serve as chaplain during the coming year, was named Star Greenhand as the outstanding first-year member of the chapter.

The counterpart award among upper class students, Chapter Star Farmer honors, went to Todd Miller, who was chapter vice president during the past year.

The Commonwealth National Bank award to the chapter's overall outstanding member was presented to Dean Long, the retiring president.

In addition, FFA Foundation Awards to recognize top proficiency in specific agricultural areas were presented to nine students. They include:

Dean Allison, swine production; Dave Spoo, sheep production; Bart Tucker, beef production; Linda Ehrgood, placement in ag production; Darrell Snyder, diversified livestock; Doug Roth, fish and wildlife management; Mark Seigford, public speaking; Harold Eberly, ag mechanics; and Scott Rathkey, athletics.

Three chapter members were recognized for their attainment of the Lancaster County Red Rose Degree, including Dean Allison, Darrell Snyder and Dave Spoo. Also honored were the chapter's two state-level Keystone Degree winners – Dean Long and Todd Miller.

Presiding over the awards presentations were chapter advisors, Dale Gerber and Sonia Shaner.

Welcoming remarks were given by Harold Swisher, principal of Warwick High School.

Also featured in the evening's program was a discussion of reptiles by Lloyd Gerhart, of Ephrata. His discussion included the showing of a number of live specimens of snakes, including a copperhead, cobra, rattler and python.—DA

Conrad Weiser FFA'ers get awards

ROBESONIA — Two members of the Conrad Weiser FFA Chapter have been named major winners in the statewide Pennsylvania FFA Proficiency Awards competition.

Chapter member Henry Noss was named the state's top proficiency winner in swine production.

Garry Degler was named a third-place winner among FFA competitors from throughout the state in agricultural mechanics.

Noss, the 19-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Noss, RD, Reading, has been involved in swine projects since entering the Conrad Weiser vocational agriculture program five years ago.

He had been honored for his swine projects at both the chapter's 1980 and 1981 awards banquets.

Henry Noss

Five years ago as a Greenhand, he began his swine projects with a single market hog.

Today as a graduate of the vo-ag program at Conrad Weiser High School, he manages a 150-head herd in a farrow to finish operation on the family's home farm.

Among the areas of proficiency in which he excelled in his Supervised Agricultural Occupational Experience Program in swine production were maintenance of a complete set of records of income and expenses, an inventory of hogs and related equipment which are student-owned, a financial statement and knowledge of economical swine production techniques.

As the top winner of the State Swine Production Proficiency Award, Noss received a check for $100. He will be presented a plaque at the FFA Mid-Winter Convention scheduled during Farm Show Week in January.

Noss will now participate in regional competition, which is followed by competition at the national level and the eventual selection of the top proficiency winner at the National Convention at Kansas City.

As a third-place state proficiency winner, Degler also capped a five-year FFA program of participation in ag mechanics. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mervin Degler, R5 Sinking Spring.

His program included work in the ag shop while in school and supervised work experience training at home and while employed at H. and H. Porter, Robesonia. His specific areas of proficiency included the construction of a trailer and equipment shed, as well as welding and small engine repair.

He was also honored previously at the chapter level for his ag mechanics proficiency. His third-place state award included a $25 prize.

PDA slates cheese give-away for May

HARRISBURG — State Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell recently announced that the Bureau of Govenment Donated Foods has ordered 2,083,200 pounds of processed American cheese from the United States Department of Agriculture for distribution to needy families and the elderly. The chees should begin arriving in Pennsylvania in early May.

Eligibility for the cheese has been expanded to include all senior citizens 65 or older and disabled veterans. Individuals, couples or families whose members qualify for public assistance, food stamps or medical assistance including Medicaid and Supplemental Security Income will also be eligible to receive cheese.

Hallowell said identification cards for these programs or proof of age will be considered as proof of eligibility. Persons who have already received cheese are eligible to receive it again.

The cheese is part of 70 million additional pounds released by USDA following the first giveaway earlier this year. USDA originally allocated 30 million pounds of cheese for the program of which Pennsylvania received about 1.6 million pounds.

Hallowell indicated that the state's role in the program is as a middleman, receiving the cheese from the federal government and transferring it to volunteer organizations for distribution in five pound blocks to the end users.

"I want to compliment the organizations that participated in the first give-away effort," Hallowell said. "Their cooperation helped us avoid many problems faced by distribution efforts in other areas.

"We are working with these groups to iron out problems that did occur in an effort to insure that the distribution system in Pennsylvania is smooth and efficient," he added.

Hallowell said that PDA has solicited the help of county commissioners in locating additional organizations which might be willing and able to distribute cheese.

Regional food banks in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Erie and Westmoreland will participate in the program. They will receive cheese directly from USDA, and are planning distribution over a period of four to ten weeks. Other organizations will be notified when cheese shipments arrive at regional warehouses leased by the PDA to make distribution arrangements. Groups can begin giving out the cheese as soon as they receive it.

He added, "Pennsylvania has until July 1 to request more chese if it is needed. Participating groups have been asked to indicate how much cheese they could realistically distribute in their areas so that the Department can make this determination."

E-Town retains FFA meats crown

LANCASTER — The Elizabethtown FFA Chapter is two-thirds of the way towards its goal of permanent possession of the Lancaster County FFA Meats Judging Trophy.

E-Town FFA members were successful last Saturday in retaining the trophy as they successfully defended the title won by the chapter in 1981.

As winners of the Meats Judging Contest two years in a row, the chapter now only needs a third successive win next year to permanently retire the revolving trophy in a place of honor in the vo-ag department at Elizabethtown High School.

The Elizabethtown FFA team scored a convincing win last Saturday in the competition held at Kunzlers in Lancaster.

The team of Dave Kauffman, Tracey Stowe and Cyndie Retherford topped the nearest rival team, runnerup Cloister Chapter from Ephrata, by some 45 points.

The Elizabethtown meats judgers also were among the top individual scorers in the competition among some 21 students representing five Lancaster County high school vo-ag programs.

Kauffman was the top individual scorer; Stowe was third and Retherford was fourth. A fourth Elizabethtown FFA member, Jackie Childs, finished seventh among the top 10 students.

The second-place finisher in the individual scoring was Dean Long, of the Warwick FFA.

Other individual placers included Maria Lorah, fifth, Grassland Chapter, Eastern Lancaster County; Tim Pfautz, sixth, Cloister Chapter, Ephrata; Junior Eckman, eighth, Manor Chapter, Penn Manor; Kevin Horst, ninth, and Jeff Martin, tenth, both of Ephrata's Cloister Chapter.

In the team standing, Grassland Chapter finished in third spot and Manor Chapter was in fourth.

This marked the 20th year of competition at the Kunzler plant. Assisting with the competition was Gerald M. Gregg, beef manager.

The student competitors judged various cuts and grades of meat. Competition will continue on the state level at FFA Week at Penn State in June.

Second-place individual high scorer in the Lancaster County meats judging contest is Dean Long, of Warwick FFA.

UNIPEL® 13-34-10 fertilizer can get your corn crop off to a super start:

It has a high concentration of water-soluble Phosphorus that gets to young seedlings quickly. Helps plants establish a good root system – the starting point for top yields. Its quick-acting and long-lasting Nitrogen team up to feed the young plants for full yield potential, continually from sprouting to harvest.

This is the Starter Special that corn growers know from good experience. It's highly effective as a banded starter. And it's SAFE... no chance of ammonia damage to tender, young seedlings when used as a "pop up" and applied directly with the seed at 50 lbs./acre.

How can we fit UNIPEL 13-34-10 into your corn fertility program?

Lancaster District sells 60,000 trees

For the eighth consecutive year, the Lancaster County Conservation District has accomplished a 'tree'mendous feat. District directors, like Aaron Stauffer, second from left, and other volunteers handed out 60,000 seedlings last Saturday at Lancaster County Central Park—filling a total of 1,415 orders. This year's biggest seller was blue spruce, with 12,000 seedlings ready to be planted by county residents. Canadian hemlocks came in second with 10,000 and white pine was third with 9,000. In the hardwood division, red oaks were number one, with 1,500 seedlings ordered. Co-chairing the successful tree seedling sale were Nancy Burkhart and Tim Breneisen.

Ladies Have You Heard?

By Doris Thomas

Lancaster Extension Home Economist

WATER'S THE WORD

Before you put away down coats, jackets, and comforters for a summer's rest, treat them to a bath. Water is the natural habitat of down.

You will get the best results if you use warm water and a mild soap. Wash by hand or in the gentle cycle of your washing machine. Do not use detergents containing enzymes or phosphates. The easiest place to wash large objects – sleeping bags and comforters – is in the bathtub.

To wash, be sure that the entire article is soaked – keep pushing it under water until all the air is expelled. Handle wet down very carefully. Squeeze gently, do not twist or wring and rinse carefully several times using fresh water. Do not leave any soap film – it will prevent the down from returning to its full loft. If your water's hard, add a softener to be sure all the soap film is gone.

Plan to dry down for a long time. If you use a dryer, add clean tennis shoes or clean tennis balls to beat and separate down clumps. Add clean bath towels to absorb moisture and keep contents from settling on the sides of the dryer. Set the dryer on low or medium heat, no higher than 150°, and check occasionally to be sure contents are circulating. A complete drying will probably take two to three cycles.

If you air dry, do not hang down articles on a single line because the weight may strain or tear seams and quilting stitches. Instead, drape across several lines; puff and separate from time to time to restore loft. Remember drying outside will take a long time – serveral days; don't forget to bring articles in each night.

Whether you use a dryer or the air, be careful to dry down thoroughly. Damp down will mildew and its loft will never again be as high as it was.

If you don't have the facilities or the time, you can send your down articles to be dry cleaned. Never dry clean down yourself. Take them to a reputable cleaner because some synthetic solvents, if used repeatedly can damage down. It's always a good idea to give dry cleaned down an extra airing before storing to remove any lingering fumes.

To store, wrap in a sheet, cotton case, or box away from heat and direct sunlight. Down must breathe – never store it in plastic.

Once cleaned and dried, your down articles are ready to use at the first drop in temperature. Just shake them out and fluff them up. For best results, put them back in a warm dryer for an hour to restore the down to its maximum loft.

Lancaster Poultry Asso. seeks queen contestants

LANCASTER — The Lancaster County Poultry Association is currently seeking contestants to compete in their 1982 poultry queen contest.

Though the pageant is scheduled as far away as August 6, Walter Mowrer, chairman of the queen contest, reports the Association "want(s) this contest to be an exciting one and (that they) are hoping for a large number of contestants."

Requirements of potential contestants are: they must be single, have completed their junior year in high school and not over 23 years of age at the time of the contest, and should, in some way, be a part of Lancaster County's poultry industry.

An added attraction for the contest this year is the awarding of a $500 educational scholarship or $300 cash for the winner, and $200 scholarship or $100 cash for the runner-up.

The poultry pageant this year will be held at the Farm and Home Center at 6:30 p.m.

All interested girls should contact Walter Mowrer, Rl, Box 243, Columbia PA 17512.

UDIA installs dairy hotline

ROSEMONT, Il — A consumer Hotline will be installed by the United Dairy Industry Association, Monday, April 26, to answer questions about dairy products from consumers and media all over the United States.

The hotline number is (800) 323-1959, and will be manned by Dairy Staff personnel from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

The first call will be made that Monday by Virginia Knauer, the White House consumer advisor, to John W. Sliter, UDIA president, to kick off National Consumer's Week, April 26-30.

"The dairy-product consumers are concerned with product values, proper diet, and rising costs, and this dairy center hotline will help us reach out to these people," said Sliter. "It will provide a valuable, free service to consumers who probably have had questions for a long time, but didn't know where to go for the answers.

Ladies Day Out features Heritage trail, luncheon, fun

LANCASTER — The spring of the year always brings with it — among other favorites such as flowers, carefree spirits, and sunny days — the long-awaited annual Ladies Day Out.

This year the event, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Farmers Association's Women's Committee, is slated for May 3 at the Indian Springs Golf Club.

As in past years, the Heritage Trail Tour will offer its sixth look at select historic homes of Lancaster County. Participants will be able to select from five homes to visit, followed by a luncheon at the Tee-Pee Room of the Golf Club.

The afternoon sessions will include an awareness quiz on cheeses and sausages; a fashion show by Posers from Park City Mall; and brief comments by staff members from PFA.

The homes included in the Heritage Trail include: 1. Lilli Ann and Galen Kopp; Eileen and Galen Benner; Erma and Clair Hollinger; Cameron Estate Inn of Betty and Abram Groff; and Marian and Elvin Brenneman.

—Lilli and Galen Kopp's home is one of Lancaster County's "Century Farms." The house was built in the mid-1800's and the barn rebuilt in 1907. Prior to 1973, the farm and home belonged to Lilli's father's foster parents.

Currently the barn contains a variety of beef cows from EmTran of Elizabethtown. The Kopps farm 112 acres of cropland.

The brick farmhouse is colonial architecture with a two-sided porch.

—Eileen and Galen Benner's home is known as the "Rocky Acre Farm," including 240 acres and 100 cows. The 16-room house was built in the early 1800s and now features a separate apartment with a walk-in fireplace. The house boasts five working fireplaces.

The home features a room where run-away slaves were hidden when the house was used as a part of an underground railway chain stretching to Canada.

—The home of Erma and Clair Hollinger features 275 acres and 100 milking cows. The white brick farmhouse has 10 rooms. The renovations, wallpapering, painting, etc. were done by Clair. Also, the home at the end of the lane was built by Clair and their oldest son in 1976 for hired help needed on the farm.

—The Inn of Betty and Abram Groff was purchased in 1981. The mansion was built in 1805 by Dr. Watson and purchased in 1876 by Simon Cameron, Lincoln's first secretary of war. In 1884 an addition was added by son Donald Cameron. The 25 rooms originally had 14 fireplaces. Today, eight remain.

The Groffs opened the Inn's dining room in mid-October for lunch and dinner accomodating up to 35 guests.

Marian and Elvin Brenneman's farm includes 134 acres and 65 cows. The home was constructed of logs, mud and straw and now includes four bedrooms, a living room and dining room. A kitchen/family room was added in recent years.

The dining room boasts a corner cupboard which was handcarved by slaves from Europe, the livingroom features a Rosewood sofa and side chair and a Chippendale ladies desk, and the kitchen is complete with cherry-stained cabinets with punched tin panels.

Marian's newest addition will also be open: "The Lavender Patch," a pig shed converted to a herb and spice potpourri shop featuring dried herb and spice wreaths.

Tickets for the day-long event are still available by contacting Ginny Ranck at 687-7353. —DK

Mushroom merchandising program begins

KENNETT SQUARE — The Fresh Mushroom Merchandising Plan, funded by members of the mushroom industry to promote fresh mushrooms in the Northeast corridor, officially kicked, April 19.

For one month, 184 stores, representing ten supermarket chains, will have 316 instore demonstrations featuring fresh mushrooms.

Placed around the demonstration tables and above the mushroom displays will be point-of-purchase material reflecting the "Fresh mushrooms — the smarter vegetable" theme.

Each of the chains participating in the Fresh Mushroom Merchandising Plan has agreed to feature mushrooms in its advertising the week before the demonstrations. Most of the chains will also place the point-of-purchase material in all their stores, even the stores not selected for demonstrations.

Stores in the local area that will have demonstrations are the New Garden Shopping Center Acme in Kennett Square, the Pike Creek Plaza Acme in New Castle, Del., the Paoli Pike Acme in West Chester and the Granite Run Mall Acme in Media. A demonstrator will be in these stores from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday, April 30, and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, May 1.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Spring is not only the season for birds and flowers but also the season for country auctions.

To attend one for the first time is an exciting experience. However many of us have been going to public sales for years and take them for granted.

For may people it is simply an excuse to get out of the house and see one's neighbors. While for others it is a continuing search for some particular item.

A few years ago my husband and I drove to central Pennsylvania in order to buy an antique desk. But when I saw the desk, I knew immediately that it wasn't what I wanted. Another time I chanced on a public sale where a coverlet was being sold. And, as it had not even been mentioned in the sale bill, I was able to buy it at a reasonable price there wasn't much competition.

Most auctioneers have their own particular chant and line of stories. When the crowed becomes too noisy they know how to quiet them without being offensive. The items that they are selling are described in such a way as to point out their flaws and still make them sound like a good practical purchase.

Before the sale when one looks over the items that are displayed on tables and watched over by a friend or relative so that they won't disappear before the sale, it is easy to feel a bit sad. Here are someone's life accumulations: the old doll, the beaded purse, the gold watch and the special cup and saucer-all being sold to strangers.

And don't forget the people who worked months to get ready for this day. Two years ago I helped to empty a ten-room house with an enormous attic and basement loaded with objects of all kinds. Some were shared, some sold and some had to be scrapped.

So the next time that you see a notice of a public sale, maybe you will want to arrange your affairs so that you can attend.

Food flavor enhancer termed 'OK'

UNIVERSITY PARK — Monosodium glutamate or MSG, a popular food flavor enhancer subject to occasional controversy, has won a "clean bill of health" from 20,000 member Institute of Food Technologists, according to AG Communications at Penn State.

The Institute has released a situation summary of MSG, as reported by Manfred Kroger, professor of food science at Penn State. MSG is described as, "a useful flavor enhancer that occurs naturally in a wide variety of foods."

In various experiments, MSG was fatal to some laboratory animals only when fed at a rate equal to three pounds for a 156 pound human. At this extreme level, force feeding was used with a stomach tube.

"Long-term feeding studies on mice, rats, and dogs showed no harmful effects at levels up to 10 percent of the diet," Kroger stated.

A study in the late 1960's, described by the IFT, indicated that large doses and high concentrations of MSG, uncommon to foods, could be toxic to the central nervous system of laboratory animals. The effect was strongest among young animals.

Although other studies failed to confirm such findings, manufacturers of baby foods removed MSG from their products, Kroger noted.

Other national studies sought to determine if MSG would affect a fetus in the womb. Using pregnant monkeys, researchers observed that monkey placentas form what was termed "a virtually impregnable barrier, apparently capable of metabolizing large amounts of glutamate.

The same scientists injected glutamate directly into the blood stream of monkeys. Only by this technique could the researchers raise the level of glutamate in the blood stream. Feeding of monosodium glutamate would not do it.

Content of glutamate in milk from human mothers was also examined. Increased MSG in the blood was not reflected by increased glutamate in the milk.

The Penn State food scientist said a few individuals are sensitive to MSG. The national report claimed 1 to 2 percent of the adult population may have a reaction to MSG. Such effects may be a tightness, tingling, or feeling of pressure in the upper part of the body. The feeling can be similar to heartburn.

Kroger suggested that such individuals should read labels carefully on pre-packaged foods, to avoid such reactions to MSG.

The quality of glutamate is further shown by its natural presence in amino acids, one of the chief components of protein. The human body, Kroger said, contains 14 to 17 percent protein, of which about one-fifth is glutamate. An adult weighing 156 pounds has 4.4 pounds of glutamate in body protein. Glutamic acid is also present in the digestive system, the blood, and other organs and tissues in varying levels.

Most people who use MSG agree that it makes good food taste even better, Kroger commented. He said it is used widely as a food flavor enhancer in China and Japan. In the United States, MSG is made from sugar beet molasses.

MSG can be helpful to people wanting to control their intake of salt, Kroger commented. Monosodium glutamate contains only 12 percent sodium compared to 40 percent in table salt.

The Institute of Food Technologists has the avowed purpose of discovering and applying new and existing knowledge to the world's food supply.

Marlin Becker, chairman of the Manheim Farm Show sale, is shown with two decorative and tasty items that were put up for bids. The two specially decorated cakes, one of which contained livestock and machinery in its frosty format, brought $95 and $100 each. In all, better than half of the cost of the new Farm Show pole barn was raised during the communitywide event last Saturday.

Manheim area farm community supports new pole barn

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

MANHEIM — In the city, it's a porch sale.

In the suburbs, it can be called a garage sale.

But in the country, it's a barn sale.

Last Saturday, the grand-daddy of recent local "barn sales" was supported by the entire Manheim area farm community for the benefit of the new 60 X 180-foot pole barn, which was recently erected to house the dairy and beef exhibits at this year's farm show.

After the last of the thousands of diverse items was sold by the battery of auctioneers, the Manheim Farm Show Committee was well along toward paying off more than half of the large pole barn, which replaces the tents damaged by a storm last year that caused cancellation of the dairy show.

Amidst the sounds of the auctioneering chants, the smells of the food concession stand and the sights of the donated items that ranged from livestock to a bathtub, hundreds of contributors and bidders milled through the farm show area during the day-long community event of cooperation and fellowship.

Total receipts from the sale amounted to $11,750, reported J. Marlin Becker, chairman of the sale. This included both the donated items and those goods that were sold on a commission basis.

In addition, some $800 was received through the food stand, another $800 from a chicken catching project by the Manheim FFA Chapter and some $1,000 in cash contributions.

Total cost of the pole barn, which is located just adjacent to the main exhibit building, is about $24,000.

Every type of item imaginable went across the auction block during the sale.

A couple of specially decorated cakes baked to commemorate the event brought $95 and $100 each.

Donated livestock included eight head of young dairy stock, three sheep, a kid goat, five hogs and a couple of roosters. Proceeds from their sale ranged from $1,025 for the oldest of the dairy animals which just freshened a few months ago to $200 for a hog.

Some 20 members of the Manheim FFA auctioned off their most important commodity — youthful enthusiasm. Donating six hours of their services toward farm work in a slave auction, their temporary "masters" paid up to $85 or $95 for the "enthusiasm."

Standing with some of the young dairy stock that was included in the sale is Luke Bruckhart, president of the Manheim Farm Show Committee.

There were antique items, such as a marble top table for $60 and $30 for a wood duck decoy.

Other items ranged from tobacco laths to firewood, from cribs to playpens, from a snowmobile to a motorcycle, from massive barn beams to hay and straw.

Luke E. Bruckhart, president of the Farm Show Committee, explained that yet another community group will be helping with the completion of the barn. The fire company is planning to install the electrical system and lighting in the new barn and will be donating half of the proceeds from the summer carnival to the Farm Show.

In another development, the Farm Show will be moving and utilizing one of the temporary classrooms at the junior high school as an office and area for the display of the adult art exhibits.

"We want to express our appreciation to all of the individuals, businesses and groups that have helped to make the sale and the addition of the pole barn such a success," Bruckhart and Becker commented on behalf of officials of the Farm Show.

"This excellent display of cooperation will aid in making improvements to the Farm Show and providing a better event for the entire community."

Safety observed in moving farm equipment

UNIVERSITY PARK - It's that time of the year when you begin moving heavy equipment on public roads.

The Pennsylvania Agricultural Safety Council warns that the mix of slow-moving vehicles with high-speed auto traffic on public roads creates hazardous traffic situations, often resulting in serious accidents.

Many farm machinery accidents on the highways involve operators below legal driving age. Many children are able to operate machinery safely in the field, but they usually lack the knowledge, judgment and experience to safely deal with the traffic and special hazards of the highway. A driver who is licensed and experienced in the ways of highway driving is more apt to make the right decisions when confronted with the hazards of moving farm equipment on high-speed roads.

"Lighting and safety equipment on farm equipment is important for safe highway travel. Equipment must be equipped with lighting required by state law," the PASC points out. National lighting standards suggest the following:

- Two headlamps.
- At least one taillight on rear of vehicle, left side.
- At least two reflectors visible from the rear end, mounted on the left and right extremities of the vehicle.
- Slow-moving vehicle (SMV) identification emblem visible from the rear, mounted point up, near center of the mass, and if possible, two to six feet high. (This emblem is required by law on all vehicles moving at less than 25 miles per hour on state highways.)
- At least two yellow flashing warning lights visible from both front and rear.
- Other important safety equipment to help insure accident-free movement of farm machinery on the highway includes:
- Drawbar hitch pin of the "safety" type with a device that locks it in place.
- A safety chain or cable to provide an extra connection between towed and towing vehicles to prevent separation of the two in case regular hitch fails.
- Wagons hauling heavy loads on highways should be equipped with brakes. The "surge" or inertia braking system is recommended. Since this type is hitch-actuated and automatically applied when towing vehicle slows down, the wagon can be towed behind any tractor.
- A fire extinguisher is needed to protect equipment during road travel as well as in the field. Choose a multi-purpose dry chemical extinguisher with a 2-A, 10B:C rating.
- Flares are important safety devices used to warn approaching traffic in case of breakdown or mishap.

Inspect slow moving vehicle emblems

UNIVERSITY PARK — Slow moving vehicles on local streets and county roads can be a traffic hazard day or night if not properly identified with a slow moving vehicle (SMV) emblem.

A slow moving vehicle is any piece of equipment designed to travel at speeds of 25 MPH or less and includes tractors and machinery, garden tractors and landscaping equipment. Operators of such equipment on public streets and highways are required by law to display the SMV emblem.

This familiar red bordered triangle with the bright orange center is designed to protect the equipment operator and the motorist. The outer red border reflects auto and truck headlights at night and the bright orange center triangle is daylight reflective.

All SMV emblems in use should be inspected. The orange centers reportedly are fading on many emblems. Continued exposure to sun and weather causes fading.

The law reads that the emblem must be visible at least 500 feet to the rear of the vehicle on which it is displayed. If the center is either faded too much or damaged, it will not be visible and thus not serve as a warning device.

Check your SMV emblem and update or replace faded or damaged ones. Clean dirty SMV emblems so they will be completely visible both day and night.

Information fact sheets on the SMV emblems are available through the County Extension Office.

Land resources map aids planning

UNIVERSITY PARK — Location and descriptions of 153 soil groups of Pennsylvania are available at an educational, non-profit cost of $3.25 in the Land Resources Map of the Commonwealth, published by the Agricultural Experiment Station at Penn State.

Presenting land resources in graphic form, the map is unlike anything published elsewhere for Pennsylvania. It brings together factors of soil depth, drainage, available moisture, and productive capacities of soils.

Published in 1976, the map has been used widely by industrial and community planners, Penn State officials report. High school and college teachers find it helpful in studying earth sciences. It was developed by Howard W. Higbee, professor emeritus of soil science, who considers it vital for soil and water resource managers.

Copies are available for $3.25, tax and shipping included, from Land Resources Map, Box 6000, University Park, PA 16802. Make check or money order payable to The Pennsylvania State University. Allow at least two weeks for delivery.

The map may also be purchased directly in room 204 of the Agricultural Administration Building at University Park. The office is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, except holidays.

Multiple patterns and colors are used to portray the 153 soil groups—coded and symbolized for identification. Each soil unit or group is evaluated by 16 characteristics. The more important characteristics are depth, soil drainage, environment, geological source of soil material, availabel moisture, plant rooting zones, and dominant crop production.

Swine Mgt. Handbook available

UNIVERSITY PARK — There are about as many different swine building systems as there are successful swine producers, according to the "Swine Management Handbook" published by Penn State's College of Agriculture.

Housing and equipment play an important role in determining labor and feed efficiency, and in avoiding disease and mortality problems with swine. A great deal of planning is required before a new building is added, present facilities remodeled, or feed and manure handling systems changed.

The "Swine Management Handbook," which includes detailed information on all forms of housing systems, is designed for use by the commercial hog producer and the general farmer who includes swine among his or her other enterprises.

One section is devoted to planning and financing the swine business. Another section deals with buildings and equipment. Other topics include breeding; feeding and nutrition; health; and marketing.

The handbook is available for $5.50. Make check or money order payable to The Pennsylvania State University and send with your name and address to Swine Management Handbook, Box 6000, University Park, PA 16802.

Boyertown to host annual quilt show

BOYERTOWN — While most people are preparing their gardens and dusting off their lawn chairs, members of the Boyertown Area Historial Society will once again be organizing one of their most important projects — their annual quilt show.

This will be the eighth year for the show slated for Saturday May 1, 10 to 6 and Sunday May 2, noon to 6. The event will be staged in the Society building, 43 South Chestnut Street, Boyertown.

The show, which features over 100 quilts, old and new, has attracted hundreds of visitors in past years. For beginning quilters, Society members will be busy stitching and happy to giver advice to interested onlookers. On view will also be a blue and white "Snowball" pattern quilt recently completed by members and friends of the Historical Society.

The highlight of the show will be a workshop and lecture conducted by renowned quilter, Jane Bair. The workshop will be held Saturday May 1, 10:30, at the Good Shephard United Church of Christ, Boyertown, and will concentrate on medallion quilts.

Blair will present general suggestions and advice on how to make these intricate textile beauties. The workshop is geared to persons who are planning to or have already made pieced tops. Tickets for the workshop are $10, and reservations must be made in advance.

Tickets for both the workshop and the lecture which follow may be purchased by making a check payable to the Boyertown Area Historical Society and sending it and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Mrs. John Horn, 147 E. Second Street, Boyertown, Pa. For additional information you can call either 367-7974 or 367-9622. Tickets for the lecture may also be bought at the show.

PGC reduces '82 antlerless licenses by 90,000

The Pennsylvania Game Commission's decision to authorize 360,500 antlerless deer licenses this year is designed to produce a reported harvest of about 57,000 whitetails, according to Game Management Chief Dale E. Sheffer.

Sheffer noted that last year the Game Commission authorized 451,250 antlerless licenses, which produced a reported harvest of 64,212 animals in the regular antlerless season. Deer taken by archers and flintlockers swelled the total reported antlerless harvest last year to 75,208.

"This year the Game Commission has decreased allocations of antlerless licenses in 41 counties, increased them in 15 counties, and left allocations unchanged in 9 counties," Sheffer said.

"The reduced allocations are primarily due to last year's heavy harvest and whitetail losses from severe conditions this past winter."

According to Sheffer, while there usually is a strong correlation between the number of antlerless licenses allocated and the number of deer taken, as well as resultant adjustments to the size of the deer herd, such is not always the case.

"Usually, an increase in antlerless licenses results in a larger harvest, and a resultant lowering of the total population.

"However, antlerless license allocations are designed this year to keep deer herd sizes at the same levels as last year in 28 counties," Sheffer said. The allocations will permit deer herds to increase in 25 counties, while total populations of whitetails should be reduced in 13 others.

Sheffer went on the explain, "Paradoxically, in some counties the number of licenses for antlerless deer will be decreased, but the number of deer in the county will be further reduced. Likewise, in some counties the allocations will be increased, but the herd will be permitted to grow.

"The seemingly contradictory situation results from combinations of factors affecting deer numbers. Such factors as reported versus actual harvest, sex ratios, age classes, percentages of yearling females, survival and productivity rates, hunter success rates, out-of-season losses, etc., all enter into the picutre," Sheffer said.

By knowing the reported and actual removal rates, the age-sex structure of the herd, productivity figures and a few other basic pieces of information, the Game Commission is able to calculate the number of deer, be sex and age, present at any given time of the year.

The key to permissible whitetail population numbers is the condition of the deer herd and the over-winter carrying capacity of the range, Sheffer says.

Game Commission studies show that about 40 deer can survive a winter in a square mile of forest in the seedling-sapling or brush (under five inches in diameter) stage of growth. In the pole timber stage, (five through eleven inches in diameter), a square mile of forest can support only about 10 deer in a typical winter. In saw timber (over eleven inches in diameter), about 20 deer can be supported per square mile.

A wildlife biologist who knows how many deer there will be prior to the hunting season can readily calculate how many deer must be removed by hunters.

The number of antlerless deer that need to be harvested will be the difference between the number of bucks that will be taken and the total number of deer that need to be removed.

The Game Commission's game management division knows the hunter success ratio and how many licenses need to be issued in each county to remove one deer during the regular two-day antlerless gun season. The figure varies from county to county and from one year to the next.

In some counties, an average of 4.96 licenses issued will result in the harvesting of a deer. In other counties, it may take an average of 24.65 licenses for each deer taken. The statewide average is 8.21 licenses to take one deer. In nineteen counties, more than 10 antlerless licenses have to be issued to harvest a deer, Sheffer says.

Thus, the number of licenses issued in any county (or the state as a whole) may not be meaningful, even from one year to the next, unless all of the factors involved are taken into account.

Jepsen legislation would make SCS top position subject to approval

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. Senator Roger Jepsen (R-Iowa) introduced legislation last Thursday to make the top positions at the Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service and Forest Service subject to Senate approval.

Jepsen's legislation would not affect Agriculture Secretary John Blocks' recent appointment of Missouri farmer Peter Myers as head of the Soil Conservation, but would apply to all future appointments.

In addition, the Iowa Republican's measure would ensure that no individual be appointed unless that individual be, "by reason of scientific education and professional experience, knowledgeable in the principles of soil conservation and water resource management ... (and) forest resources management."

"One thing our country cannot afford right now is to let soil conservation become a political football," Jepsen said. "While I do not question Myers' commitment to soil conservation, I do not like the prospect of an every-four-year shuffle in that top position, and I do not want the professional excellence and credibility of the SCS to be undermined."

Myers recently accepted Jepsen's invitation to meet with Iowa conservation leaders in Des Moines as the new SCS chief's first official visit since his appointment. Jepsen and Myers held the meeting Monday at the Marriott Hotel in Des Moines.

SLICK 50
FRICTION REDUCING METAL TREATMENT
• Reduces friction & drag • Reduces operating temperatures
• Reduces wear • Reduces oil consumption • Improves lubrication
• Improves performance • Increases horsepower • Increases gas mileage

EASY TO APPLY

No special tools or equipment is needed Simply change the oil and filter and add the recommended amount of SLICK 50 TFE RESIN COATING while the engine is running Drive the vehicle as normal and listen for "The PetroLon Purr"
CAUTION Do not apply until new car factory break-in has been achieved

HERE'S WHY SLICK 50 IS NEEDED

- Compression ratios in today's engines are going down, but engines must now work harder because people still demand high level road performance and power accessories putting a higher work load on lubrication More stringent smog controls demanding closer controlled carburation limits, unleaded fuel and higher engine rpm place a greater burden on the oil
- Higher horsepower in smaller engines also demands an increase in rpm and causes greater pressure loads and wear on costly internal engine parts
- Higher heat loads resulting from (1) Friction (2) Sustained high-speed driving combined with trailer or boat towing, (3) Emission control devices, (4) High-pressure cooling systems with water temperatures at 225-245°F, (5) Low-designed silhouettes and air conditioning systems that restrict air flow in the engine compartment, (6) High engine horsepower demands with no increase in crankcase oil capacity, (7) Increased use of power assist accessories, such as power steering, air conditioning, power brakes, etc

DIRECTIONS
SHAKE WELL BEFORE USING

(1) Drain oil and change filter (2) Refill with quality oil* to recommended capacity, less 2 quarts (3) Start engine (4) Add Slick 50 (5) Add final quart of oil * (6) Drive immediately for 30 minutes (7) Leave Slick 50 in for approximately 3000 miles After treatment, change oil and filter as recommended by manufacturer

U.S. trades $1 billion-worth of livestock, meat

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — U.S. livestock and meat trade on the North American continent last year totaled nearly a billion dollars, according to Livestock Marketing Association's Continental Livestock Commission.

The export-import totals were reported during the LMA Board of Directors meeting, held here last Friday. According to Commission Executive Officer Steve Sumner, the trade area in the Commission survey includes the U.S., Canada, Mexico, Central America, the Dominican Republic, Haiti and other Caribbean islands, with the exception of Cuba.

The Commission was founded in 1980 to explore and promote livestock and meat commerce among the nations of North America. LMA is the national trade association representing the livestock marketing sector.

The billion-dollar commerce figure consisted of over 700 million pounds of red meat, and a million head of livestock, Sumner said.

U.S. livestock and meat trade in the international market totalled $3.3 billion last year, and the intracontinental trade represents nearly a third of that figure, Sumner pointed out.

Most of the North American trade dollars last year were spent on meat, rather than livestock, he said. North American meat trade took 65 percent of the U.S. trade dollar, while other nations spent 84 percent of the trade dollar with the U.S. on meat.

It is simply more practical to transport and store meat than to move large numbers of livestock, he said. Most of the livestock moving across international boundaries last year were commercial grade, for feeding and slaughter, than purebred or breeding stock, he said.

About 97 percent of the animals moved to or from the U.S. last year in the intracontinental market remained on the continent, Sumner said.

Some of the most popular meat items in intracontinental trade last year were boneless beef, fresh and frozen pork and offal products, (specialty meats). These latter products are consumed primarily outside the U.S. and Canada.

Other highlights of the report, which was compiled from private sources, and U.S. Department of Commerce figures:

—The U.S. still consumes more meat than it produces, and is a net importer of both livestock and meat.

—Mexico has had a turnaround in their national economy from 1978-81. In 1978, the nation was a large exporter of meat and cattle to the U.S. But last year, Mexico imported 77 million pounds of meat from the U.S. and reduced their cattle exports to the U.S. as the nation attempts to raise the nutritional level of its people.

In 1978, Mexico exported 815,000 head of cattle to the U.S. In 1981 they exported 320,000 head.

—Meat sales from the U.S. to the Caribbean have more than tripled — to 46 million pounds last year — since 1978. An increase in tourism in that area is a factor, Sumner said.

4-H schedules energy workshop

LANCASTER — An Energy Education Workshop for 4-H leaders in Pennsylvania and Maryland will be held May 15 at the Muddy Run Recreation Park, Route 372, Lancaster County.

The day-long program will offer adult leaders an opportunity to review the 4-H energy and nuclear energy safety education programs. The workshop will feature a special session on the health effects of radiation and emergency planning for York, Lancaster and Chester counties, Pennsylvania, and Cecil and Harford counties, Maryland.

"Essentially, the energy program is planned to give 4-H leaders a chance to become acquainted with the many aspects of the new 4-H energy projects as well as nuclear power and radiation safety," says U. B. Bakker, Extension 4-H specialist. "The workshop will help answer some of the questions young people have about energy sources, including nuclear power."

Organized by 4-H specialists at Penn State and the University of Maryland, the energy workshop was recommended by Penn State's Community Education Advisory Committee on Science and Energy. The workshop is funded by Philadelphia Electric Company through a grant to Pennsylvania Friends of 4-H. There is no registration fee for this program and lunch will be provided.

For more information about the 4-H energy workshop, contact your local county Extension agent.

Delano calls for freer trade with Japan

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. — American Farm Bureau President Robert Delano last Friday characterized Japan as "an economic superpower whose world trade is becoming too one-sided."

Delano, spoke to West Coast newsmen for Tokyo for a series of trade discussions. He said farmers trade discussions. He said farmers and ranchers are concerned by a rising tide of trade protectionism among U.S. businessmen, workers and in Congress.

Delano said U.S. farmers have benefitted greatly over the years from enormous purchases of our agricultural commodities by Japan, our leading international trading partner.

But, the farm leader added, "Japanese traders enjoy unlimited freedom to market their goods in this country while employing numerous tariffs, quotas and other trade impediments to deny the same freedom of access to us in their markets."

Delano said Farm Bureau is strongly market oriented and has for many years supported a more open market system.

Japan's overall sales to this country exceeded their purchases by $18 billion last year and that surplus is expected to reach $20 billion this year, Delano said. He said the huge trading surplus Japan enjoys over this country carries with it the prospect of retaliatory protectionist actions now embodied in more than 30 bills before Congress.

Delano said, "It is time to take a hard look at some of the quotas and other trade impediments by which sales of certain U.S. commodities including beef, pork, citrus and other fruits, vegetables and nuts and tobacco are being severely limited in Japan."

A group of 26 state Farm Bureau presidents led by Delano and AFBF Vice President Elton Smith, spent this week in Japan. They discussed trade problems with members of the Japanese Diet, with various governmental officials, auto exporters and with consumer and farm groups there in hopes of winning freer access to Japanese market opportunities for American farmers and ranchers.

Delaware releases '81 DHIA stats

NEWARK, De. — The Dairy Herd Improvement Association has released its 1981 annual summary for the state of Delaware. The summary provides information about production levels and management practices in the state.

Farmers should use the DHIA summary as a management tool, says Delaware extension dairy specialist George Haenlein. The summary's management statistics provide keys to herd profitability.

Perhaps the most important information included in the summary deals with return over feed costs, says Haenlein. The farm with the highest milk production is not necessarily the most profitable. Profits depend on efficiency of production.

Nutrition is one of the crucial management considerations, notes the specialist. For best balance between production levels and profits, cows should be fed roughage at rates close to 2 in relation to concentrates.

Of the six highest producing dairy herds last year (Meredith at Federalsburg, Md., Eastburn at Clayton, Vanderwende at Bridgeville, Green Acres at Lewes, University of Delaware Holstein herd at Newark, and Voss at Clayton) rates of roughage fed ranged between 1.3 and 2.1. Haenlein says this influences return over feed costs since roughage is often the most profitable feed for dairy cows. Roughage is also essential for the cows' health, he says, thus reducing veterinary costs.

Efficient breeding also pays off in higher profits, says Haenlein. If a herd's average calving interval is too long, the farmer loses money. Among the top six dairy herds mentioned, the University of Delaware Holstein herd had an average calving interval of 12.5 months, followed by Green Acres Farm at 12.7 months. The combination of high milk production and low rate of roughage feeding often hinders breeding efficiency. The problem is evident in long calving intervals.

The younger the average age of a herd's cows at the time of first calving, the more efficient the farmer's use of resources. Among the top six herds, the average age of cows at the time of first calving ranged from 24 to 29 months.

The economics of dairying also improves when the average age of all cows in the herd is relatively high, Haenlein says. Raising or buying herd replacements is expensive, so it's more profitable to milk good cows for five lactations instead of only three, he says. Among the high-producing herds, the average age of cows ranged from 47 months to 60 months.

The 1981 Delaware DHIA summary also shows that average herd size has little to do with average milk production per cow. The top-producing herds last year ranged in size from 50 cows (Eastburn) to 232 cows (Vanderwende).

Good genetics means higher potential for production and profits, according to the dairy specialist. The Elite Cow list names specific cows whose genetic superiority makes them especially profitable for marketing and use as brood cows.

Farmers with one or more cows on the Elite Cow list for 1981 are: William Vanderwende and son, C. Delbert Cain or Harrington, Robert J. Meredith, Howard Webb of Lincoln, Sam Dixon, Henry Kozicki, and Philip Pierson of Clayton, Norman Voss, and William Eliason of Harrington.

To receive a copy of the 1981 Delaware DHIA summary, contact Dr. George Haenlein, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, DE 19711.

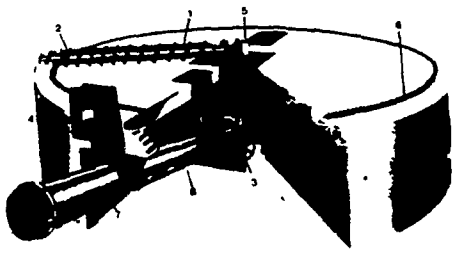
Oxygen Controlled Structure
Laidig Bottom Unloader
for Haylage - Corn Silage
High Moisture Corn

The Laidig
automatically unloads all types of silage



The Laidig unloads whole plant silage of gases, legumes and mixtures as well as shelled corn, ground ear corn and other whole or ground grains from oxygen controlled structures

The heavy duty sweep arm pivots from the center of the silo and is driven by a positive sprocket wheel drive It conveys silage rapidly to a hopper at the center of the silo where it falls into the exit auger and is carried outside Unloader operates independent of the silo wall Forage is under cut smoothly and efficiently allowing the silage to exit evenly

New USDA publications policy saves $6 million

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture will save over $6 million in fiscal 1983 by adopting the recommendation of a departmental paperwork task force, Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block said recently.

The savings will result from reduced expenditures by USDA's information and publication units, Block said.

"I expect additional savings in the future as the department moves to a user fee program for all publications beginning this October," Block said.

Block also said he has ordered a new publication management system within USDA which will:

— increase the effort to reduce publications at the agency level;

— require all new publications and reprints of existing publications to be approved at the under secretary or assistant secretary level; and — make the task force a permanent unit, to be renamed the secretary's review board.

Block said USDA had eliminated over 500 publications from the department's inventory as a result of the work of the paperwork task force.

DAIRY-TRONIC COMPUTER FEEDER

We will compare our System with any on the market for Cost, Dependability & Performance

by FARMTRONIX

LET US SHOW YOU

DAIRY-TRONIC™ THE AFFORDABLE "1"

Simple, Modular Installation
Control Unit and feed stations are linked by a simple interconnection system using low- voltage, lightweight wiring No bulky cables, no special power requirements Requires 60 cycle, 110 VAC

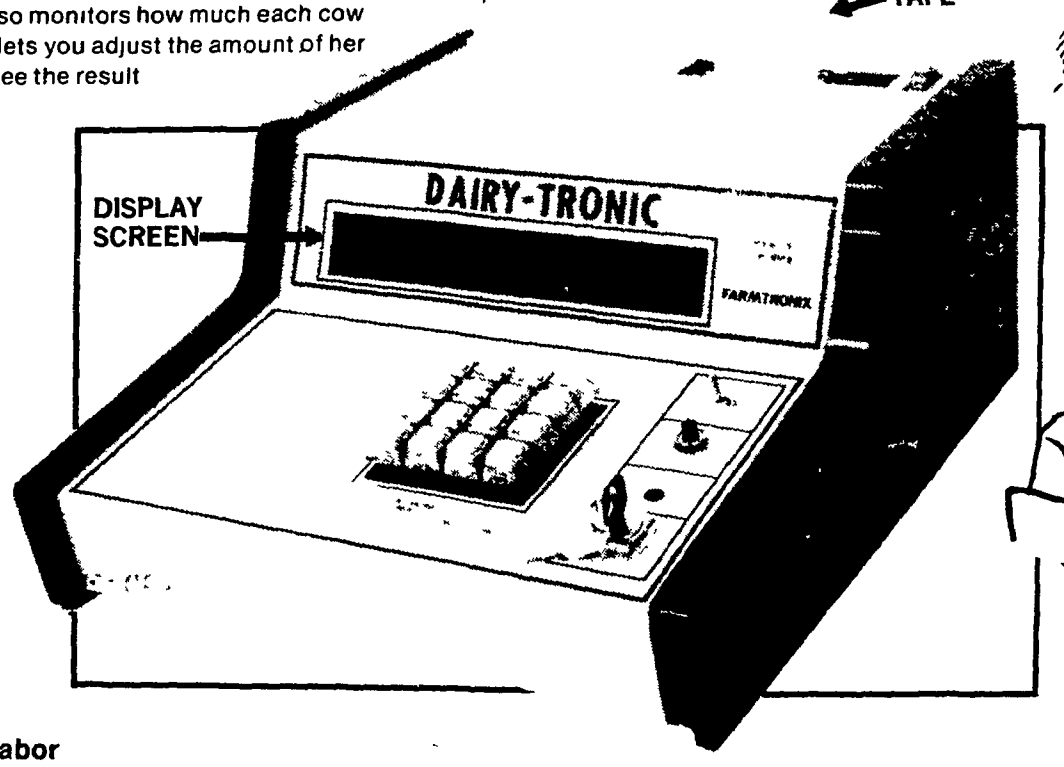
Easy to Operate
Easy to use, easy to update, the keyboard allows you to customize your feeding program for each cow Simply change rations or add cows as you wish Information about feed intake and health is at your fingertips Every 24 hours you automatically receive printouts of each cow's intake, or you may view up-to-the-minute information anytime, at the touch of a button.

Factory Warranty
All components come with a comprehensive six-month factory warranty. An extended warranty plan is available Installation supervised by factory-trained personnel

Maximum milk production, total feed control.
At last An American-made automatic dairy feeding system that adjusts to the production needs of each cow It's an affordable, easy-to-use management tool for any size herd

Positive Identification
DAIRY-TRONIC identifies each individual cow as she puts her head in the feeder, selects the correct ration, and delivers the exact amount you want her to receive

Boosts Milk Production
Lets you give each cow the correct amount of feed for best milking performance. The system also monitors how much each cow eats, and lets you adjust the amount of her ration to see the result



Saves Labor
Automatically controls feeding of your entire herd, getting the right amount to the right cows Easy to adjust, and alerts you automatically when feed hoppers or equipment malfunctions You program the entire system from one Central Control Unit installed anywhere that's convenient

Improves Herd Health
A cow with the correct amount of feed intake for her milk production level is a healthier cow Maintains optimum nutrition for breeding, while preventing over-consumption of grain The system also helps you detect sickness early, by alerting you with a mark (*) on the tape when a cow doesn't eat her full amount of feed program.

Controls Body Weight

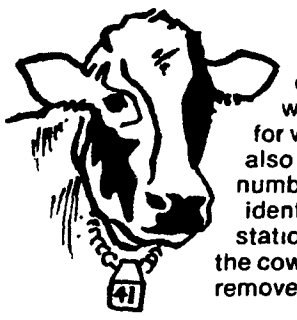
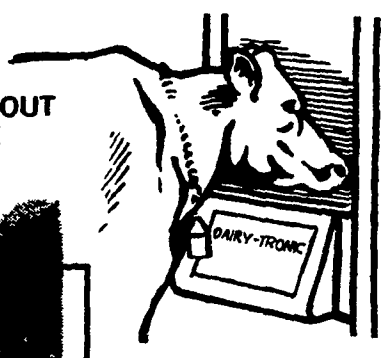
Fits Any Size Herd
FARMTRONIX offers a complete product line designed to fit many herd sizes Included in the DAIRY-TRONIC system is multiple feed station capability delivering up to four different rations to selected cows

Pays For Itself
DAIRY-TRONIC gives you the data you need to do a good job of herd upgrading It increases milk production, extends peak milking periods and allows you to keep a healthier herd through controlled feeding By reducing labor, feed costs and promoting better feed conversion efficiency, DAIRY-TRONIC adds up to profitability

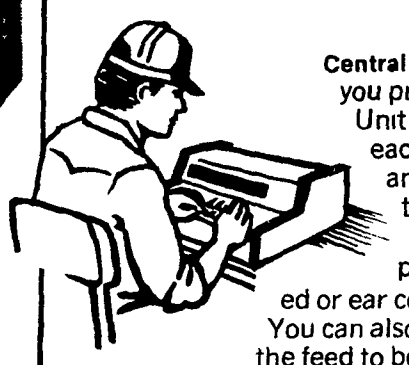
HOW DAIRY-TRONIC™ WORKS



Cow Identification Tag — each cow wears a special tag with her number engraved on it for visual identification The tag also carries the cow's coded number which is read by the cow identifier at each feeding station. Once the tag is placed on the cow, it never has to be removed or changed



Cow Identifier— when a cow puts her head in a feeder, her identification code is read by the Cow Identifier mounted on the front panel of each feed station. A signal is transmitted back to the Central Control Unit, and the feeder automatically dispenses the correct ration and amount of feed for that particular cow. Feed is dispensed at a controlled rate which matches a cow's normal rate of consumption If she moves away or is pushed aside feed delivery stops



Central Control Unit— you program the Central Control Unit for the exact amount of grain each individual cow should receive, and select any combination of up to four different feed rations including concentrate, complete feed, high moisture shelled or ear corn that any cow can obtain You can also instruct the unit how you want the feed to be dispensed throughout the day The daily printout will alert you when your cows eat less than its programmed feed level The Central Control Unit may be installed in your house for convenient access

To study potassium leaching

Del. soil scientist wins grant

NEWARK, Del. — Donald L. Sparks, a soil scientist at the University of Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station, has received a $24,000 grant from the Potash and Phosphate Institute to study the effects of potassium leaching on corn yields, especially on sandy soils like those in lower Delaware.

The three-year grant will help him explore ways to minimize loss of this nutrient, which leaches readily under heavy rain or irrigation.

The project will involve five sites around the state, representing major soil types used for farming in Delaware. Experiments will be conducted in cooperation with farmers using conventional tillage under irrigation.

Collaborating with Sparks on the project is David Parker, a research associate in the university's soil test lab. The two want to learn what effect different rates of potassium and split applications will have on corn yield.

Many growers in this area already spoon-feed nitrogen to their corn in frequent small amounts over the growing season in order to reduce loss of that nutrient. Will a similar approach work for potassium?

To find out, Sparks says they will apply potassium at three different times to plants in his study — at planting, when the corn is knee high, and just before silking.

Sparks has just completed a two-year-study — also with assistance froma Potash and Phosphate Institute grant — to determine the amount of potassium leaching that occurs on Delaware soils. Results of that study show there's considerable leaching under irrigation and that much of the loss occurs soon after application — especially on sandy soils.

This means corn plants may not benefit much from the fertilizer put down. The problem is common on sandy soils all along the East Coast.

"We feel that under high yield conditions, when farmers are shooting for 200 bushels or more with high plant populations under irrigation, we need to look closely at potassium leaching," the soil scientist says.

In some cases, the potassium that's leached may remain in the root zone area where it's still available to plants. In others, the subsoil may be so deep that roots can't reach the potassium.

"We can't make broad generalizations about this," Sparks says. "We have to look at individual soils to learn what's happening. But we think splitting the potassium may have merit on some soils."

For the purpose of the project, the potassium will be applied broadcast as muriated potash. Fate of the nutrient will be monitored through frequent soil and plant tissue analyses over the growing season to test the concept of a spoon-feeding approach.

Sparks and Parker say they hope their findings will help to improve soil test recommendations on these type of soils, particularly under high yield conditions.

U. of Del. soil scientist Donald Sparks, left, accepts a check from W.K. Griffith, eastern regional director of Potash and Phosphate Institute, while plant science department chair Charles R. Curtis looks on. The grant goes to support Experiment Station research on potassium leaching from Delaware soils.

"Jogger," "12H" join P. Hereford elite

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Four Polled Hereford bulls have achieved award-winning levels of performance within the American Polled Hereford Association's Superior Sire Program.

Adventure 10J, owned by Beartooth Ranch, Columbus, Mont., Check Point Ranches, Huson, Mont., and Willow Creek Farms, Watertown, S.D.; and YPH Victor 253 465, owned by Youngs Polled Herefords, Kuttawa, Ky., and F & F Company, Burnett, Texas, were named Gold Seal Sires.

BT L1 Advancer 12H and Will-Via Justa V, "Jogger," have been named Gold Standard Sires. 12H is owned by Beartooth Ranch; Australian 12H Syndicate, Sydney, Aust.; Ponderosa Ranch Ltd., Lloydminster, Sask.; and Wingert Stock Farm, Ottawa, Kan. "Jogger's " owners are Will-Via Polled Hereford Farm, Mooresville, N.C., and Georgetown Farm, Free Union, Va.

The Gold Seal testing program gives nation-wide comparisons of some of the country's top bulls, according to APHA Director of Education and Research Jim Gibb. Birth weight, growth rate and carcass merit are measured in test herds where the calves sired by all bulls have an equal opportunity to perform. The bulls are ranked on their ability to sire calves with a greater amount of lean growth, and Gold Seal Sires have proven ability to sire such calves.

In addition to achieving Gold Seal Sire status, 12H and "Jogger" are Gold Trophy Sires, based on the show ring performance of their offspring. This combination of Gold Trophy and Gold Seal made them eligible for the Gold Standard award. These bulls join the elite ranks of 79 Gold Seal Sires and 23 Gold Standard Sires.

Polled Hereford Assn. announces Gold Trophy awards

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Thirteen Polled Hereford cows and one bull were recently awarded the coveted Gold Trophy award, according to an announcement from the American Polled Hereford Association.

Currently 72 bulls and 103 females have qualified for this prestigious title, according to APHA Vice President Jim Harris. To be eligible, a bull must accumulate 100 points based on the performance of his calves at designated Standard of Perfection Polled Hereford shows. To earn Gold Trophy status, a cow must earn 35 points through her offspring's performance.

The newcomer to the Gold Trophy Sire list is BT PRL Driver 536L, owned by Beartooth Ranch, Columbus, Mont.; Ponderosa Ranch Ltd., Lloyd minister, Sask.; Edwards Polled Hereford Farms, Harrison, Ark.; and Cen-Cal Polled Herefords, Pleasant Grove, Calif.

Driver netted all 137 of his SOP points at the last two SOP shows of the season — the National Western Stock Show in Denver, Colo., and the 59th National Polled Hereford Show in Jackson, Miss. In addition to winning classes and taking divisional titles, Driver's offspring took the top spots in the get-of-sire and calf get-of-sire competitions at both shows. Driver himself holds the 58th National reserve grand champion bull title.

The 13 new Gold Trophy Dams and their owners are: Antonio Mis J3 270F, Beartooth Ranch, Columbus, Mont.; CR Lady Vie K74 E393, My Way Farm, Inc., Canfield, Ohio; Miss Anx Supreme 6D, Beartooth Ranch and Stephen Kautz, Lodi, Calif.; KF Mis Boj Wdrw 69, Fair Acres Stock Farm, Wasldorf, Minn., Louada Isa June 113H, Double M-B Ranch, Southwick, Mass. In the over-all standings WSF PRL Justa Banner remains in the top spot on the Gold Trophy Sires list. Justa Banner gained the number one ranking three years ago and has accumulated 2,832 points to lead the pack. Justa Banner's owners are Gullikson Polled Herefords, Bath, S.D.; Ponderosa Ranch Ltd.; Wooden Shoe Farm, Othello, Wash.; and C.E. Brehm Estate, Belle Rive, Ill.

The new leader on the list of Gold Trophy Dams is Coppertone F Sara, owned by Split Butte Ranch, Rupert, Idaho; and Beartooth Ranch.

Bees suffer hard winter's sting

UNIVERSITY PARK — Pennsylvania's bees are suffering from the sting of a hard winter. That could mean problems for fruit growers as well as beekeepers.

"Many bee colonies suffered extensive population losses," confirms Clarence H. Collison, assistant professor of entomology Extension at Penn State.

"It's due to a combination of things; a poor nectar flow last fall and the harsh winter with almost no thaws to allow bees to leave the winter cluster to replenish the food supply."

Pennsylvania bees, particularly those in the northern part of the state, depend heavily on goldenrod for their nectar, Collison says. But the nectar flow was not adequate because the goldenrod had not fully recovered from drought conditions the year before.

Also, weather was cold and wet during the time when the plant bloomed. Thus the bees, who don't like nasty weather, did not get enough nectar to make enough honey to last the winter.

The loss of bees means fewer dollars for the state's estimated 5,000 beekeepers this year. In 1981, Pennsylvania bees produced approximately $2.11 million worth of honey and another $116,000 worth of wax, Collison says.

In addition, fruit growers depend on pollination from bees to stimulate a good crop. If they have to import bees, it could affect the price of fruit.

"All tree fruits except peaches require the rental of truckloads of bees into the orchards to spur pollination," Collison says.

Peach trees require only the attention of local bees that happen to be in the neighborhood, he says. Other fruit growers rent bee colonies at $15 to $20 per colony. There are between 30,000 and 40,000 bees in a colony.

No matter how harsh the winter has been, at least some Pennsylvania bees survive because they are moved to Florida each winter.

"Every year, about 6,000 colonies are moved south from this state," notes Collison. "This accomplished two things; it builds up the colonies and enables the bees to make orange blossom honey, which is popular among consumers."

Less fortunate beekeepers whose colonies were ravaged into winter have several options, he says. They can purchase bees from the south; they can use "stimulative feeding" to bolster their hives. Many fed their bees in the winter in an effort to keep them alive.

Also, they may be fortunate enough to find a swarm of wild bees and make them their own.

"When people see a swarm of bees on a tree branch in the neighborhood, they'll often call a beekeeper to come and get rid of them," says Collison.

It's too soon to determine just how severe the loss of bees has been, he notes.

"April can be a critical month. The weather turns warm and the bees go out and get pollen. Then they start to raise brood. If a cold-wet spell comes there may not be enough food to handle the hive's expanding population and some bees will starve."

PFU endorses Arena

HUNTINGTON — The Board of Directors of the Pennsylvania Farmers Union announced its support for the construction of the proposed AG Arena at Penn State. To help in the overall effort to raise $900,000 of contributions for the arena fund, the Board called on its president to form a fund-raising committee.

President James Brown appointed York County Farmers Union President Albert Bentz, Fulton County President Miriam Blankley, and staff members Chet Reed, Chuck Heynes and Jim Graci to serve on the Ag Arena Committee. Graci will coordinate the committee's efforts from the state office in Harrisburg.

"Our preliminary plans are for a number of local fund-raising events, and commitments from our 37 counties to help raise funds for the Ag Arena," said Brown. "We plan to conduct the bulk of our fund raising during the summer months."

"We think the arena is an investment for our children," Brown said. "Penn State is long overdue for an Ag Arena, and Farmers Union wants to help in any way possible."

Any member wishing to join in the fund raising effort should contact Graci at 1-800 932-4629.

COME TO WHERE THE MIXERS ARE IN STOCK

Make every bite right.

Combine Ensilmixer® feed mixer, with scales, and a Jamesway® TMR system.

You can increase production Reduce feed costs And improve labor efficiency All, when you use an Ensilmixer feed mixer, with scales, by Oswalt® to round out your Jamesway Total Mixed Ration (TMR) feeding system (including silage distributor unloaders, conveyors and cattle feeders) Or, use it with any mechanized feeding system Whether you prefer the stationary, trailer mounted or truck mounted model, it's a real profit building management tool

Unique mixing pattern blends feed thoroughly Three augers move feed

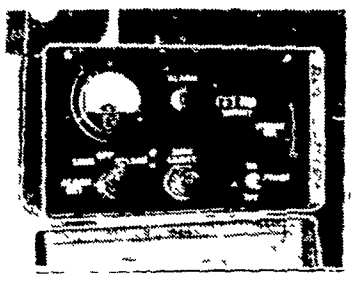
from front to back and side to side Reverse flighting at both ends lets feed fall freely for recirculation or discharge by the bottom auger Uniformly mixes even partial loads

Precisely weighs ingredients. Accurate weighing means consistent, balanced rations, eliminates waste Lets you calculate the amount of feed needed and mix that much Weigh bar system is standard, electronic scales optional



That s why the Ensilmixer feed mixer, with scales, and TMR feeding system are right for you as well as your cattle And, can help make farming just a little bit better Ask your Jamesway Power Chorıng dealer

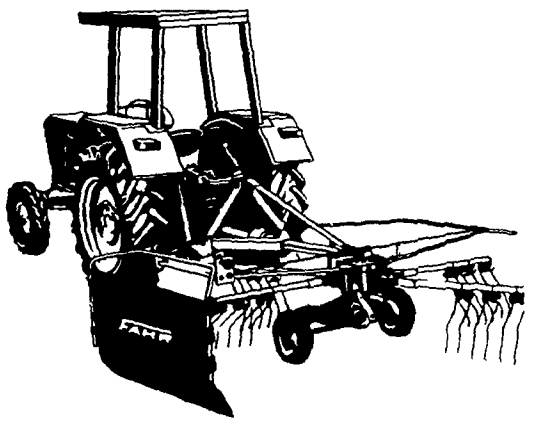
DEUTZ-FAHR... THE GENTLE POWER IN THE HAYFIELD.



More leaves — less tangle.

The circular raking pattern of the Deutz-Fahr Rotary Windrow Rake gives you fluffy, tangle-free windrows that are easy to pick up Gentle handling saves leaves and stems for higher protein content in your hay

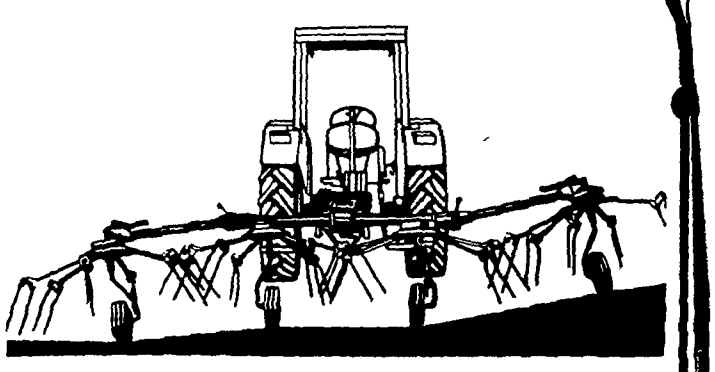
Stop in soon and check out the new Deutz-Fahr Rotary Windrow Rake See why Deutz-Fahr is the gentle power in the hayfield

DEUTZ FAHR

Touches hay only once!
Two Models - 9'8" and 12' width.

Available for the first time from us thru change in Deutz marketing.

DEUTZ-FAHR... THE GENTLE POWER IN THE HAYFIELD.



The hay's down and it rained.

The rains may soak your cut hay, but the Deutz-Fahr Centipede Haymaker can save your crop It lifts, turns, fluffs, spreads and flexes the stems to release moisture fast You get fast air-drying, save more nutrients and maintain hay quality

Two models - 9' and 17' width
Some farmers also use it as a rake.

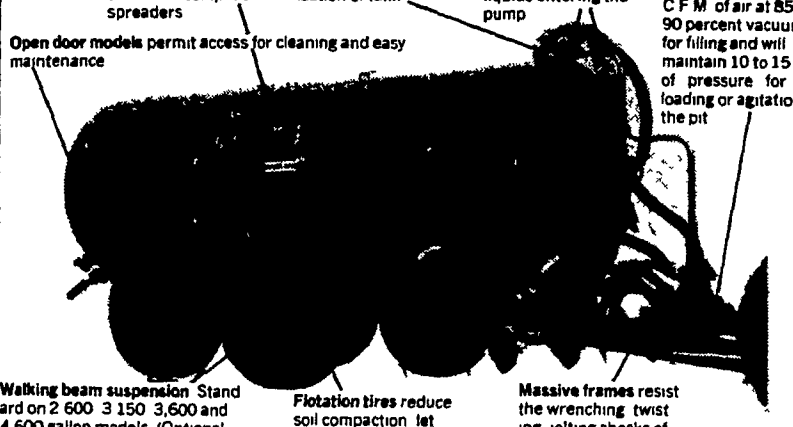
SALES * SERVICE * PARTS
537 E. 28th Div. Hwy. Lititz, PA 17543
717-626-6198

Outstanding Features



Thick walled for extra strength No spreader on the market has thicker walls 30 to 70% thicker steel than competitive spreaders

Adjustable relief valve maintains uniform pressure Prevents over pressurization of tank

Primary Shut-Off valve, plus a second ary shut-off, provide more than adequate protection against liquids entering the pump

Big 512 cubic inch displacement pressure-vacuum pump is standard equipment Conservation rated at 135 C F M of air at 85 to 90 percent vacuum for filling and will maintain 10 to 15 lbs of pressure for unloading or agitation in the pit

Open door models permit access for cleaning and easy maintenance

Walking beam suspension Standard on 2 600 3 150 3,600 and 4 600 gallon models (Optional on 1,500 & 2 100 gallon models) Front & rear wheels on each beam follow contour of the ground, provides a smooth level ride

Flotation tires reduce soil compaction let you spread on soft ground early in season

Massive frames resist the wrenching twisting jolting shocks of hard field usage year after year

Sizes - 800 gal. thru 4600 gal.
Both vacuum & augermatic spreaders for truck mount or trailer type

The Vicon KM-240 cuts and conditions the tallest, tangled, wettest, heaviest, hay. This new mower-conditioner eliminates a pick-up reel, so you can put up more hay - FASTER. With a working width of 7'10", it can mow twice as much area in a day as most competitive models. Most competitors use a pick-up reel, which limits ground speed, adds maintenance problems and allows leaf loss.

The Vicon six-disc cutter bar feeds your crop directly, stem first, into rubber rollers that condition green hay or wet grass. It dries faster and bales easier, saving time and labor.

The KM-240 has no chains, no belts, no sickle bar. If you need only a mower, look at the Vicon CM-165 (4 discs-5½' working width) or the CM-240 6 discs-7'10" working width). Both make clean cuts in heavy grass or tangled crops.

HARSH HOISTS

WHY BUY A COPY...WHEN YOU CAN HAVE AN ORIGINAL?

- Thirty years as the leader in hoist design and research makes HARSH the name to be trusted in hydraulic hoists.
- Unique telescopic scissor hoist.
- Models available to fit 12-26 ft. bodies.
- The one-piece Rigid-Lift hoist weighs less than the competition's hoist and "add-on" unit.
- HARSH's one-piece unit is quickly installed.
- And best of all, the price of an original HARSH Rigid-Lift hoist is competitive with all the copies!

If Cool or wet weather persists and you are forced to plant late this year-OR-you are unable to plow as much as you would like, consider an IH 800 No-Till "early-riser" planter as a solution!

WHY??

An IH 800 planter has- staggered disc seed openers for maximum penetration in hard or trashy conditions; the narrowest seed opener in the industry- a proven performer in difficult sod conditions, heavy trash and wet lands; heavy construction, no extra weight needed; close coupled configuration-our own design -only 51" from the no-till colter penetration to the press wheel - ideal for contours, hillsides, and uneven ground, seed treatment or soybean innoculant is evenly mixed in one hopper seed types can be changed in record time! No tools or swearing is needed; on plate models, plates are changed within seconds.

IH no-till planters will planter and cover the seed in any type of ground, seed trenches are closed up tight so spray or pests can't interfere with germination. Even on trashy, uneven hillsides you will get a good stand

IH 800 planters for the 80 s Stop in and see why IH is the most advanced No-till planter on the market today!
FREE 2 year warranty!

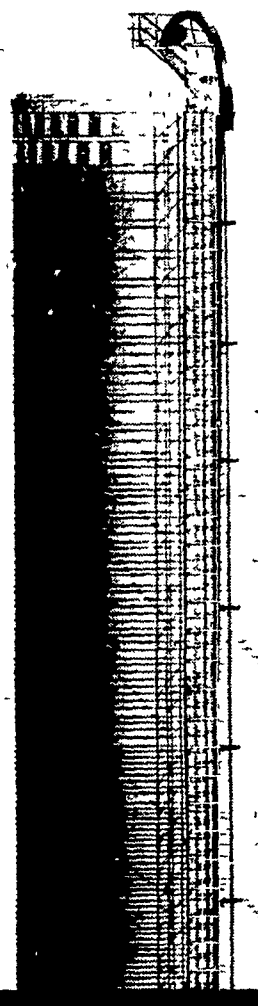
THIS IS THE BEST WAY TO PUT UP YOUR FORAGE CROP—HERE'S WHY:



1 Better light reflectivity. The light gray Madison Vibra-Cor® staves reflect light 2½ times better than dark blue—and better than any other stave. Result: Less temperature fluctuation in the structure.

2 Better insulation value. Concrete is a much better insulation material than steel! And the unique Vibra-Cor® design makes a Madison stave better than any other concrete stave. Result: Your Madison provides lowest possible temperature variations.

Early Order Discounts Now In Effect. Call Today!

4 The best unloader. Laidig. Madison helped develop it and knows it inside and out. So your new Nutri-Matic® was designed to make the most of this remarkable unloader that's been called "the best there is"!

5 Greater capacity. Because a Madison Nutri-Matic® doesn't require space-robbing breather bags, you get a bonus of extra capacity! Up to four feet of valuable extra room.

6 Better service. Ask a Madison owner. For 65 years, Madison service people have been building a reputation that can't be beat.

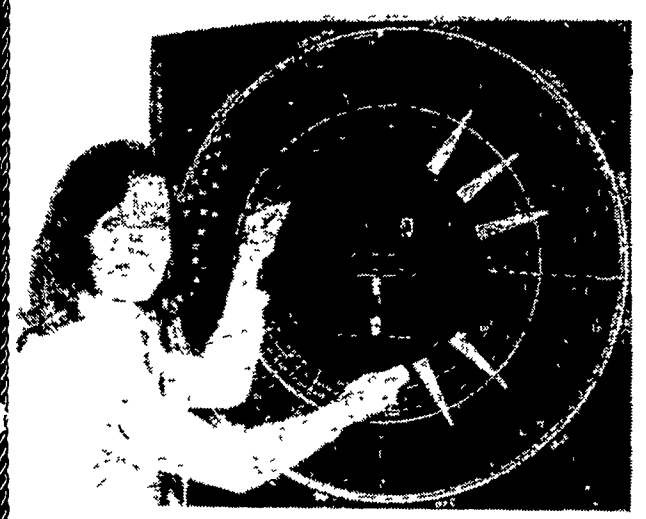
INCREASE PROFIT MARGIN WITH A BRAY MAGNETIC BREEDING CALENDAR



Each cow individually recorded with colored magnetic dice which makes all systems using pins and tabs obsolete.

Six patented revolving 21 day hands give a complete account of cows heat cycle.

Revolving hands give you day to day status every day 365 days a year.

Tells you EVERYTHING you need to know about every cow in your entire herd at a glance!

No chance of overlooking ANY cow.

Owners say they have saved enough to pay for the calendar in less than 1 year in herds of 35 or more cows.

You Can Improve Your Herd Breeding Efficiency Greatly By Using A Bray Magnetic Breeding Calendar

Protein-pricing hopes flavor Md. Jersey sale

KEYMAR, Md. — Talk of surplus milk certainly had its effect on the Maryland Jersey Cattle Club Sale held last Saturday at Gaywinds Farm, Keymar, Md.

Auctioneer Braden King found it necessary to remind buyers several times "protein-pricing is coming," and "the prices you pay today are setting the price of every cow you have at home."

Even with these reminders Braden worked for nearly four hours to sell 41 head of outstanding Jerseys from Maryland, Pennsylvania, Delaware, and Virginia.

As one well-known breeder stated, "I don't need more cows, but I know at these prices I could make out on the type of Jerseys sold here today."

The top-selling Jersey was Sleeping Empire Lady, a 2-year-old consigned by E.J. Zwicker of Pursellville, Virginia, selling to Dorcas Bonafield of Centreville, Md for $1,025.

The second highest-selling animal was 3-year-old Stilesrite Samsons Sweet Sandy consigned by Karen L. Hobaugh of Hanover, going for $1000 to Edward Staley of Taneytown, Md. Although the Staleys are Holstein breeders, it seems that their son, Scott, has developed an interest in Jerseys for his 4-H project, and this cow will be one of his foundation animals.

An extremely sharp group of Jersey heifers and calves were found in the Maryland sale offering. Several 4-H and FFA members could be seen bidding, with the help of their parents, on what they hoped would be a winner for this year.

The high-selling heifer was Dreams Golden Gal, an August 1981 calf consigned by Clyde McConaughey and Family of Smicksburg. She sold to Dutch Lusk of Charleroi for $850.

The heifer not only offered show prospects but also a pedigree that included both production and show winnings throughout. The McConaugheys noted that this is the first heifer they've ever sold out of the "Sleeper" cow line that is well-known part of their herd of Jerseys.

The average price paid on 41 head of Jerseys was $634.12.

High-selling heifer of the Maryland Jersey Sale was consigned by Clyde McConaughey and family of Smicksburg and sold for $850 to Dutch Lusk, center, of Charleroi. Sandy Stern, left, the Maryland Jersey Queen, assisted with the sale as did Duean Stiles, right, of Damascus, Md.

Cornell disperses Simmental herd at May 8 sale

ANGELICA N.Y. — The dispersion of the Cornell University's registered Simmental herd will be featured at the Third Annual Breeders Sale to be held at 1 p.m. on May 8 at the Angelica Feeder Sales Barn.

The sale will include 110 lots of registered and commercial cattle, including five bulls. Breeds represented in the consignments include Angus, Charolais, Polled Hereford, Shorthorn and Simmental as well as crossbred cattle. All will be tested for interstate shipment.

The dispersion of the Simmental herd is due to budget reductions at Cornell that have forced a curtailment of some phases of the purebred beef program at the University. A Cornell spokesman said the college hopes to return to a Simmental herd when economic conditions improve and the purebred program can be strengthened.

The 31 lots in the Cornell Simmental consignment include cows due to calve before or shortly after the May 8 sale date. Reference sires for these Simmental females include LaCombe Achilles 261A, one of the most popular of all Simmental bulls. He has sired more than 10,000 calves. Another reference sire is J.S. Sir Duke Lee, the top selling Simmental bull at the 1981 New York Bull Test Sale. The Cornell consignment includes 19 brood cows, eight open heifers and four bred heifers.

Another feature of the sale will be the 11 crossbred cows with calves at side and seven Simmental crossbred yearling heifers from the herd of Ernie Wetzel of Fillmore, N.Y.

Other N.Y. consignments include Simmental cows from Alexander Farms of Interlaken; Charolais females from Meadow View Farm of Frankfort; Charolais females and a bull from Mary and Bob's Farm, Hannibal; Angus females from Nel-Mar Farm of Franklinville; Polled Hereford cows from the Neal Farm of Fillmore; Simmental Hereford heifers from Leroy Poorman of Waterloo; Simmental cows from Harold Maynard of Campbell; Polled Hereford cows and a bull from George Reitmeir of South Wales, Polled Hereford heifers from the 5J Farm of Falconer; Angus cows and bull from Blazey Hill Farm of Victor; and Angus Simmental yearling heifers and an Angus bull from Rasweiler Angus Farms of Hollowville.

The bulls consigned must have a performance score of 12 and a minimum frame score of three for British breeds and five for the Continental breeds. All of the cattle have been screened for quality on the farm.

This is the third annual spring sale of registered and grade breeding cattle to be sponsored by the Southwestern Division of the New York Beef Cattlemen's Association. Sale chairman James Ford of Angelica said, "Our first two sales in 1980 and 1981 clearly demonstrated the need for a market for grade and registered foundation animals of quality.

"We are even more excited about the quality of cattle consigned to our 1982 sale and pleased to have been asked to disperse the Cornell University Simmental herd at our division-owned sale barn.

Catalogs and more information may be obtained from Ford at R1, Angelica N.Y. 14708 716/466-7872.

The Southwestern Division of the New York Beef Cattlemen's Association is also sponsoring a sale of feeder calves and yearlings at 1 p.m. May 1 at the Angelica Sale Barn. Three hundred head are expected to be consigned. The calves and yearlings will be "packaged" in pens according to sex, weight and quality by a team of livestock students from Alfred State College. Information about this sale may be obtained from Fran Heitman of Angelica or Ford.

U.S., Soviet grain talks resume

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Senators Roger Jepsen (R-Iowa) and Bob Dole (R-Kan) announced, last Friday that the United States and the Soviet Union will meet in Paris, France on May 21 and 22 to resume semi-annual consultations called for under the current US-USSR grain supply agreement.

According to the Republican senators, "Agreement on scheduling these important talks is a vital and necessary step toward restoring normal grain trade relations between the two countries and in strengthening U.S. farm prices."

"It was clear after our meetings March 19th with Soviet Ambassador Dobrynin that these regularly scheduled consultations were necessary to both sides to make sure we have put embargoes, threats to embargoes, and psychological embargoes behind us. Let this be a sign that the United States has returned to its status as a reliable trading partner, and that the Soviet Union has welcomed its role as a vigorous trading partner," the senators said.

The consultation announcement comes four weeks after Jepsen and Dole met with top Soviet officials in order to revive the faltering dialogue over current and future grain trade.

Following that meeting, Jepsen and Dole announced the prospects for increased Russian purchases of U.S. corn and wheat were more promising, providing both sides would take the required steps to formally reopen grain trade.

"With today's announcement of consultations, we believe those steps have now been taken," the senators concluded. "We fully expect the Russians to pursue the opportunities for grain purchases already available."

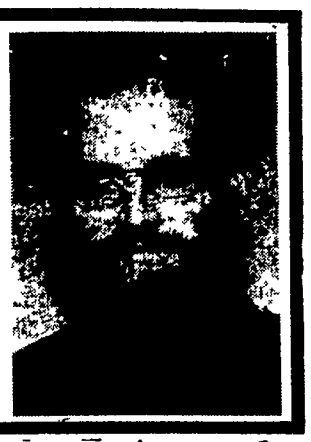
Farming's Futures

By David K. Sauder
Commodity Advisor
Trade Tech, Lancaster



We were recently asked to explain how to read the futures price quote tables in newspapers.

Terminal newspapers such as the Wall Street Journal and the Journal of Commerce give you every commodity price traded each day. Dairly newspapers quote the daily prices they think will be of interest to most of their readers. Lancaster Farming gives you weekly prices on selected farm commodities.

The commodities covered include grains and oilseeds, livestock and meat, food and fiber, metals and petroleum, wood and financial. Here's what you need to know to read the price tables.

- The list of months (1) tells you the months the commodity is traded.
- Prices (2) are given for each month.
- Open (3) means the price traded at the opening bell of the day.
- High (4) means the highest price traded that day.
- Low (5) means the lowest price traded that day.
- Settle (6) means the price where the market closed that day.
- Lifetime High (7) means the highest price the current contract for that month has traded.
- Lifetime Low (8) means the lowest price the current contract for that month has traded.
- Open Interest (9) means the nember of contracts for the month that are not closed.
- Volume (10) is the number of contracts traded during the day for the month stated.
- Estimated Volume (11) is given until the actual volume can be reported.
- Initials (12) after the commodity named tell you the market where traded: CBT = Chicago Board of Trade; CME = Chicago Merchantile Exchange, etc.
- Numbers (13) after the commodity name tell contract size.

Send your questions about futures trading to Farming's Futures, Lancaster Farming Newspaper, Box 366, Lititz, PA 17543.

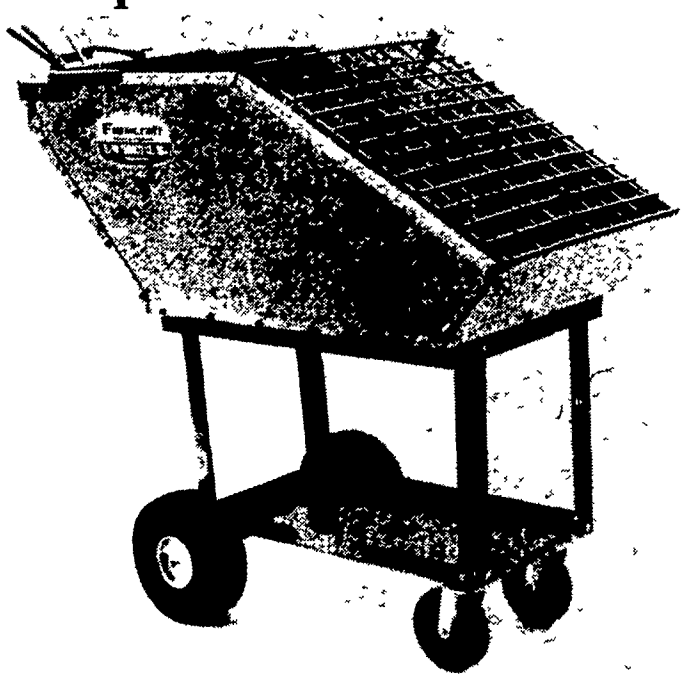
Delphi introduces feed cart



A multi-purpose feed cart, which comes knocked down to save assembly costs, is introduced by Delphi Products Co. division of Underhill Industries, Inc., Delphi, Ind. In addition to holding 130 lbs. of feed, it contains a single baby pig holder, which frees both hands for inoculating, vaccinating, clipping tails or ear notching. The empty feed compartment can be used to hold or move baby pigs. The cart, built of galvanized steel, has a removable tray on top and a shelf below for tools and other equipment.

ABS offers club calf kit

DE FOREST, WI. — To help cattlemen get an extra edge on the club calf market, American Breeders Service has just published a new four-color kit entitled "The Proven Way to Success with Club Calves."

"Whether you're breeding or showing club calves, this kit can help you select bulls who sire high-performing, functional calves that are fancy enough to show and sell well," according to Keith Vander Velde, ABS manager of beef programs.

The ABS Club Calf Kit includes 8" x 10" color photos of proven superior club calf sires. These photos are suitable for display above a calf's sale or show pen and are handy to use as sales tools on a one-on-one basis when marketing your club calves.

Also included in the kit are progeny appraisals for each individual bull featured and suggestions on how to use each of the sires to get the kind of calves buyers want.

Cattlemen can receive a free copy of "The Proven Way to Success with Club Calves" from their local ABS representative, who's ready to help with their club calf program. Or write: American Breeders Service, Box 459, DeForest, Wisconsin 53532.

Kit from American Breeders Service is designed to help produce and market club calves.

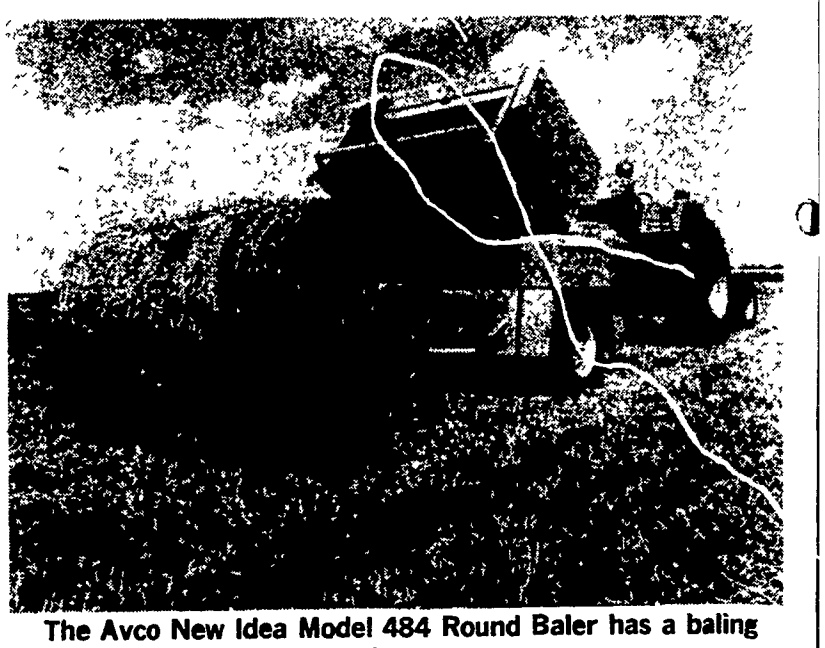
Round baler features fixed-chamber

COLDWATER, OH. — Designed and manufactured by Avco New Idea, the Model 484 Round Baler features a "fixed-chamber" design baling principle to form bales 5' wide and 4' high. Hay bales weight up to 900 pounds depending on the crop.

The unique design (wide open throat and fixed position cylindrical baling chamber) allows easy operation at high speeds and produces uniform bales every time. Bale compression is greatest during the final stages of bale formation, so New Idea bales are formed with very dense outer shells to resist moisture penetration and maintain their cylindrical shape and less dense cores to facilitate drying.

Other unique feature include extra high clearance at the hitch which allows large windrows to enter the machine unobstructed. A simple unique mechanical bale chamber latching device eliminates the need for complex hydraulic latching systems or spring/hydraulic mechanisms.

Also new is the electrically controlled dual twine guide mechnism which reduces bale tying time by wrapping the bale from the center to both ends simultaneously...wrap spacing is automatically controlled.



The Avco New Idea Model 484 Round Baler has a baling capacity of about 15 tons per hour.

A tractor-mounted bale monitoring device signals with a light and buzzer when the bale is ready to be tied and ejected.

Bale forming belts are a new nylon and rubber design. They're molded, endless, lacing-free and in laboratory tests lasted over 40 times longer than belts of similar material with lacing splices. On-the-farm tests include balers having produced over 7,000 bales without belt failure. Other on-farm testing reveals the 484 is superior in all types of hay, grasses, and especially in hard to bale crop residues like corn stalks and straw.

Baling capacity is 40 bales, about 15 tons of hay, per hour.

AC to honor Safe Harbor contracts

MILWAUKEE, Wis. — Allis-Chalmers Corporation fully intends to honor all "Safe Harbor" lease/ownership contracts, regardless of any possible Congressional action which may amend the tax laws.

The new "Safe Harbor" lease/ownership program being offered by Allis-Chalmers Credit Corp. provides three major farmer benefits: a 9.9 percent equivalent annual finance rate over the five-year term of the lease; a Federal Income Tax advantage which allows the farmer-lessee to take a tax deduction for the entire lease payment; and a guaranteed bargain purchase option at the end of the lease period for the preset cost of only $1.00.

"Safe Harbor" lease/ownership is the term used to describe the new lease-purchase, or full payout, lease plan available as a result of the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981. The Act was designed to stimulate capital investment and, for the first time, treats a full payout lease as a true lease for Federal Income Tax purposes.

Concern has been raised in recent weeks, however, about the future of "Safe Harbor." Certain provisions of the law have been debated in Washington in recent weeks, and changes in the tax law may result. The nature of these changes, if any, and whether or not the changes will be made retroactive, have caused some concern among farmers about the wisdom of entering into a "Safe Harbor" lease/ownership contract.

"We are hopeful that if Congress amends the "Safe Harbor" tax laws, they will at least retain the elements which allow us to continue to offer our attractive "Safe Harbor" lease/ownership package," says Jon Arno, director of marketing for Allis-Chalmers Credit Corp.

"However, we fully intend to honor all contracts we sign, no matter what changes are made in law. Even if the law is repealed, retroactively, we will still guarantee a 9.9 percent equivalent annual finance rate for five years and will hold to our $1.00 bargain purchase option at the end of the lease period on contracts signed and in effect. Essentially, Allis-Chalmers is assuming the risk, not the farmer."

Under the provisions of the Act which are now in effect, Allis-Chalmers, as the lessor, retains the Investment Tax Credit but passes the benefit on to the customer in the form of the low 9.9 percent equivalent finance rate. Also under the current provisions, the farmer lessee is allowed to deduct the full amount of the lease payment from his pre-tax income. Arno said that should "Safe Harbor" be repealed retroactively, the lease contract may be converted into direct retail purchase contract in the eyes of the IRS. In this case, the equipment buyer may not be allowed to deduct the full lease payment from his Federal taxes. The buyer would, however, then be able to take the Investment Tax Credit himself, as well as a deduction for the interest portion of the payment and depreciation of the equipment.

Select Sires welcomes three young bulls

PLAIN CITY, OHIO — Three young Holstein bulls, two from Pennsylvania and one from New Jersey, have been chosen to enter Select Sire's Program for Genetic Advancement.

Caernarvon Ambition-ET, bred by Andrew Stoltzfus of Morgantown, Quadsome Fortune, bred by Walebe Farms, Inc. of Collegeville, and Marlu Chiefs Profit, bred by Marlu Farms of Lincroft, N.J., were just three of 120 Holstein bulls from throughout the Unites States to enter the PGA this year.

Caernarvon Ambition-ET is out of Westgap Rocket Agnes, an Excellent Apollo Rocket daughter, with two records of more than 25,500 pound of milk and 1,100 pounds of fat. The Ambition bull is sired by Glendell Arlinda Chief, the high TPI sire at Select.

Glendell also appeared in the pedigree of the second young bull from Pennsylvania. He sired Quadsome Fortune's dam, Redroof Glendell AC Fame (VG). She produced, in her first lactation, 28,150 pounds of milk and 954 pounds of fat. Her Cow Index for milk is +1,924. Quadsome Fortune is sired by Fleetridge Monitor, an Ivanhoe son.

New Jersey candidate Marlu Chiefs Profit is a Shardale Arlinda Chief Jemini son out of Marlu B Roberta (VG). She has four records of more than 940 pounds of fat with a top milk record of 27,492 pounds as an 8-year-old and a lifetime to date of more than 150,000 pounds of milk. The second dam is also Very Good with records to 23,900 pounds of milk.

Gordonville bull enters Atlantic

LANCASTER — A Holstein bull, bred by Melvin R. Eby of Gordonville has been selected by Atlantic Breeders Cooperative to enter their young sire sampling program for 1982.

Pequea Jemini Pirate, one of 50 Holstein bulls to enter the program this year, is out of Pequea Triune Pamela. With two records of more than 24,000 pounds of milk and 750 pounds of fat, the Pamela cow is sired by Gold Medal sire Paclamar Triune Complete.

The Pirate bull is by Gold Medal sire Shardale Arlinda Chief Jemini.

During sampling, Pirate will be randomly-mated to approximately 600 Holsteins. He will remain at Atlantic's headquarters in Lancaster for the next four years as he continues to grow and await evaluation of his progeny.

Pequea Jemini Pirate, bred by Melvin R. Eby of Gordonville, is one of 50 Holsteins to enter Atlantic Breeders Cooperative young sire sampling program this year. Sired by Shardale Arlinda Chief Jemini, the young bull is out of an Excellent Paclamar Triune Complete daughter.

Don't sell soil test short

ATLANTA, GA. — In these times of economic squeeze in agriculture, don't make the mistake of selling the importance of a soil test short in trying to trim production costs.

These are the words of advice of agronomists Fielding Reed and Werner Nelson of the Potash and Phosphate Institute, of Atlanta, Ga.

The PPI agromonists state:

"Today's farmer needs all of the helpful tools he can get, especially in a time of economic stress. A soil test is one of these tools. It helps monitor soil fertility status. It helps with fertilizer needs when used along with other diagnostic aids and experience.

"These tools are not miracle workers. Different results among various labs can be logically expected. But most agronomists agree the grower is much better off with soil test data than without it."

S. A. Barber, of Purdue University, emphasizes the other factors needed in making fertilizer decisions.

"The soil test is only one factor," he said, "in making fertilizer recommendations. Management history, tissue tests, soil type, climate, yield goal and experience are some other factors influencing decisions."

William Segars, of the University of Georgia, also stresses that soil test data must fit into the other factors.

"Even with the same soil tests," he said, "our recommendations for fertilizing corn can vary as much as 50 percent, depending on the farmer's yield goal, level of management and cropping systems."

And poor soil samples submitted to be tested are still a problem.

Poor soil samples are still a major problem in testing, the PPI stresses. Each acre contains about 3 million lbs. of soil in the surface 10 inches. To represent 10 to 20 acres, too often only a small amount of soil is sampled and taken from too few spots, the PPI emphasized.

Labs also use differing analysis methods, the agronomists state. The methods are calibrated for the crops and soils of a particular area.

The labs may also differ in their interpretation of data and making fertilizer recommendations. Some may recommend a soil build-up program covering several years, while others may recommend just for maintenance levels or for a particular crop.

Dealer survey sees slow upturn

KEWANEE, Il. — Current economic conditions are hurting the farm equipment industry, but many equipment dealers are confident sales will begin an upswing in 1982. That's the determination of a recent dealer survey taken by Chromalloy Farm Equipment Division.

John Dougherty, National Sales Manager for Chromalloy Farm Equipment Division, notes that 15 percent of the dealers responding to the survey believe some degree of recovery will be seen during the second quarter of 1982. Another 31 percent said things will improve during the third quarter and 23 percent said the fourth quarter.

Although confident the market will begin its recovery yet this year, most dealers were not expecting sales of farm equipment to skyrocket.

"More than half of the dealers who responded to our survey felt market recovery would be moderate," says Dougherty. "About 44 percent said recovery would be slow."

Commodity prices and interest levels will have to change significantly before the farm equipment industry can expect to see a brighter horizon, according to many dealers responding to the survey.

"Several of the dealers surveyed said retail sales of farm equipment will improve only if commodity prices get close to production cost levels," says Dougherty. "Other dealers said prices will have to reach at least 80 percent of parity before recovery begins.

"We found some differing thoughts on interest rates," says Dougherty. "Some of the dealers feel interest rates will need to fall to at least 12 percent before farmers can begin buying equipment.

"Other dealers," continues Dougherty, "noted that while interest rates are a consideration, most farmers are good managers and can deal with the cost of doing business. Their feelings are that the future revolves around commodity prices and the need for farmers to receive a fair return on their investments."

Chromalloy Farm Equipment Division is a major shortline farm equipment manufacturer. Under the Arps, Burch, Kewanee and Schwartz brand names, the division markets a wide range of quality farm implements and tools.

Farm-City Council meets

CAMP HILL — The Pennsylvania Farm-City Council recently met and conducted the following business:

—It was decided that current officers of the Council continue to serve until next year and that Pennsylvania Farm-City Council's year coincide with that of the National Farm-City Council, starting the first of February and ending at the end of the following January;

—State committees for Membership, Public Relations and Programs, Awards, Finance Committee, and County Chairpersons were established;

—It was moved and seconded that the kick-off function for Farm-City week be held in conjunction with the current Farm-City programs in Lebanon County.

The next meeting of the Council will be held on April 28 at 10 a.m. in the Pa. Kiwanis office.

Educator links weather modification to natural disasters

BY GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Staff Correspondent

KAUFFMANS STATION — "No one can make it rain. Rainmaking is not synonymous with cloud seeding," stressed Edmund R. Hill, professor of Economic Statistics and Geography at Gettysburg College during last Friday's meeting of the Tri-State Natural Weather Association, Inc.

"Cloud seeding may cause slight rain," he explained, "but it has been proven in most cases to significantly reduce the incidence of rain. This is part of weather modification which uses chemicals and mechanical means to manipulate the weather."

Hill, who has served for eight years on the Pennylvania State Weather Modification Control Board, outlined how, why, and who is involved in weather manipulation. Considered an expert spokesman in the field, he has presented testimony and evidence on the controversial subject to various congressional committees and govenment agencies.

The college professor confessed that he has been converted from "skeptic" to "firm believer" in the possibilities of weather modification. He cited examples of weather extremes, which he called 100-year incidences, occuring all within the last three decades. This time period, he said, coincides with the advent of active weather modification. He also noted examples of a declining improvement in the accurancy of weather forecasting during the same period.

"What has happened to our weather forecasting?" he questioned. "Why has forecasting lagged when there has been tremendous improvement in the hardware involved?"

Hill firmly stated that "big money" has infiltrated the weather modification industry pulling with it the clout of govenment agencies, the chemical industry, specialized agricultural interests, the insurance industry, and even the military which is investigating weather warfare. He remarked that few people have questioned the practices of weather modification because those involved have projected a purely positive image of their practices to the public.

At the present time, Hill stated, there is no effective governmental regulations controlling cloud seeding. From his own past experience on the State Weather Modification Control Board, Hill summarized, "After eight years on the Board, I saw nothing happen. We were always told that there were no appropriations available."

Reading conflicting information form university sources, the Dept. of Environmental Resources and the Environmental Protection Agency, Hill admonished the use of AGI, silver iodide, the chemical used in cloud seeding, for its long-term hazardous effects to both man and the environment. Silver iodide is introduced into the atmosphere by either ground generators or from aircraft, according to Hill.

He explained that, while small amounts of this compound released into the atmosphere may cause rain, if too much is used the result is no precipitation. Hill also pointed out that silver iodide can cause lightning suppression and the lightning is a natural nitrogen source.

The professor also outlined a number of governmental weather modification programs and their geographic scope. One such project, Project Skywater, had a projected cost of $800 million in 1969, according to Hill's sources He summerized that therefore, "When one considers the extent of weather modification and at the same time there has been one natural disaster after another, you should be inclined to feel that the two must be related."

CCC offers powder to processors

HARRISBURG — According to a recent report from the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board, the Commodity Credit Corporation is offering donated powder to processors for use in fluid milk products sold to schools and charitable institutions.

The program is administered by the Bureau of Government Donated Foods, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. A requirement of the program is that the value of the powder used be passed on to the purchaser.

Any milk dealer participating in this program in Pennsylvania, must bid or sell all controlled products at the established minimum prices. Before passing on the value of the powder utilized, the dealer must have the prior written approval of the Milk Marketing Board.

Any school or institution requesting delivery of fortified products under this program, must clearly indicate so to all prospective suppliers on a bid form or otherwise.

Wins Md. Pork All-American

Howard Williams masters business of hog farming

GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Staff Correspondent

BEALSVILLE, Md. — Howard Williams, winner of this year's Maryland Pork All-American Title, is a farmer's son twice-removed. Twice-removed in that his father left farming after returning from the Navy, and while Howard was raised in a rural community in Colorado, he really had very little hog farming experience.

During his tenure in the Army and while stationed in Maryland, Howard met and married a farmer's daughter, Chris Windolph. Chris' father owned a farm just outside of Bealsville which is only 30 miles west of Washington, D.C. The newlyweds returned to Colorado where Howard pursued his Masters in Business Administration degree at Colorado State University.

While returning to Maryland for a visit, the couple were struck with the idea of farming. After returning to Colorado to research their chances for sucess, they decided to return to John Windolph's farm and give hog farming a try.

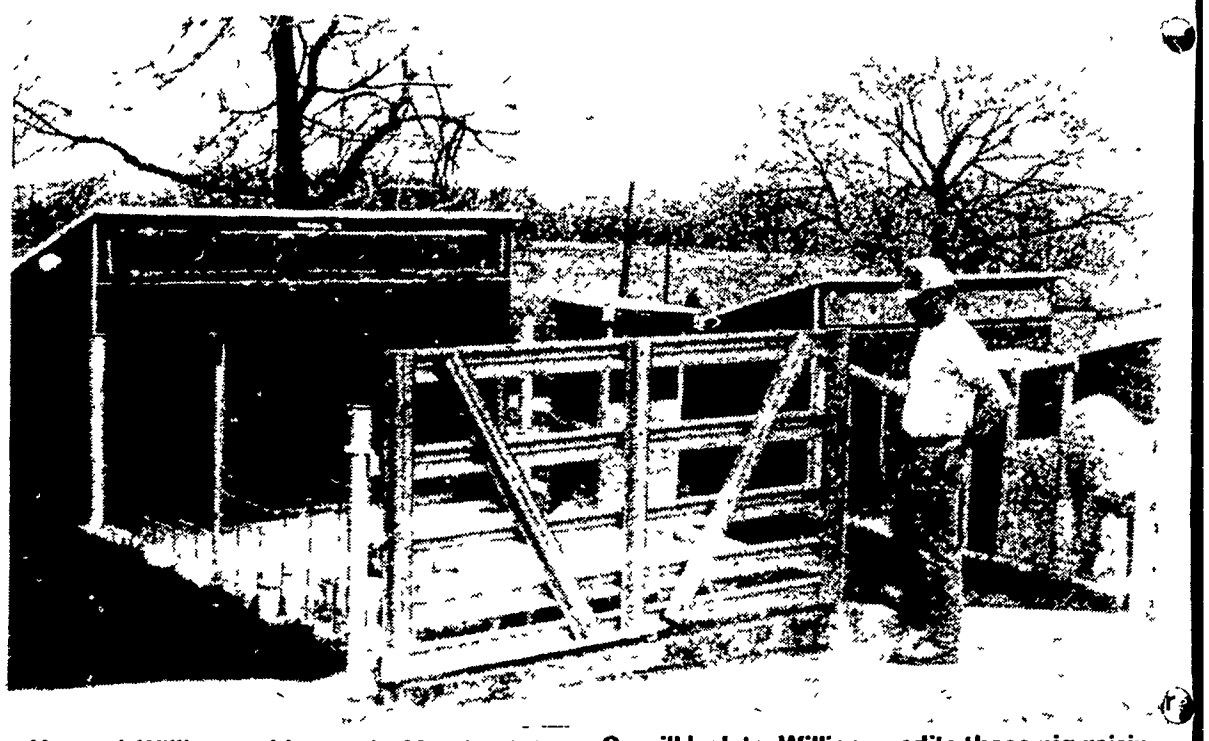
Williams reminisces, "In those days we took everything a step at a time. First we developed our farrowing program and our breeding stock. Then we got into milling our own feed. Now we have 325 acres here and rent another 100 acres. We have 52 sows and market over 1,100 pigs annually."

Williams says he firmly believes in taking what you have and making the most of it. One example of this is his six-crate farrowing house where he averages eleven pigs per crate. With the help of his brother-in-law John Windolph, Jr., Williams converted the house from an existing building on the farm. The building which is over 100 years old was converted for a cost of approximately $2,500, according to Williams.

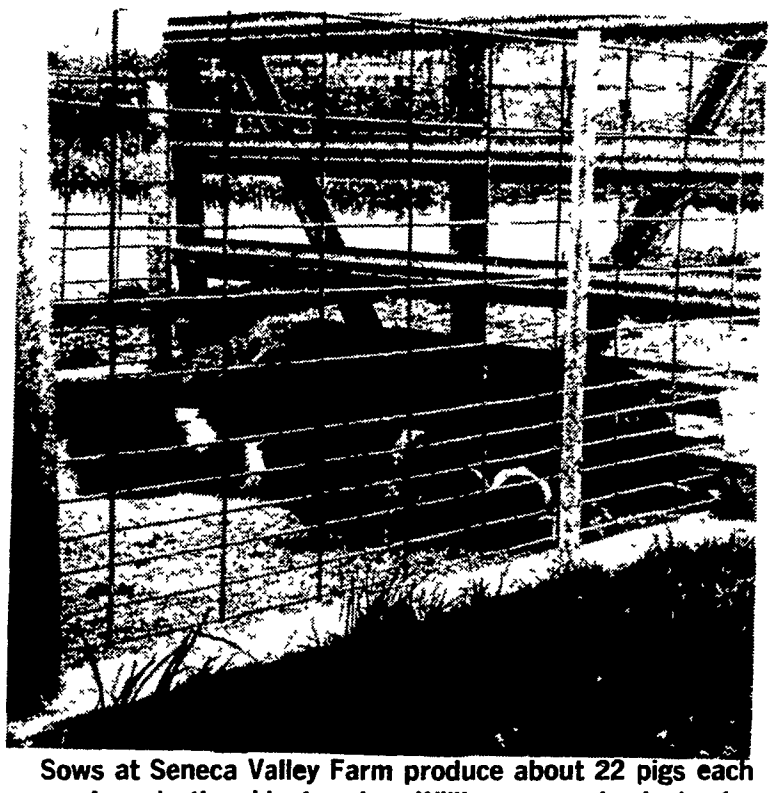
Williams credits efficiency, scheduling, and low-cost inputs as the greatest assets of his operation — factors which helped him earn the All-American title, presented to pork producers from the ages of 25-40 who have exhibited outstanding efficiency in their production and exceptional community service.

Williams maximizes his facilities by getting at least 22 pigs per sow annually. He pasture-breeds his sows in meadows that would otherwise be marginal land. The sows are bred on two day intervals so that they will farrow within a 10-14 day interval Williams says he "shys away" from artificially inseminating his sows since he feels that it results in small pigs and smaller litters.

Having the farrowing scheduled



Howard Williams, this year's Maryland All-American Pork Producer from Frederick County, inspects his litters of pigs that seem to be enjoying the sunshine and fresh air in their Cargill Isolets. William credits these pig-raising facilities with substantial savings in energy and labor, costs, and maintenance.



Sows at Seneca Valley Farm produce about 22 pigs each year. In selecting his females, Williams says he looks for animals with at least six teats in front of the flank. These teats must have straight alignment to meet this producer's rigid standards.

allows Howard and Chris planning time and also allows them to take advantage of cross fostering. If Howard feels a sow has more pigs than she can handle, the extra pigs will be put with another sow who has fewer to nurse, he explains.

Hurt or crippled pigs are removed from the litter and placed in a special isolation area where they receive milk replacer and some extra attention. Howard also will put milk replacer in with the pigs if the sow is slow in coming to her milk.

Williams credits scheduling the farrowing with greater flexibility in the use of his facilities since a single crate or the entire nursery doesn't get tied up for just one litter. He also claims that it has bolstered his survival rates.

"Last year we averaged 9.4 pigs per litter and this year it's almost 10. We have less than a 1 percent death rate after weaning and after they're two days old, we lose very few," he says.

After spending 28 days in the farrowing house, the pigs and sows are moved to Cargill Isolets. Howard has obtained eight of these units form the Midwest at an investment of approximately $1,000 each complete with concrete and plumbing.

Comparable to calf hutches in principle, Howard has found these to be more flexible than confinement housing since they are movable. He claims that by being spaced at 8 foot intervals, the air movement and sunlight has helped cut down on disease. They also are very energy efficient since the sow's body heat often eliminates the need for supplemental heat. Williams chuckled that it helps to have tame sows with the Isolets so that you can catch them easily rather than chasing them in and out.

Williams, who earned his Masters of Business Administration prior to opting for a successful farming career, markets more than 1,100 feeder pigs annually and keeps his production rolling with 52 sows.

Inside the Isolets, the pigs enjoy protection, warmth and free-choice dinners. But, like their popular counterparts — calf hutches — these pens also offer the pigs a chance to grow outside in fresh air and sunshine.

These facilities also contribute to the flexibility of his operation since he can leave pigs in them until they weigh 50 pounds if his nursery is crowded, Howard says. The nursey where pigs are grown out to marketing weights has slatted floors. It was brought in from Indiana. Williams claims that while the market prices in the East are better, the better supplies are still available in the Midwest.

Manure from the system is received by a pit and the slight run-off is collected in a holding pond. Howard introduces live bacteria, about a pint a week, into the pit which virtually eliminates all odors.

States Williams, "We actually have very little manure here. We load it and inject it into our field since there's a house close to virtually every place we spread. You can control odors a lot better today with the new chemicals. We really do want to get along with our neighbors.

Howard takes advantage of what he calls "flexibility" in pork production. His philosphy is that if one thing doesn't work for you try something else. It may mean changing your feed, your breeding program, or your marketing schedule.

Williams markets his feeder pigs three different ways. He points out, "Everything here is geared to what the buyer wants. That's why we dock tails.

"Buyers like to get 25-40 pigs in a group and from the same farm With our farrowing schedule, we can do that. We also have very little problem with disease here and buyers appreciate that too."

Howard markets the majority of his pigs at graded state sales that are held the last Friday of each month. He also sells 200-300 head annually to Beltsville for research projects. He calculates an additional $3,000 in his budget each year from those pigs. He also sells pigs at the farm.

While Howard and Chris have been hesitant to invest large sums of money in equipment, Howard recently purchased a new drill that will allow him to no-till all his crops. This practice is quite

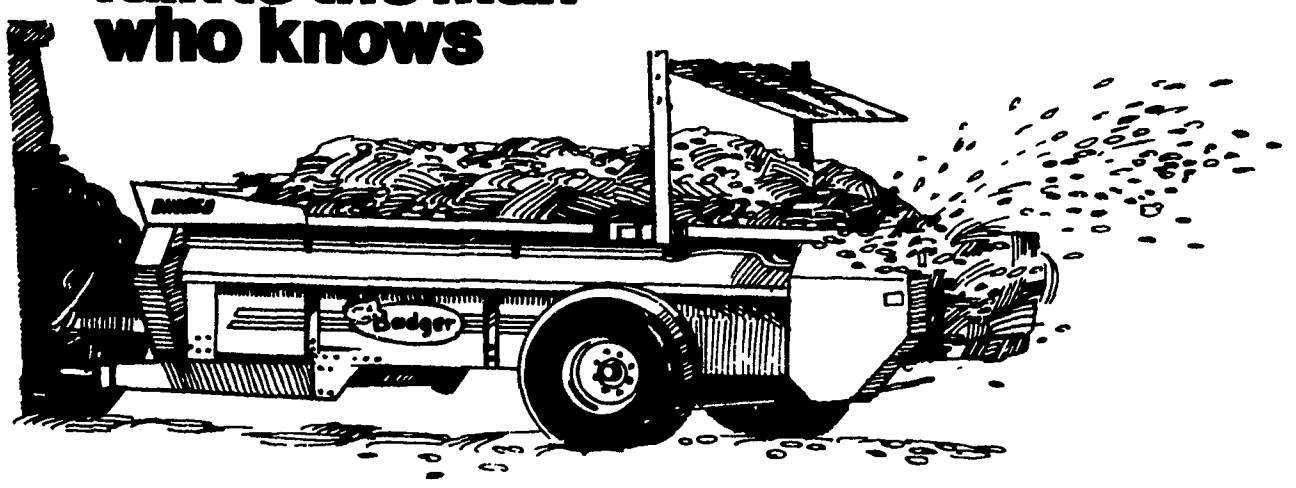
Talk to the man who knows



Now there's a new Badger Spreader with more capacity and a guarantee that can't be beat!

For years manufacturers of manure spreaders have bragged about heaped capacities. That's fine, as long as you're handling manure that can be heaped.

But today, more farmers are working with liquid and semi-solid manure. And no matter how hard you try, you just can't make a pile out of soup.

That's why Badger designed their new BN3260 and BN3210 Manure Spreaders with extra struck level capacity. The 3260 holds 260 bushels heaped and 166 cu. ft. struck. The 3210 has a 220 bushel heaped capacity, 143 cu. ft. struck capacity.

Check our prices . . . our cost per cubic foot is less!

With wood sides and floor, rust won't be a problem.

IN FACT, THE WOOD SIDES AND FLOOR ARE GUARANTEED FOR AS LONG AS YOU OWN THEM.

Dairy and beef sales highlight N.J. spring

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — Early spring is a significant time for livestock owners. The Hunterdon County Extension service reminds farmers that spring marks the beginning of the pasture season, which finds cows out on lush, green grass and clover. The Extension also reminds dairy and livestock producers of two upcoming, important sales. The New Jersey State Holstein Calf and Bred Heifer Sale and the Feeder Calf and Commercial Beef Sale.

Dairy producers and 4H'ers look to the Holstein Association-sponsored sale as a source of top quality registered Holstein cattle, from baby calves to yearling heifers bred for their first calves. This sale is set for Friday, April 30, at the Warren County Fairgrounds, Harmony, a few miles north of Phillipsburg.

The rap of the auctioneer's gavel will commence the sale at 7 p.m., reports Williams Teets, Lebanon, a co-chairman with Frank Gibbs of Allamuchy.

Teets reports 70 animals in the consignment sale. They are by popular Holstein sires, many are from dams who are classified Very Good and with more than 20,000 pounds of milk.

Headliners from Hunterdon and neighboring counties include a couple of outstanding young calves from Howard Sutton's Windy Crest Holsteins. They boast strong pedigrees, top production. One is a January 1982-born calf by plus-proven Jemini and out of an Elevation daughter with more than 23,000 pounds milk and 934 pounds fat as a 2 year-old.

Other local consignments are from Four Oaks Farm, North Branch; Hunterdon Hills Holsteins, Rosemont; Bill Teets' Backacres Farm, Lebanon; Floyd and Marie Schwab's Top of the Ridge, Ringoes; Abram Van-Doren, Flemington; John Everett's Ever Lea Farm, Somerville; Charles Rogers. Richard Gulick, both Ringoes; Bill and Gilbert Emmons, Stockton; Jim and Art Sutton's Riveaire Farm, North Branch.

The feeder calf sale is a source of young steers and heifers ranging in size from 350 pounds or so to over 700 pounds. The purpose of this sale is to provide livestock operators with calves that are ready to go out on pasture. They are probably 6 months to a year of age, have been raised with their mothers for their first 5 or 6 months.

The animals are assembled into pen-lots and sold as pen-lots. When the [illegible] sells the acceptance of a bid, the person with that bid has the choice of one or two or all in the lot.

These animals are consigned by beef herd owners who maintain beef cows for breeding, raising the young to feeder calf stage, ready for sale to someone who wishes to grow them out for market.

Cattle consigned have been vaccinated and tested and ready to go out into a feedlot or pasture. Buyers should confine their newly purchased animals for five days or a week to allow them to settle down. It's important that they acclimate to the new surroundings before letting them out on pasture.

The beef sale is Saturday, May 8, 1 p.m., at the Hackettstown Auction Market, Stiger St., just off the main street, rt. 46, in Hackettstown.

Angus Assn. hires new p.r. assistant

ST. JOSEPH — Marcia Chamberlain a native of Lyndon, Illinois, has been named public relations assistant for the American Angus Association, reports Dick Spader, association executive vice president.

A 1980 graduate of the University of Illinois, Chamberlain has been serving as assistant editor and purebred news coordinator for the Drovers Journal in Shawnee Mission, Kansas. She replaces Marilyn Barr on the Angus Association public relations staff.

Marcia Chamberlain earned her B.S. degree in ag communications from the University of Illinois. While attending the University she served on the staff of the Agricultural Engineering Public Relations Committee and was a staff member of the 1979 Farm Progress Show in Indiana and a summer intern with the Indiana Prairie Farmer.

She was a member of the University of Illinois meat judging team, a member of the Agricultural Communicators of Tomorrow club and the National Honor Society. She also was a reporter and copy editor of the College-Illini Agri News, and editor of the Hoof n' Horn yearbook.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Chamberlain of Lyndon, Illinois and grew up helping with the family farming and Angus Cattle operation.

As public relations assistant for the Association she will handle news releases on shows, field days and other Angus events, coordinate farm show exhibits and assist in all areas of the Association's nationwide communications and public relations program.

Pork All-American

popular in Montgomery County, he said.

The Williams store and air-cool all of their own 20 percent moisture corn for about 3 cents a bushel. Howard mixes all his feeds since that guarantees freshness and blending, he explains His young pigs are fed a continuous worming feed for 4-5 weeks which Howard says is extremely beneficial.

Active in several agricultural and community projects, Howard serves on the Board of Directors of the Maryland Pork Association and is on the Promotional Committee. The Williams operation was listed last year on the statewide farm tour and they had 300-400 urban neighbors in for a visit.

On the issue of the animal welfare Howard states, "We're not going to say who's right, but we are working to show the consumer our story. We've got to cut down on the sensationalism."

Howard blushes slightly at the mention of his All-American Title but points out that his winning the award proves that you don't have to be fancy or big to do a good job.

"The important thing is to make your system work for you. You shouldn't have to be constantly moving animals around. Keep your operations efficient and as low-cost as possible without sacrificing quality production," he stresses.

Brockett's Ag Advice

By John E. Brockett
Farm Management Agent
Lewistown Extension Office

Post Season Tax Management

Should a farmer have a retirement plan such as an IRA or a Keough? When should it be taken out? What can you do with one that was taken out and locked in to a low interest rate?

This is part of after tax filing tax management that a farmer should be exploring. The answers are not cut and dried al will vary from person to person.

Retirement Plan?

The 1981 tax reform act made some dramatic changes in IRAs. Banks, insurance companies, mutual funds, among others see IRAs as a lucrative market. They are right.

What's more IRAs can be beneficial for many people including some farmers. However they will not benefit every farmer nor every businessman. They may or may not be for you.

Iras have some good points:

- The amount you put into an IRA or Keough is deducted from your taxable income (not from your tax).
- They can be an enforced savings account.
- If interest rates go up, they can be "rolled over" into a higher return plan. (Be careful on this though because the company carrying your plan may charge a penalty for doing this).
- You have until tax filing time to take out an IRA.

IRAs also have some problem areas:

- Withdrawl prior to age 59 1/2 will cost you a penalty plus extra taxes (You may pay a bank as well as a government penalty).
- The state is on and off on deducting IRA contributions. For 1981 they could be deducted. For 1982 who knows? A good point of that since the returns from IRAs will probably qualify as a pension, there will probably be no state income tax on them when you begin to withdraw the money.
- You cannot use IRAs as a loan collateral.
- The income will be taxable upon retirement.

Suggestions

Don't be in a hurry to buy an IRA. You have until next year tax filing time to invest. With the present economy you may need that money between now and then.

Don't buy an IRA unless you have taxes to pay. An exception would be a farmer over 50 years old with little debt and a son or daughter involved in the farming operation.

Shop for the best deal. Local banks have some good programs but you should ask them about interest rates, the cost of rollovers, and penalties they would charge if the money is taken out. Also ask them what certificates they are using for the IRA. If they use an 18-month certificate, that means no bank penalty if you roll it over on its anniversary date of 18 months. Some banks use 30 month or 48 monty certificates. You may be locked into a low interest rate on them or pay the penalty.

Insurance companies and mutual funds have plans but ask them the same questions plus what they charge as a sales fee and management fee. Warning: many insurance companies and mutual funds will not tell you that they have higher interest rates available for existing accounts. You must ask them. It doesn't do any harm to ask another agent or company about their plans on a periodical basis. Remember it's your money.

Foreign Ag Service promotes exports

WASHINGTON D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Foreign Agricultural Service is gearing up to boost exports of forest products.

"The recent growth in manufactured solid wood exports indicates that the prospect for continuing expansion is excellent," according to FAS Administrator Richard A. Smith. "Sizable amounts of U.S. manufactured wood products already are being exported to Japan, Europe and other regions, and it is certain exports of these products will grow, helped by their high quality and availability."

Smith said the first step in giving greater emphasis to manufactured solid wood exports will be the creation of a small team within the Foreign Agricultural Service, which will work closely with the forest products industry.

Smith said the new staff will give greater emphasis to the forest product industry and formally recognize its relationship with the Foreign Agricultural Service. Vernon L. Harness, formerly director of the agency's planning and evaluation division for foreign market development, will head the new unit, Smith said.

JAMES E. NOLL GRAIN

The Timpte Twins are Tough.

Got Grain? Then get the trailers that are Timpte tough... the Super Hopper or the level floor Super Grain Trailer. They're not only built to take it... they're also built to cut fuel costs. The Super Hopper and the level floor Super Grain Trailers are lightweight and aerodynamically designed to reduce wind drag. When there's grain to be hauled, Timpte does the haulin' best and pulls a lot easier than the rest.

Are you serious about saving fuel?

LEESPORT — Are you serious about saving fuel, time and reducing soil erosion? Then you might give conservation tillage a closer look.

Those who have switched from conventional tillage have reduced their fuel use as much as 80 percent by using no-till, reports Tina Didyoung, soil conservation technician with the Soil Conservation Service, in Berks Co.

Conservation tillage saves fuel mainly because fewer trips are made over the field, says Didyoung. This is based upon an estimated 5 trips across the field for no-till versus 11 trips for conventional tillage. However, no-till takes slightly longer than conventional planting (12 minutes acre versus 10 minutes acre).

"Some farmers consider the fuel saving to be only a minor byproduct of the improved water conservation and erosion control provided by conservation tillage," she comments.

With residues left on the field, soil loss can be reduced as much as 90 percent. On steep slopes or highly erodible soils other practices may also be needed.

Like other successful farming systems, conservation tillage requires proper timing of field operations, careful adjustments and maintenance of equipment and closer watch on insects and other problems, Didyoung stresses.

"Although conservation tillage is effective in reducing soil erosion it is not a solution," says the conservationist. "A farmer will have a greater effect in reduction of soil loss when he uses conservation tillage as part of a total conservation cropping system."

For further information, contact the local Soil Conservation Service.

Dairy Automation

If You're Thinking Dairy Automation There's Just One Name You Need To Know: De Laval

For over 100 years dairymen world-wide have depended on De Laval products to keep their dairies running smoothly and profitably. You can too. Check these De Laval automation products, all designed to make your milking easier. Then check with us. We've got full details on these fine products and the whole line of De Laval dairying equipment & accessories.

- DV-300™ milker — rugged milker features automatic shifts of vacuum levels and pulsation rates.
- A.R.M.™ devices — Automatic Removal Mechanism features parallel linkage support arm. "Armless" model also available.
- Autocord™ removal device — the affordable way to automate milker removal.

DE LAVAL™

Challenger™ Feeding System

This is the breakthrough technology that made it possible to feed grain to dairy cows according to individual needs—automatically. The De Laval® Challenger™ Feeding System is the obvious choice for dairy farmers who want electronic grain dispensing at a moderate installation cost.

The Challenger system is controlled by neck-worn transponders which store feeding instructions for each cow; these provide a radio link with feeding stalls where cows are fed upon command. The Challenger system has capabilities demanded by the most modern operation, yet it's feasible for herds as small as 25 cows. May we show the surprising figures?

Only Banvel® herbicide offers so many ways to control weeds.

Pre-emergence: Tank-mixed with *Lasso®

Early layby: In corn up to 5 inches, Banvel as an overlay

 Later post-emergence: Banvel gets rid of tough-to-kill weeds that 2,4-D misses

Fall treatment: Air application knocks down hemp dogbane, permitting easier harvest

Tough-to-get weeds: On the Banvel label, the stubborn species

Rescue: When weeds threaten a takeover Banvel can help save your crop

For your supply of Banvel herbicide the Big Plus from Velsicol, call us now

Before using any pesticide, read the label.

Referendum Rolls

Following the final hearing in Harrisburg on March 12 and a final meeting of the Dairy Promotion Advisory Committee, the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Program Proposal was approved with minor changes for a referendum of all producers starting May 8.

The changes included a clarification in the maximum of three percent for administrative costs and specification of 3.5 percent butterfat milk when determining the average blend price. The new proposal, with the changes, have been printed and are in the mail to milk marketing cooperatives.

Block voting co-ops must notify their members in writing 30 days before May 8 on how the co-op will vote. The notification will allow any members, disagreeing with their co-op's vote, to cast their individual ballots after May 8. Such individual votes will be subtracted from the co-op's block vote.

The motion to accept the proposal with the changes was made by Inter-State Milk Producers and seconded by the Eastern representative. There were only three negative votes from among 22 producer representatives of all milk marketing co-ops, general farm organizations as well as unaffiliated producer representatives.

So, once again, dairy farmers of Pennsylvania will have an opportunity to decide whether or not the majority want to contribute 10 cents a hundred to finance research; product development and quality; education and advertising programs to increase the consumption of Pennsylvania milk and dairy products.

Timing

Timing of the referendum comes after back to back years of record high milk production and an expected third year. It comes at a time when 10 percent of the national milk production is purchased by the government as butter, powder or cheese because there is no sale for it in commercial markets.

And it comes at a time when dwindling per capita consumption has dropped 100 pounds or 15 percent since 1960.

If producers had been able to maintain the level of per capita sales enjoyed 20 years ago, there would be no need for a referendum or a dairy price support program. If you still had the per capita consumption of 653 pounds you enjoyed back in 1960, you could sell an additional 22 billion pounds of milk.

CCC purchases last year were the equivalent of about 12 billion pounds, so, instead of having a surplus you could have a seller's market with supply not quite adequate to meet demand.

That kind of recovery isn't possible for 10 cents a hundred, but it could stop the decline in sales and start them back up again. So, with the help of supply management or reduction, a better balance could be achieved between production and demand that would result in higher prices and less reliance on government programs.

That's the purpose of the Milk Marketing Program and producers have a responsibility to make an honest effort to search out the facts, pro and con, and make a decision they feel is in their own best interests.

I should warn you, however, that there's a great deal of misinformation in circulation and you'll have to check your sources carefully. At least give it the same consideration you would use in selecting new machinery before you make a decision.

Md. Shorthorn Breeders elect officers

FREDERICK, Md. — Duane Harper of Woodbine, Md. recently was elected president of the Maryland Shorthorn Association, Inc. during the cattle breeders' annual dinner meeting held here at Watson's Family Restaurant. He replaces Henry L. Dodrer, Jr. of Littlestown, Pennsylvania.

Elected to serve in the office of vice president was Dr. Raymond Ediger of Frederick, Md. The secretary-treasurer for 1982 is Dr. Wayne Neely, also of Frederick.

Directors elected to serve 3-year terms included T. Courtenay Jenkins, Jr., Owings Mills, Md. and H.F. Eyler, Myersville, Md. They will be joining returning board members George W. Bowman, Jr., West Friendship, Md., Thomas E. Smith, Frederick; Susan Eyler, Mt. Airy, Md.; and Edwin A. Hevner, Union Bridge, Md.

During the annual meeting, the Shorthorn breeders heard from Dr. John O. Shook, chief veterinarian for the Maryland Department of Agriculture. His topic was "Animal Health Requirements of the Future."

Meeting at the same time, the Maryland Junior Shorthorn Association also elected officers for 1982.

Kristina Harper of Gaithersburg, Md. will pick up the president's gavel which was given up by Dennis Warfield, Woodbine. Harper will be the junior representative on the state Shorthorn Association's board. Assisting Harper as vice president will be George Bowman III of West Friendship, Md.

Stephen and Susan Dodrer of Littlestown will be serving as the Junior Association's secretary-treasurer and reporter, respectively. Directors include George and David Bowman, West Friendship, and David Dell, Finksburg, Md.

York Farmers Forum Friday

YORK — The April meeting of the York Co. Farmers Forum will be held Friday evening, April 30 at 7 p.m. at Rutter's Restaurant, Red Lion.

The program for this meeting will be a movie on York County History.

ALLIS-CHALMERS 6060/6080 TRACTORS...

High torque and fuel economy that leaves the others behind.

Here's the best of both worlds in versatile tractor power By official test, the 83 PTO hp* 6080 has the best fuel economy in its class and the best torque backup at 27% The 63 PTO hp* 6060 has the best torque backup at 35% with excellent fuel economy, too.

- Both are powered by an Allis-Chalmers 4-cylinder, direct-injection diesel engine Turbocharged in the 6060, turbocharged and intercooled in the 6080
- Both are available with mechanical front-wheel-drive for better traction, better fuel economy, less compaction
- Rugged rear mains with large planetary final drives and positive wet disc brakes
- Open-center hydraulics with 11 4-gal remote capacity
- Fully independent PTO
- Optional cab is tops in roominess and comfort

Good soybean management avoids sudden water stresses

ATLANTA, Ga — Supplemental irrigation can reduce soybean losses from water stress, according to U S Department of Agriculture soil scientist Morris G Huck

Adequate water, available at critical times, allows the plant to utilize more of its resources in seed production and less in development of the extensive root system needed for insuring a steady water supply under the uncertain conditions of water supplied from natural rainfall alone.

"Root systems are much more extensive under water-stressed plants," the Agricultural Research Service scientists says. "When water is limited the soybean plants must divert sugar and other resources into root growth to insure survival. If an adequate water supply is available, the plant senses less of a need for root growth and top growth is accelerated."

Huck, speaking at the American Society of Agronomy meeting recently, said that because soybean roots are of value mainly to assure availability of water during dry periods between rains, an assured, steady water supply will relieve some of the requirement for developing an extensive root system.

"However," he said, "if a sudden water stress is imposed on a large plant with a small root system (resulting from irrigation early in the growing season), pod losses and final seed yield are greatly reduced. If a limited amount of water is available for irrigation, it should be applied later in the growing season."

Because soybeans are very sensitive to water stress, especially during late July and August blooming and pod fill, USDA launched a cooperative research program with the Department of Agronomy at Auburn University to grow soybeans under environmentally controlled conditions. Those soybeans grown in sandy soil, with only natural rainfall as a water supply, suffered severe water stress. The plants that were watered by trickle irrigation to insure an adequate supply of water throughout the growing season thrived, Huck reports.

Working with the ARS team leader were Auburn University agricultural engineer C.D. Busch and botany professor Curt M. Peterson.

Proposal to reduce lunch program paperwork

WASHINGTON, D C — A proposal to cut paperwork in local school lunch programs has been issued by the U S. Department of Agriculture.

"The proposal, part of the administration's drive to provide regulatory relief, would ease federal record-keeping and reporting requirements for school food authorities and give states more flexibility in administering school nutrition programs," says Mary C. Jarratt, assistant secretary for food and consumer services.

The proposed rule would cut down on paperwork by eliminating the requirement that schools maintain separate cost accounts for their school breakfast, school lunch and other nonprofit school food service operations.

Schools would be required to maintain only the revenue and expenditure records to document the use of funds and the nonprofit status of their food service programs.

Once the proposal is effective, it will be up to state educational agencies, which are responsible for administering school lunch programs in each state, to determine the best system for monitoring the financial records of local schools.

The proposed regulations were issued under the Omnibus Reconciliation Act of 1981. Public comments should be sent by June 8 to: Stanley C. Garnett, school programs division, Food and Nutrition Service, USDA, Alexandria, Va. 22303.

Pa. broiler placements up

HARRISBURG — Placements of broiler chicks in the Commonwealth during the week ending April 10 were 2,384,000, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

The placements were three percent above the corresponding week a year ago and four percent above the previous week. Average placements during the past nine weeks were two percent below a year ago.

Placements in the 19 key poultry producing states were 83,807,000, about the same as the previous week and the same week a year ago. Average placements in the key states during the past nine weeks were one percent below a year ago.

Broiler-fryers slaughtered in Pennsylvania under federal inspection during the week ending March 31 totaled 2,026,000, with an average liveweight of 4.24 pounds.

BEACON MINERAL SUPPLEMENTS

who needs them? You do!

Quality roughage alone can provide much of the protein and energy needed for milk production. But since roughages may lack both balance and quantity of minerals necessary for maximum milk production, bone and muscle development, and the most efficient utilization of other nutrients—many dairymen need a mineral supplement program.

How can you tell if you need a mineral supplement program?

Let us make a free analysis of your forage crops. We'll give you a report on the nutrient value of your hay, silage, or other roughages, along with recommendations for any supplements—if necessary. We won't try to sell you anything you don't need!

Our three mineral mixes—Beacon Phos-Min, Beacon Mineral Ade and Beacon Cal-Min—are formulated by highly respected dairy nutrition specialists. The supplement they recommend will contain the necessary minerals to make up deficiencies or imbalance in your roughages and to achieve the proper calcium-phosphorus ratio in your total feeding program.

You can rest assured that you aren't paying extra for exotic ingredients, high transportation cost, and expensive promotion and sales cost.

With BEACON, you get more mineral units per dollar invested.

Mineral supplements, formulated especially for the cow at reasonable cost, are part of what we call "No nonsense feeding".

Farm Talk

Jerry Webb

A gentler way to farm

Farming will never return to the good old days of small farms, horse power, hand labor and a gentle way of life. We've gone too far to ever go back. And we need the most efficient production on our agricultural acres to feed a hungry world.

But it is fun occasionally to reminisce about those good old days and it's down-right enlightening to hear how some farmers are still clinging to those ways.

An article in the February issue of Blair and Ketchum's Country Journal talks about the Amish way and describes in detail how an Amish farmer in northeastern Indiana makes a fairly good living out of a small farm. The article not only treats the reader to an insight into Amish life, but there are some important farming lessons there also.

The Amishman, William Yoder, started out 26 years ago with a rundown 80-acre farm that he has turned into a productive, profitable business. Yoder, a widely respected breeder of Belgian draft horses, says the place had been rented out and row cropped until it was nearly "played out."

The buildings were nothing, there were no fences, and the soil was so poor it produced only five tons of hay the first year. The corn crop was only 30 bushels to the acre, all nubbins, and when he plowed the fields his horses' feet sank into quicksand potholes.

Now, a quarter of a century later, a system of crop rotation, animal agriculture and good husbandry, has turned that little farm into a solid-producing unit—an example for farmers everywhere.

Yoder describes the remedy as a series of traditional practices followed by the Amish since the 17th century—diversification, rotation of crops, the use of manure, and the seeding of legumes. The one big thing that results from all of this is an increase of humus in the soil.

As Yoder puts it, "No humus, and you're in trouble because humus increases soil fertility, improves soil structure, and improves both water-holding capacity and drainage." All of that means improved yields.

It didn't take long for Yoder's farming practices to take effect. The sandy Indiana soil stopped blowing. The potholes disappeared and yields started to improve. Now the farm produces abundant crops of corn, oats, wheat and alfalfa. His cornfields average 100 to 125 bushels to the acre, with only a minimum of starter fertilizer.

Yoder's rotations begin and end with alfalfa. He establishes new seedling every fall with his wheat, and every spring he plows down an old stand of alfalfa regardless of its condition. He follows that old alfalfa stand with corn for two years, and then after the second year of corn he sows spring oats, followed by wheat and alfalfa that fall. In the fourth year the wheat is harvested, the alfalfa then comes on and remains through the fifth and sixth years. The Amishman takes two cuttings of alfalfa each year and the third cutting is pastured.

Yoder keeps more than the usual number of horses on this farm because he is a breeder, and so he has ample manure to cover the entire farm, cropland, hayland and pasture every year.

This Indiana farmer has no doubt found the best combination of factors to get the optimum yield. Note the word optimum, not maximum, because he does not pour on the fertilizer and chemicals. Instead he settles for a respectable corn yield, produced at a minimum cost.

His out-of-pocket expenses for corn last year, per acre, are as follows. seed—planted at the rate of seven acres per bushel—$7; fertilizer—$7.75; herbicides—custom applied, first year only—$16.40; That comes to a total of $31.15 an acre. On 100 bushel corn, that figures out at about 31 cents a bushel.

In the second year, his per-acre cost is only about 15 cents a bushel because there are no herbicides involved. So that makes the two-year average about 23 cents a bushel out-of-pocket costs for producing corn.

Bear in mind this Amishman has no fuel to buy, and no expensive machinery to purchase and repair. He does buy some feed because of the large volume of horses that are kept at his farm. But the horses are sold at premium prices to satisfy the renewed interest in pure-bred draft horses. And so his animal power is really a by-product of an allied business and is thus virtually "free."

It's a unique system—not that much different from the way farming used to be done. Obviously a system that most farmers are unable, or unwilling, to follow. Not many farmers are going to sell their tractors and return to horse agriculture. But maybe they can find some ways to cut some high production costs so that they can produce corn at $2.50 to $3 a bushel and still make a little money.

If Yoder grows only 20 acres of corn annually and it averages only 100 bushels to the acre, that's 2,000 bushels. If he were to sell all that at $3 a bushel, he'd have $6,000 and his out-of-pocket costs would be $460. That leaves a labor income of $5,540. Not bad for a 20-acre corn patch.

So what lesson can other farmers learn from this?

It's not that they should go back to horse agriculture. Rather, I suspect it's that they should do all they can to improve the humus in thier soil. Crop rotations, minimum tillage, animal agriculture—all factors that can improve the productivity of their farms. There's no question that no-till production, gaining favor among local farmers, will pay off in increased humus and improved soil structure.

There are other ways to cut some costs. A little more family labor and a little less expensive machinery. A little less chemicals when they're not really needed. A little less fertilizer when cover crops and manure can make up the difference. The use of legumes like alfalfa and hairy vetch and some others, and the returning to the soil of every bit of humus that can possibly be found.

These are old ways—some that many farmers have totally abandoned. Crop rotation, for example. Some farmers have forgotten how to grow oats and they haven't seeded alfalfa in 20 years And maybe they shouldn't, but there are some other alternatives that could combine to improve the productivity of those farms.

There was a time in this country, a few generations ago, when there was open land to the west. And so farmers would simply wear out a farm and move on. Those days are gone forever, but I'm afraid we're still wearing out farms. The difference is, we're rejuvenating them with expensive inputs and disregarding the soil management lessons from the last two or three hundred years.

Maybe in this difficult economic time farmers should give important consideration to the Amish way, which in fact is nothing more than a good soil management system. One that was followed by farmers all across the country, until the advent of big-time farming and the demise of animal agriculture.

Soybean oil looks good as farm fuel extender

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Soybean oil "looks extremely favorable" as a farm fuel extender, University of Missouri-Coluymbia scientists reported this week.

They just completed a test where they ran three diesel engines for 1,000 hours; one on diesel fuel and the other two on a mixture of diesel fuels and soybean oil.

"The engines had no significant differences in wear, oil contamination, drop in power or increase in fuel consumption," reported Steven C. Borgelt and F. Dee Harris, UMC agricultural engineers.

There were some problems, though.

"We saw an increase of lead in the lube oil samples of engines fueled with soyoil mixtures," Harris said. "We'll want to run these engines longer to determine if this is a critical concern.

"We found some fuel system and injection system problems, but these were negligible as long as we kept the soybean oil to 25 percent or less of the mixture."

Borgelt and Harris said fuel filtering and modifications will make soybean oil more favorable as a fuel extender with present-day diesel engines.

"By filtering the fuel before it goes into the engine, the fuel system will need less maintenance and there will be less chance of possible engine damage from fuel impurtities," Borgelt said.

"Fuel modifications or additives could be used to decrease the viscosity differences between the soyoil and the diesel fuels, thus helping to eliminate carbon deposits and gumming of the injector components."

He said soybean oil and other vegetable oils, including sunflower oil, could make important contributions to the nation's farm fuel supply in the future.

Nat'l Farmer Co-op president says oil import fees could cost farmers $1 billion

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Council of Farmer Cooperatives last Wednesday voiced strong opposition to oil import fees being considered by congressional leaders.

NCFC President Kenneth D. Naden said a $5 per barrel oil import fee would increase farmers' fuel costs by about $1 billion annually.

"If farm income, already at 1930s levels, is reduced another 8 percent by these fees," he declared, "many farmers may find it exceedingly difficult to stay in business

Naden added that the rural petroleum system could be devastated by the artificial windfall that import fees would provide refiners who are rich in domestic crude oil. Farmers once again would be extremely vulnerable to future disruptions, with severe shortages likely to occur in rural areas, he predicted.

Responding to arguments that declining fuel prices would partially offset an oil import fee, Naden observed that farmers and other hard-pressed consumers are finally enjoying a brief respite from rising energy prices.

"We certainly don't need an oil import fee to wipe out this bit of good news," he asserted.

The cooperative leader said there was an additional irony in the proposed import fee.

"With energy prices finally declining in the marketplace," he noted, "some oil producers are now calling for regulations to keep domestic prices up. These same people were calling for less regulations when oil prices were rising!"

Naden applauded the Administration's continued opposition to oil import fees, declaring that to do otherwise would be a sharp reversal in its policies.

"I am confident that once congressional leaders fully examine the negative effects of an oil import fee, they will reach the same conclusion as the President," said Naden.

He observed that an import fee concentrates the adverse consequences of meeting a general revenue need upon one segment of society—consumers of petroleum products. Farmers and home heating oil customers are least able to adjust to these costs, he added.

The NCFC president said his organization supports cost-saving and revenue-raising efforts designed to reduce a growing federal deficit. But he added that national policymakers must continue their search for more equitable ways to increase revenues, if truly needed.

The National Council of Farmer Cooperatives is the national legislative arm for U.S. farmer cooperatives—businesses owned and controlled by farmers. Farmer cooperatives refine and distribute about 45 percent of the fuel used on U.S. farms, as well as much of the fuel used in rural communities.

NCFC represents about 90 percent of the nation's 6,400 farmer cooperatives, with a combined membership of nearly 2 million farmers.

Toxaphene use to be studied

NEWARK, De. — As every grower knows, cutworms can really cut into corn yields. Since there's no way to predict which fields these pests will attack, most no-till growers routinely spray a preventative dose of the insecticide toxaphene at planting.

Despite the number of growers who swear by the routine use of toxaphene on no-till corn, there is almost no scientific documentation to support the practice, says University of Delaware extension pest management specialist Mark Graustein. To collect the necessary data to evaluate the practice objectively, the Delaware Cooperative Extension Service is collaborating with a group of farm supply store personnel on a long-term study of cutworm control.

"We want to do an objective benefit-risk study," says the extension specialist. "The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency is taking a close look at toxaphene as a potential hazard to the environment and to the humans who use it. We want to know what would happen to cutworm control in Delaware if toxaphene were removed from the market. We also want to find out if the chemical is being overused."

Managers of certain Agway, Milford Fertilizer Company and Southern States stores throughout the state are cooperating in the study by working closely with individual customers as they come in for seeds and supplies. Each participating store manager will ask two to four customers to omit toxaphene from a 50- to 100-foot section of a no-till corn field. The store manager will mark off the unsprayed plot with a red flag, and will fill out a card stating the location of the plot, planting date, previous insecticide used, and other pertinent information.

Store managers will mail the data cards to the Delaware Cooperative Extension Service. Extension pest scouts will watch the fields for signs of cutworms, comparing insect numbers on treated and untreated fields. If pest scouts see evidence of cutworm damage, they will follow up with a rescue treatment of Sevin Bait.

"There's no really effective product that is labeled for the same type of use as toxaphene on no-till corn," says Graustein. "The grower's other alternative is to scout for cutworms twice a week during the early growing season and, if necessary, to apply a rescue treatment of Sevin Bait, Lorsban, Penncap M or Dylox. Most growers are too busy then to scout for pests, so they apply toxaphene on an insurance basis.

Horticulturalists receive Longwood fellowships

NEWARK, Del — Five people have been selected to receive fellowships for graduate study in the Longwood Program in Ornamental Horticulture A cooperative program of the University of Delaware and Longwood Gardens, it is the only graduate program in the nation that specializes in training professional managers for public horticultural institutions.

Longwood fellows come from a variety of backgrounds, but most hold degrees in horticulture and have extensive professional experience in horticultural institutions The following individuals have been awarded fellowships for 1982

Nancy Jean Bechtol of Ellicott City, Maryland, holds a degree in horticulture from the University of Maryland She has worked as an assistant horticultural therapist at Sheppard and Enoch Pratt Hospital in Towson, Maryland, a gardener at Ladew Topiary Garden in Monkton, Maryland, and a biological aide at the National Arboretum in Washington, D.C She is now assistant curator of Brookside Gardens in Wheaton, Md.

Lucy Evelyn Jones of Gainesville, Florida, is a recent honors graduate of the University of Florida department of plant science She has worked in the greenhouses of the Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences in Gainesville and has completed an internship at the Brooklyn Botanic Garden in Brooklyn, New York She has mangement experience with Holiday Inns in New York and Florida.

Lawrence Elliott Lee of Castro Valley, California, holds an undergraduate degree in botany and genetics from the University of California at Berkeley, and a M S. degree in horticulture from the University of California at Davis He is now a student intern at the Filoli Center in Woodside, California

Karen Marie Perkins of West Chester, Pa , holds a degree in ornamental horticulture from Cornell University She was an assistant gardener at Cornell Plantations in Ithaca, New York, and has served student internships at Longwood Gardens in Kennett Square, Pa , the Royal Botanical Gardens, Edinburgh, Scotland, and at several gardens in England

Ernie George Wasson of Arcata, California, holds a degree in geography from Humboldt State University in Arcata Since graduating in 1974 he has worked as an interpretive naturalist at San Joaquin Outdoor Ed School, head nurseryman and part owner of a nursery, and as horticultural instructor at the College of the Redwoods in Eureka, California

Berks ag preservation meeting

SHOEMAKERSVILLE — The Berks County Pomona Grange and the Perry Township Board of Supervisors are sponsoring an informational meeting concerning agricultural preservation districts.

The meeting, which will begin at 7:45 p.m. on Monday, will be held at the Perry Township Municipal Building, located 1.3 miles east of Shoemakersville along Route 662.

Speaking about the new state law and farmland preservation will be Lancaster County farmer Amos Funk, along with Extension service personnel, county commissioners, and other people interested in land preservation.

CHORE-TIME®

The Air System With A Mind Of Its Own

Until now, most ventilation systems had one drawback. Air inlets had to be opened and closed by hand.

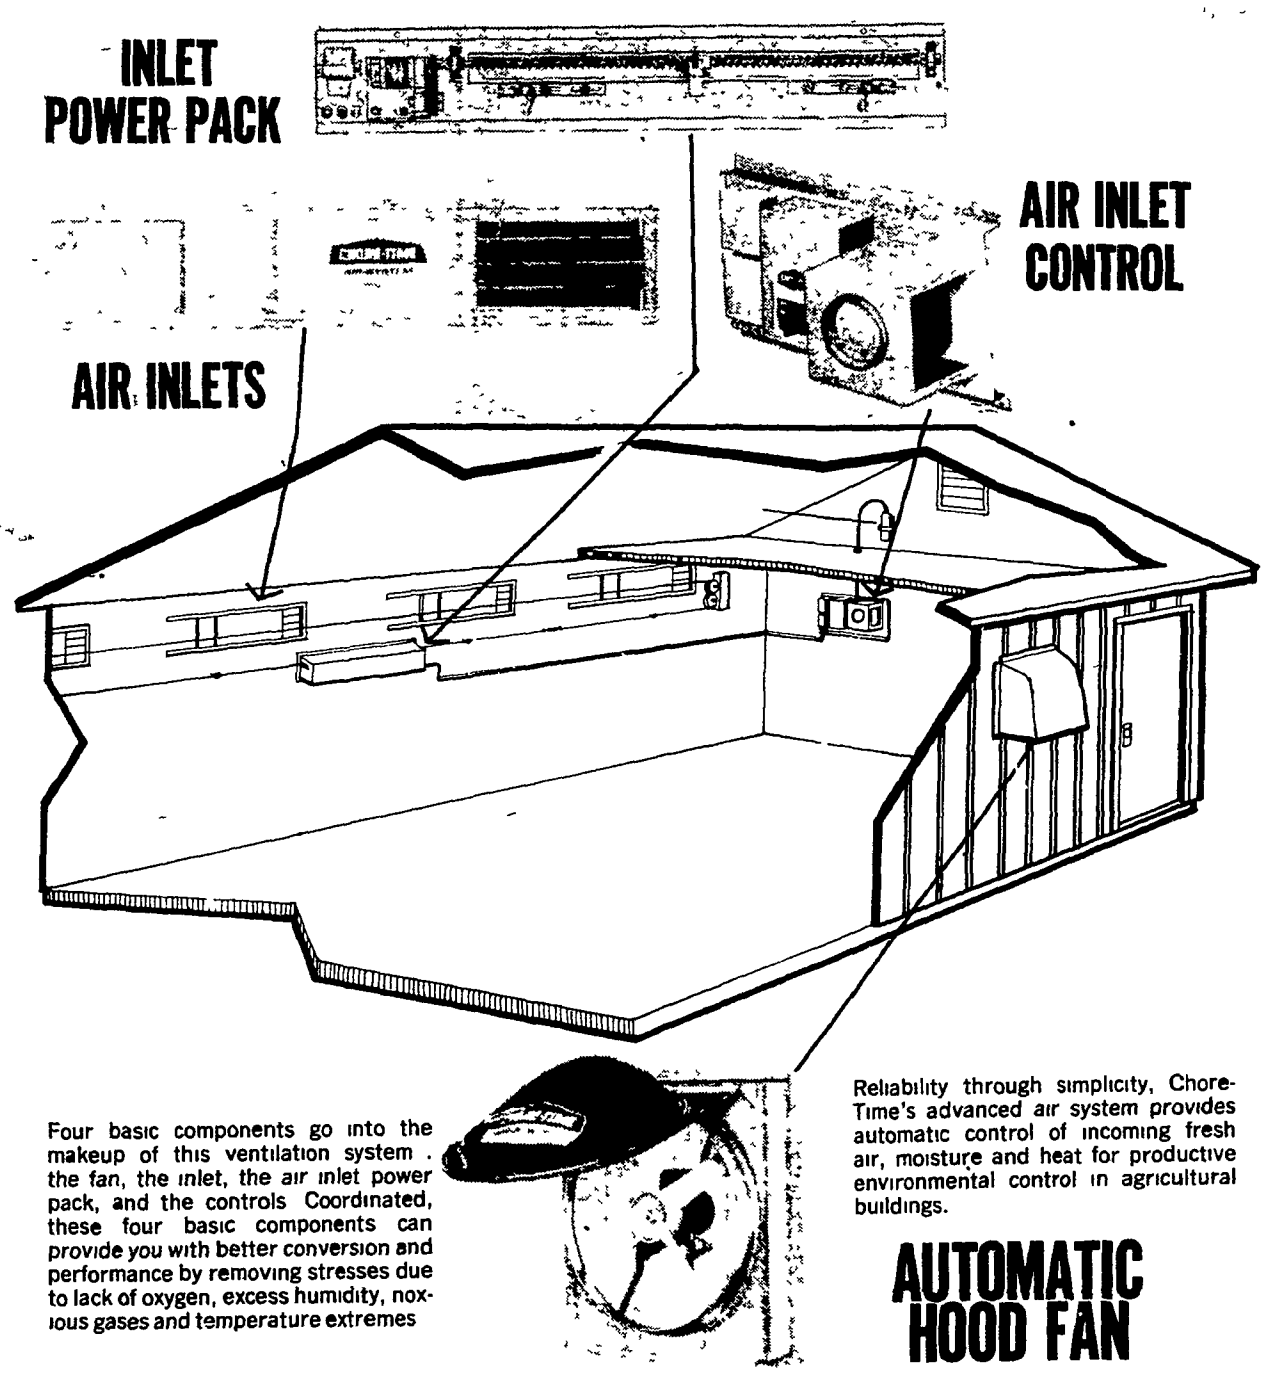
This was time consuming — and pretty much a matter of guesswork.

Now, Chore-Time has eliminated this problem.

The Chore-Time system has a mind of its own and adjusts inlets — in conjunction with fan operation — to maintain air pressure at a constant, preset level.

This provides a degree of air and moisture accuracy never before possible in poultry and livestock buildings.

The new inlet control (pictured) is just one of many exclusive features that make Chore-Time air systems number one in performance and reliability.



Four basic components go into the makeup of this ventilation system . the fan, the inlet, the air inlet power pack, and the controls Coordinated, these four basic components can provide you with better conversion and performance by removing stresses due to lack of oxygen, excess humidity, noxious gases and temperature extremes

Reliability through simplicity, Chore-Time's advanced air system provides automatic control of incoming fresh air, moisture and heat for productive environmental control in agricultural buildings.

Ask the VMD

Leon Riegel — Synthea Maas — Tim Trayer — Edgar Sheaffer

Each week Lancaster Farming features 'Ask the VMD,' a column designed to offer sound advice and shed new light on troublesome problems that affect the livestock industry. Contributing veterinarians for the column include: Doctors Leon Riegel, Synthea Maas and Edgar Sheaffer of Valley Animal Hospital, Palmyra; and Dr. Tim Trayer of Hutchison and Trayer Veterinary Associates, Reinholds.

Questions for the column can be submitted to: Ask the VMD, Lancaster Farming, Box 366, Lititz, Pa. 17543.

A reader asks:

How can grass tetany be prevented in beef cattle? Does it only occur in the spring?

Dr. Sheaffer comments:

Grass tetany, which can occur at any time of the year is also known winter tetany. In the west, the disease is called wheat poisoning.

The condition occurs when the forage has a low content of available magnesium. Hence, the disease is nutritional in cause and metabolic in type.

Magnesium, a mineral similar to calcium, occurs in plants and animals in lower quantities than calcium. Dolomitic limestone contains both calcium carbonate and magesium carbonate.

Fast growing forage is often deficient is available magnesium. Two common causes are heavy fertilization with high nitrate compounds and excess winter or spring rainfall. Consequently, the problem is most severe in wet years.

Lactating cows go down and become recumbent rapidly. Dry cows, heifers and steer are affected more gradually.

Treatment in all cases is intravenous magnesium therapy. Prevention is accomplished by increasing the available magnesium in the feed to the adequate levels. Forage testing is valuable to determine the state of deficency.

Correction should be aimed at the soil and the forage first. Compounds such as dolomitic limestone and low nitrogen fertilizers with magnesium added may be top dressed on the forage. This should be done four to eight weeks before grazing or harvesting.

Secondly, magnesium should be added to the grain mixture while the forage is being corrected. These supplements are in the form of magnesium oxide, magnesium carbonate, or magnesium hydroxide.

MILK MARKET NEWS

Federal Order No. 2
New York-New Jersey Market Area
Dairy Farmers Will Receive $13.02 For March Milk

Dairy farmers who supplied milk plants regulated under the New York-New Jersey marketing orders during March will be paid on the basis of a uniform price of $13.02 per hundredweight (28.0 cents per quart).

Market Administrator Thomas A. Wilson stated that the uniform farm price per hundredweight was $13.30 in February 1982 and $13.20 in March 1981.

The seasonal incentive fund removed 20 cents per hundredweight from the dairy farmers' uniform price for March, a total of $1,959,483.76. Deductions will continue through June and will be returned in the August through November uniform price calculations.

A total of 17,661, dairy farmers supplied the New York-New Jersey Milk Marketing Area with 979,741,879 pounds of milk during March 1982. This was an increase of 1.6 percent (about 16 million pounds) from last year. The gross value to dairy farmers for milk deliveries was $130,526,144.62. Wilson explained that this included differentials required to be paid to dairy farmers but not voluntary premiums or deductions authorized by the farmer.

Regulated milk dealers utilized 403,124,790 pounds of milk for Class I, 41.1 percent of the total. This milk is used for fluid milk products such as homogenized, flavored, low test and skim milks. For March 1982, handlers paid $14.80 per hundredweight (31.8 cents per quart) for Class I milk compared with $14.89 a year ago.

The balance, 58.9 percent, was used to manufacture Class II products including butter, cheese, ice cream and yogurt. For this milk, handlers paid $12.40 per hundredweight.

The uniform price is based on milk containing 3.5 percent butterfat. For March 1982, a differential of 17.0 cents was applied to the price for each one-tenth of one percent that the milk tested above or below the 3.5 percent standard.

Reduced chemical use possible with bio-controls

ATLANTA, Ga. — Biological and cultural control of weeds offers opportunities for reducing chemical applications for control of those pests on farms, can be less costly than herbicides, and could reduce adverse effects to the environment, a U.S. Deparument of Agriculture entomologist said recently.

"A chief stumbling block to wider acceptance of these and other non-chemical methods of control is the question of their cost. It is important to emphasize that the economics of any weed control practice will vary with farm size, the weed species involved, the crop, and other factors," Lloyd A. Andres of USDA's Agricultural Research Service said.

Weeds are a major concern on farmlands throughout the world. The extent to which they are a problem varies with the region, the crop, and the cultural practices. Herbicides play an important role in the resolution of many weed problems. However, despoite their efficacy there is interest in reducing the herbicide load in farming systems.

"One group of weed scientists is making herbicides more effective at less cost by improving application techniques—wick applicators, recirculating sprayers—which also reduce the potential for environmental problems.

"A second group of farmers and agricultural scientists seek to put less chemical stress on the environment. They look mainly to tillage, cultivation, crop rotation, interplanting, preventative cultural practices and other non-chemical methods of weed control," Andres said.

Increased understanding of the principles and practices of the biological control of weeds will lead to wider acceptance of this approach to weed control. In turn, it will increase the prospects for reducing herbicide usage.

Natural enemies of weeds have been exploited to some extent against specific weeds, principally in non-crop areas—pasture, rangeland, aquatic habitats.

Scientists are just beginning to explore the biological control potential against weeds on crop lands—insects to control purslane, nutsedge; plant pathogens to control jointvetch stranglervine; nematodes to control silverleaf nightshade.

Additional research is needed, Andres said, to improve the adaptability of non-chemical methods of weed control to a wider range of farming systems and to integrate cultural and weed control practices in a manner to allow the elimination of herbicides if desired.

WHAT IS PURINA GOLDEN BULKY?

Golden Bulky has been called a complete feed by some dairymen and a supplement by others because it can be fed as the only ration, mixed with grain or top fed. It acts as a rumen stimulant as well as a source of milk making and body building nutrients.

If you take a close-up look at this versatile, all purpose Purina Chow you may not be able to see all of the micro-mixed ingredients, but just the right balance of essential vitamins, minerals and carbohydrates are locked up in every handful.

- Crude Protein 10%
- Crude Fiber 20%
- Fortified with Vit A&D, and Minerals.
- Good energy source

HAY COSTS HIGH?

- ★ An important added feature of Golden Bulky is the ability to stretch your roughage supply.
- ★ The benefit to you is the ability to stretch your Hay and economically keep your program balanced.
- ★ The bulkiness of Golden Bulky seems to fit a cow's diet perfectly because cows like bulky feed and Golden Bulky is certainly bulky! In fact, 100 pounds of Golden Bulky will fill six big bushel baskets. It gives you a lot of feed for your money.
